

易之感应，思之整合

申荷永^{*}

在国际分析心理学会、华南师范大学以及广东省政府的大力支持下，“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”如期召开。面对今日隆重的会场，我感到犹如一个美好的梦正在逐渐展现其深远的意义。实际上，当默瑞·斯坦（Murray Stein）代表国际分析心理学会，最初与我一起策划与准备这次会议的时候，还只是在勾画一个梦。而今天，通过在座各位的共同参与，终于使这富有理想的梦成为现实。

分析心理学与中国文化的结合，曾经是荣格的梦想。当他还是七八岁的孩子的时候，借助给予他无限灵感的石头，体验到了庄子蝴蝶物化的梦境；分析心理学与中国文化的结合，也是荣格学者们的努力。1994年，国际分析心理学会主席汤姆·科茨（Tom Kirsch）、秘书长默瑞·斯坦等人代表国际分析心理学会访问中国，在广州与北京进行了广泛的学术交流。随后，我们有了“曼陀罗分析心理学丛书”的出版，一些荣格和荣格学者的著作都有了中译本。1995年，申荷永、高岚、万玮等中国学者赴瑞

^{*} 申荷永：华南师范大学心理学教授，博士，博士生导师，美国旧金山荣格研究院国际学者。

士苏黎士参加“分析心理学国际会议”，随后参加了“爱诺思”东西方圆桌研讨会。1997年，默瑞·斯丹曾经邀请我与大卫·罗森（David Rosen）在芝加哥荣格心理分析研究院进行“荣格与中国”的对话……今天有如此众多的西方分析心理学家前来参加这次国际研讨会，正是分析心理学与中国文化之主题的继续与发展。

正如爱诺思基金会主席克丽思塔·罗伯森（Christa Robinson）在其“贺词”中说：“这次会议也是一种特殊的机会，为我们开启一种具有无限意义的相互交流的体验。以此为基础，真正的会议将会超越可能分隔我们的种种障碍，而在人们的交流与理解之中产生。”这使我想起《易经》“咸卦”的象征性意义，以及其中所包含的感应心法。我们可以用“Touching by heart and response from heart”来翻译“咸卦”之感应的内涵，因为汉字感应（应）之中皆有“心”为主体。这可与西方心理学中的“刺激—反应”原理相互比较，两者揭示的是不同的心理层面，所反映的是不同的心理学思想。感应是超越于单纯的刺激反应的，以心的象征性为主体，强调了这种心理过程中的体验与感受性，以及情感的作用。而刺激反应则不然，所侧重的是对心理过程机制的描述。更为可贵的是，《易经》中“咸卦”的心理学意义，并不完全在于一种“普通心理学”的描述，它是将意识的心理学与无意识的心理学结合起来。咸卦“上兑下艮，于在坤中”，包含了“天地所感”的境界。因而，在“咸卦”之意象中，包含着“无心之感”的本质内涵，揭示了天人感应与天人合一的途径。这也正是我们对于“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的期望，在接下来的5天的会议与共同相处与交流中，我们希望能获得这样寓意易理的心神感应。

不知道在座的各位是否对于我们的“会标”感到好奇，或者说是不是大家都已经知道了其中的含义。我可以在这里略作介

绍。“会标”的中心，是一个汉字的“思”的设计。“思”的上面，是“头”的象形；下面是“心”的象征。而“头”可以表示“西方心理学”对于大脑与认知的强调；“心”则可以表示中国文化心理学或“东方心理学”之深刻精蕴。我曾把中国文化心理学称之为“Psychology of Heart”，即以“心”为主体的心理学。旨在发挥其中所包含的整体性与整合性意义。同样，我们还可以把“头”看做是“意识心理学”，而把“心”看做是“无意识”心理学。于是，如此的会标设计，包含着一种“头”与“心”的交流对话与沟通。

“会标”是由我的一位搞美术设计的朋友最后完成的。当我把这样的一种思路告诉她的时候，她建议说，既然是为了东西方的沟通，那么在思的“头”与“心”之间，应该留出一些“空隙”，以表示这种沟通与交流……我想这也是一个很好的建议，我们毕竟仍然在做着这种东西方沟通与交流的工作。那么，当我们举办第二届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会的时候，则可以在这“思”的“头”与“心”中多留出一些“空间”；而在第三届国际会议的时候，通过我们大家的共同努力，来使这种象征东西方沟通与交流的空间逐渐增加。

在这“思”的象征中，所包含的不仅仅有东西方的“差异”，以及这种相互的对话的机会；而且包含着一种特殊意义的整体与整合性。《说文解字注》中在解释“思”的时候说：“自囟至心如丝相贯不绝。”也即从脑从心，有脑有心为思，既有脑也须有心才能够称得上“思”。《六书总要》中注解“思”字时也指出：“以意之所思必情之所愿。”因此，在这“思”的会标设计中，仍然包含着一种东西方心理学的统一与整合性，这也正是需要我们不断努力的目标。

分析心理学的希望

Luigi Zoja *

It gives me immense pleasure to send you a message of greeting and support on this historic occasion. Jungian psychology has had a long and respectful relationship with China and its culture, and I am sure that Professor Jung himself would have been exceeding gratified to learn of the existence of such a conference as yours.

One result of the expansion of Jungian psychology into areas where, up to now, it has had little presence, is that we, the Jungian analysts, have had to examine some of our certainties and assumptions. In short, we have learned a great deal on our travels. It is out of mutual learning situations that genuine as opposed to formalistic dialogue can be fashioned.

I will not take much of your valuable time because you have so many marvelous speakers present with you in the flesh. I will merely conclude by offering you a brief quotation from Jung's writings which I offer as highly pertinent to the brave and creative project upon which you are now engaged:

* Luigi Zoja : 意大利荣格心理分析家，国际分析心理学会主席。

“Everything requires for its existence its own opposite, or else it fades into nothingness. The ego needs the Self and vice versa. The changing relation between these two entities constitute a field of experience which Eastern introspection has exploited to a degree almost unattainable to Western man. The philosophy of the East, although so vastly different from ours, could be an inestimable treasure for us too; but, in order to possess it, we must first earn it.” (From: Psychology and Religion, West And East, Collected Works, Volume 11, paragraph 961)

Luigi Zoja

Jungian Analyst, the President of the International Association of Analytical Psychology.

附译文：

能够对具有历史意义的“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”寄上我的祝愿与支持，我感到非常的愉快。荣格分析心理学早已与中国和中国文化结下了深厚的渊源。我相信，若是荣格教授本人得知你们正在举行这样一次会议，也一定会感到由衷的欣慰。

随着荣格心理学的不断扩展，荣格心理分析家们必须验证与检验我们的一些理论与假设。简言之，我们从我们的旅程与交流中学习到了很多东西。通过这种相互的学习，会产生真正的富有创意的，而不仅仅是形式上的对话。

我不占用你们太多的宝贵时间，因为你们有许多杰出的报告者要与你们分享他们杰出的思想。请让我引用荣格著作里的一段话作为结语，衷心祝愿你们所组织与参与的这一创造性的壮举。

“任何事物都相辅相成，对立而统一，否则将不能存在。意识需要自性，反之亦然。两种实体之间的这种变化关系构成了一

种体验性的领域，对此东方的内省曾予以深度的开拓，而对于西方人来说则显得遥远而陌生。东方的哲学，虽然与我们的哲学截然不同，亦能成为我们的宝藏。然而，为了拥有它，我们必须首先学习与工作。”

（荣格“心理学与宗教”，载《荣格全集》第 11 卷，第 961 页）

东西方的交流

王国健^{*}

各位来宾，国内外的专家学者，女士们，先生们：

首先，我谨代表华南师范大学，对于第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会在我校的召开，表示热烈的祝贺；对于前来参加研讨会的国内外学者、专家、教授表示热烈的欢迎。同时，感谢国际分析心理学会与我们合作，策划并主办这次旨在促进东西方文化与心理学交流的国际会议。

目前正是广州最好的时节，在北方或许是隆冬飘雪，而这里依然遍布春意。一年四季绿树鲜花，便是广州特有的迎宾的象征。

5年前，通过申荷永博士，我们学校的颜泽贤校长曾经邀请当时国际分析心理学会的主席托马斯·科茨博士、名誉秘书长默瑞·斯丹博士，以及金·科茨和珍·斯丹等人访问我们学校，我也参加了当时的学术研讨。那是一次成功的访问，也是一次富有成效的交流。我同意默瑞·斯丹博士的评价，他们的访问开启了国际分析心理学会与中国学者和中国文化沟通与交流的大门。

东西方文化，包括东西方文化中的心理学意义，既有明显的

^{*} 王国健：华南师范大学副校长、教授。

不同，又有潜在的一致性。作为其不同，可以成为我们相互学习的理由，我们可以通过学习与交流来相互补充；作为其潜在的一致性，可以作为我们共同努力与探索的目标。这正如分析心理学的目的，追求一种对人类心理的整合性的理解，并且致力于促进这种整合性的发展。

我们华南师范大学有着丰富而珍贵的文化与心理学的资源：我们的教育科学院和心理系，以及我们的文艺心理学研究中心，在国内的学科发展与相关领域研究中都具有重要的影响。我们的曹础基教授对于中国文化，尤其是对于易经的研究和道家哲学的研究，具有深厚的造诣；将为大会作报告的傅剑平教授和龚隽教授等，也分别在易学、道家哲学和禅学等领域各具心得。申荷永教授作为这次会议的主要策划与组织者，不但熟悉分析心理学，而且对于中国文化心理学也具有其独到的见解。他们的研究在国内外已经产生了重要的影响。

在广东，有中国禅宗宗源的南华寺，有禅宗六祖惠能的出生地；广州的光孝寺和六榕寺也在中国佛教和禅宗发展中具有重要的地位；罗浮山与晋代的葛洪相连，集道家哲学思想与道教炼丹术之大成；肇庆七星岩风景如画，鼎湖山气势雄伟……我希望大家在学术研讨之余，可以放松与轻松地去游览一些作为中国文化象征的名胜古迹，在那里你也许会发现另外一种中国文化心理学的意义。

荣格说西方的心理学为理解东方文化提供了有利的参考，而且东方文化为西方心理学的研究提供了有效的帮助。我同意这种说法。我们希望分析心理学与中国文化的研讨主题继续下去，希望东—西方心理学加强沟通与交流。我们华南师范大学正准备成立“东方文化研究院”，希望能够得到国内外专家学者的有力支持。同时，我希望在明年或后年，我们再一起组织第二届分析心理学与中国文化的国际研讨会。

最后，预祝这次研讨会圆满成功。祝愿大家在我们华南师范大学和我们广东，度过美好而愉快的时光。

谢谢大家！

荣格的梦想

Christa Robinson*

This is a message to the honorable President of this First international Congress of Jungian Psychology and Chinese Culture in Guangzhou, China, to our friend Professor Heyong Shen, the speakers and participants from the Eranos Foundation, Ascona, Switzerland.

We would like to send you heartfelt good wishes for this especially important event.

Dreams are never our property only, but they connect us to peoples and nations and on a deeper archetypal level to humanity as a whole. So this congress is also a unique occasion that may open us to experience of universal interconnections. On this basis real meeting occurs between people and understanding crosses the gaps that may separate us.

We trust that your First international Congress will make an important contribution towards this aim and are sure it will have the success it deserves. We wish you fruitful enjoyable days together and remain with warm greetings.

Christa Robinson : 瑞士爱诺思 (Eranos) 基金会主席。

For the Eranos Foundation and its staff

Christa Robinson, President

附译文：

尊敬的“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”大会主席，我们的朋友，瑞士爱诺思圆桌会议的主讲人及参与者申荷永教授：

我们希望借此机会表达我们对于这一特殊重要事件的衷心祝愿。

梦并不是我们惟一的财富，但是它可以在一种深层的原型的意义上，把我们不同的国家和人民联系为一个人类的整体。所以，这次会议也是一种特殊的机会，为我们开启一种具有无限意义的相互交流的体验。以此为基础，真正的会议将会超越可能分隔我们的种种障碍，而在人们的交流与理解之中产生。

我们相信，你们的“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”，将会为此目标做出重要的贡献；我们也相信，此次会议将会取得应有的成功。祝愿你们在一起度过丰富而愉快的时光。

爱诺思基金会及其工作人员向大会致意，致以美好而热情的祝愿！

荣格与中国

Murray Stein*

Dear Friends,

It has been nearly five years since I had the pleasure of visiting your impressive university in Guangzhou. I am sorry that I could not attend this first conference on Chinese philosophy and analytical psychology. I hope this will be the first of a long and distinguished series of similar conferences. Certainly Western psychology has been greatly enriched by Chinese thought already, and it is my hope that the dialogue you are inaugurating here during this timely conference will show the way forward to much greater and deeper mutual understanding and influence in the future.

With fond regards,

Murray Stein, Ph. D.

Chairperson, Developing Groups Committee of IAAP

President – Elect, IAAP

附译文：

亲爱的朋友：

* Murray Stein：美国荣格心理分析家，国际分析心理学会下任主席。

差不多是 5 年前，我愉快地访问了你们在广州的学校，印象十分深刻。很遗憾，我不能前来参加这次“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”。我希望，这只是一种卓有成效的系列性研讨会的开端。当然，西方心理学已经从中国文化思想中受益匪浅，但是我仍然希望，你们目前正在开幕的这次会议中所从事的对话性研讨，能够在将来达到东—西方之间更为深入的相互理解与相互影响。

致以深情的祝愿！

对话的机会

Leland van den Daele^{*}

Carl Jung's psychology provides a theory and method for the comprehension and investigation of human mind and spirit. Human mind and spirit is revealed through the study of culture and the individual. Jungian studies of myths, legends, folk tales, and esoteric philosophies of the East and West demonstrate numerous parallels. The process of alchemical transformation in the West and enlightenment in the East appear to unfold in a similar manner.

Yet the richness of Asian symbolism and commentary is yet to be fully integrated into Jungian psychology. Certainly, Jung himself appreciated the profound richness of the I Ching, the Secret of the Golden Flower, and the Tibetan Book of the Dead, but his appreciation was a promissory note for future generations of scholars to explore.

The First International Conference of Jungian Psychology and Chinese Culture is a milestone in this exploration. The Conference gives voice to Chinese scholars to bring balance and nuance to symbolic and psychological comprehension of Chinese culture. Possible Westernocentric conceptions can be identified with a gain in knowledge for both Chinese and non – Chinese. Out of dialog is a genuinely universal perspective likely to emerge. A theory of mind validated for half the world is only half a theory.

^{*} Leland van den Daele : 美国加州整合学院 (CIS) 职业心理学学院院长。

So The First International Conference of Jungian Psychology and Chinese Culture is a truly hopeful event where our cherished theories may be proven wrong and our ideas genuinely liberated. Though the dialog may stretch our conceptions, the promise of this conference is the building of comprehension between cultures through the discovery of difference and sameness.

Leland van den Daele, Ph. D

Dean of the Professional School of Psychology

California Institute for Integral Studies

附译文：

荣格心理学提供了一种理解与整合人类心理与精神的理论与方法。通过文化以及个体的研究，人类的心理与精神得以展现。荣格学者们对于东西方神话、传说、民间故事和深奥哲学研究，揭示了很多的相似的原则。西方炼金术的转化过程，以及东方的觉悟，也都表现着某种相同的存在。

然而，亚洲的丰富的象征意义与理论，尚没有被充分地整合到荣格心理学的体系中。当然，荣格本人十分欣赏《易经》、《金花的秘密》、《西藏死亡书》等丰富资源，但是，荣格的欣赏，也是对下一代学者们继续探索的期望。

“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”便是这种探索的一个里程碑。这次会议是对中国学者们的呼吁，要对中国文化中丰富的象征与心理的意义有所觉察并获得一种足够的认识；同时也给予西方学者们一次机会，来检验他们的知识与概念。通过

对话，一种真正的国际观点将会出现。一种对于一半世界有效的心理理论，也只能是半个理论。

因此，这次“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”是真正富有希望的事件。通过其间的对话与交流，我们原有的理论可能会受到矫正，而新的思想也会因此而产生。对话可以扩展我们的理念，这次会议的期望是通过发现差异与同一，在东西方文化之间建立一种相互理解的桥梁。

《易经》与心理分析*

申荷永 高岚

摘 要 在中国的文化传统中,《易经》素有“众经之首”和“大道之源”的称誉。当代心理学史家把中国看做是心理学的第一个故乡,中国传统文化中包容着丰富的心理学思想和独特的心理学体系。对此,作者以《易经》为基础,通过易经中所使用的“心”字,易传中所发挥的“心”的意义,和《易经》卦象中所表达的心的象征性等几个方面,阐述了《易经》中所包含的“中国文化心理学”,以及这种中国文化心理学对于当代西方心理学思想的影响。

关键词 易经,心理分析,中国文化心理学

在中国的文化传统中,《易经》素有“众经之首”和“大道之源”的称誉。既然当代西方心理学史家把中国看做是心理学的第一个故乡,人们也已经逐渐意识到中国文化中包含着丰富的心理学思想和独特的心理学体系,那么这种中国文化的心理学意

本文受 Fulbright 基金会和 Eranos 基金会的资助,并且受国家教委及广东省高教
 中国文化心理学”研究项目的资助。在关于“《易经》与心理分析”的研究中, 曾受惠于吴怡教授、刘大钧教授和曹础基教授,特此致谢。

 高岚,华南师大教授,博士,硕士研究生导师。

义，也自然会透过《易经》来传达其消息。在本文中，我们以《易经》为基础，从“易经中的心字”，“易传中的心意”和“易象中的心理”等几个方面来阐述《易经》中所包含的“中国文化心理学”。同时，我们也将比较与分析《易经》对西方心理学思想所产生的影响，尤其是《易经》与分析心理学所建立的关系。

一、易经与心之意义

人们将西方的 Psychology 翻译成了“心理学”，其中最大的特色莫过于使用了“心”字。尽管西方心理学的研究对象曾经有“灵魂”（soul）、“意识”（consciousness）、“行为”（behavior）或“认知”（cognition）的不同强调与变化，但是一个汉语的“心”字，却囊括了迄今为止所有心理学家对心理学问题的研究与思考。

《易经·系辞上》中有“圣人以此洗心”的描述，其中涉及到了“心”，反映着《易经》之心理学的深刻意蕴。《易经·系辞下》中还有易之“能说诸心，能研诸虑”的总结，《周易折中》释其本义为：“‘说诸心’者，心与理会，乾之事也。‘研诸虑’者，理因虑审，坤之事也。”^①更是明确地表现出了《易经》中所包含的心理学思想。正所谓“圣人立象以尽意，设卦以尽情伪。”^②卦与象是《易经》的精髓；“意”与“情”都由心构成，属于心理学的最基本范畴*。

我们曾经在“心与心理学”和“心理学与中国文化”等文中，探讨了汉字“心”的心理学意义。它可以在心身、心理和心灵三种不同的层次上，表述不同的心理学的意义；但以“心”为整体，却又包容着一种整体性的心理学思想体系。比如，在汉字或汉语中，思维、情感和意志，都是以心为主体，同时也都包含

* 文中所引用《易经》原文，均出自《十三经注疏·周易正义》，中华书局 1987 年版。

着“心”的整合性意义。这也正如“思”字的象征，既包容了心与脑，也包容了意识和潜意识。对此，《礼记·大学疏》中有精辟的论断，称之为“总包万虑谓之心”^③。

西方心理学的早期发展，所侧重的是一种生理心理学，如实验心理学的创立者冯特的代表作，便是《生理心理学大纲》（1875）。其后来的发展是以意识和行为为主题，尽管仍然把人的生理学作为心理学研究的重要基础。但是，再后来的发展，如弗洛伊德之后的荣格分析心理学，以及人本主义第三势力心理学之后的第四势力心理学（Transpersonal Psychology——超个人心理学）等，却明确地要以人的心灵或灵性作为心理学研究与发展主题。而后来的发展是，自称为后现代的西方心理学家，他们却要在中国文化中吸取他们所需要的营养与支持。即使是作为认知心理学代表的学者如加德纳（H. Gardner），以及以其情感智力理论而闻名的学者高尔曼（D. Goleman）等，也都从不隐讳中国文化心理学对他们的影响，尤其是“心”的心理学的意义与价值。

当我们以“心与心理学”为主题来思考中国文化心理学意义的时候，曾经被《周易·系辞上》的“圣人以此洗心”深深地打动。我们曾经以“Psychology of Heart”为论文的题目，参加瑞士爱诺思基金会（Eranos Foundation）关于《易经》的国际圆桌研讨会。透过一个“心”字，我们可以从一个特殊的角度，来考察与分析《易经》与心理学。

二、易经中的心字内涵

通行本《周易》本分为经和传两部分，经文由卦辞和爻辞组成，易传的部分则包括彖、象、系辞、文言、说卦、序卦和杂卦等“十翼”。在《周易》的卦爻辞中，有6个卦直接使用了心字8次，为我们留下了中国古代对心之义和心之理的最初规范，以

及其所赋予的原型性的义理和内涵。

这 6 个卦分别为：坎卦（维心亨），明夷卦（获明夷之心），益卦（有孚惠心；立心勿恒），井卦（为我心恻），艮卦（其心不快；厉薰心），旅卦（我心不快）。属于心部的汉字在上下经的 64 卦中反复出现，其中如：悔、惕、性、恒、愁、惠、忧、思、憧等等。对此，我们以“坎卦”为例，进行如下的分析。

坎卦卦辞的原文是：“习坎，有孚，维心亨；行有尚。”程颐在其《程氏易传》中解释坎卦之卦象时说：“阳实在中，为中有孚信。‘维心亨’，维其心诚一，固能亨通。”^④这是说“天下无难事，只怕有心人”；“维心亨”也正是表达了其朴素至诚的道理。程颐还说：“至诚可以通金石，蹈水火，何险难之不可亨也？”^⑤

同时我们可以看出，《周易》经卦中出现的心字及其表述方式，如“维心亨”“为我心恻”“有孚惠心”等，与尚书和诗经中所使用的心字具有相似性，保留了汉语心字的原始面貌及其基本蕴涵，并且保留了甲骨文及金文中心字与心词的古朴性。对此我们可以略作比较如下：如早期甲骨卜辞所载：“庚戌卜，口贞，王心若”；“午卜，贞，王心亡鼓”；^⑥《诗经·国风·邶·柏舟》之“我心匪鉴，不可以茹；我心匪石，不可以转；我心匪席，不可以卷。”^⑦以及《尚书·商书》之“惟简在上帝之心”^⑧等。《尚书·商书》中还有“启乃心，沃朕心。若药弗……”的描述，实为汉语“心药”的基本原型；而《易经·说卦传》中有：“坎为水，……其于人也为加忧，为心病。”实为“心病”的基本原型表现。

《易经》坎卦中的“心”义及其原型性的内涵，为后世发展的心学奠定了基础。李舜臣曾经评注说，“作《易》者，因坎离之中，而寓诚明之用，古圣人之心学也。”^⑨章潢说：“六十四卦，独于坎卦指出心峰示人，可见心在身中，真如一阳陷于二阴之内，所谓道心惟微者此也。”^⑩《易传》中所发挥的“天地之心”，如复卦之“复，其见天地之心乎”（《复卦·彖辞》）；所主张的

“圣人感人心而天下和平”，如咸卦之“天地感而万物化生，圣人感人心而天下和平，观其所感，而万物之情可见矣”（《咸卦·彖辞》）；所提倡的“君子立心以恒”，如系辞之“君子安其身而后动，易其心而后语，定其交而后求”，便是心学的最初形态。

实际上，《易经》中所包含的心理学思想，并不拘泥于“心”字本身；正所谓“言生于象，固可寻言以观象”，并且古有“固言者所以明象，得象而忘言”的主张。对此我们可以通过对《易经》之卦象的分析，来作进一步的讨论。

三、易经卦象之启示

在《易经》的卦爻辞中，包含着深刻的心理学道理；易传中的评论与解释，包含着丰富的心理学思想。此外，我们还可以通过《易经》中的卦象，来进行心理学的研究与分析。孔颖达在其《周易注疏》中说，“伏牺初画八卦，万物之象，皆在其中。”^{①②}这正如《易经·系辞》中所揭示的：“圣人设卦观象”，“八卦成列，象在其中矣。”易之为书，卦爻象象之义备，而天地万物之情见。

因而，凡是《易经》之 64 卦，384 爻，拟诸形容之间，处处包含着丰富的象征性，包含着深刻的文化心理学的意义。首先，易中有象，在《周易》之象辞中集中反映着这种象征性的启示，诸如《乾卦·象曰》：“天行健，君子以自强不息。”《坤卦·象曰》：“地势坤，君子以载物厚德。”乾坤中包含着一种“君子之道”，包含着一种深刻的人格心理学理论。其次，即使是一个单一的卦象，其中六爻的变化，也可象征人生的心理发展。比如，孔子曾经以“吾十有五而志于学，三十而立，四十而不惑，五十而知天命，六十而耳顺，七十而从心所欲，不踰矩”来形容自己一生的心路历程，从中也不难看出乾坤之六爻变化的痕迹，如“四十而不惑”与乾卦第 3 爻之“君子终日乾乾，夕惕若”，或坤卦第 3 爻之“含章可贞”。也可以说，从乾坤之六爻的变化中，

可以来分析真正君子之道或君子之心路历程的演变与发展。再者，在《易经》的六十四卦之中，更有着重阐述心理规律的卦象。比如，象坎卦、艮卦、比卦、家人卦等等。在此，我们以咸卦为例，来进行易象的心理分析，以及我们对《易经》中心理象征性的理解。

咸卦由兑与艮组成，《易经·咸·彖》曰：“咸，感也。柔上而刚下，二气感应以相与。……天地感而万物化生，圣人感人心而天下和平，观其所感，则天地万物之情可见矣。”释其卦象，咸卦以艮兑相配，所表达的是山泽气息相通，万物皆互相感应之道理；但象中亦有情，艮为少男，兑为少女，男女相感之至情，已见于此。遍观咸卦六爻，初阴四阳，二阴五阳，三阳六阴，皆阳感而阴应，阴感而阳应之象征。称其为感，所表现的正是交互相感之义。

因而，我们知道，咸卦是象征“感应”的，揭示了感应之道。我们曾经将“感应”译为英文的“touching by heart and response from heart”，因为汉字的感与应（應），皆有“心”为主体。这可与西方心理学中的“刺激—反应”原理相互比较，两者所揭示的是不同的心理层面，所反映的是不同的心理学思想。感应是超于单纯的刺激反应的，其以心的象征性为主体，强调了这种心理过程中的体验与感受性，以及情感的作用。而刺激—反应则不然，所侧重的是对心理过程机制的描述。更为可贵的是，《易经》中咸卦的心理学意义，并不完全在于一种“普通心理学”的描述，它是将意识的心理学与无意识的心理学结合了起来。咸卦上兑下艮，乾在坤中，包含了“天地所感”的境界。因而，在“咸卦”之意象中，包含着“无心之感”的本质内涵，揭示了天人感应与天人合一的途径。这正如《易经·系辞》中的介绍：“易，无思也，无为也，寂然不动，感而遂通天下之故。”朱熹评注说：“无思、无为，言其无心也。寂然者，感之体。感通者，

寂之用。人心之妙，其动静亦如此。”^⑫无心之感，是《易经》中天地之心的呈现，是中国心学的精深境界。

咸卦感应之心理学的意义与象征性，却也并非局限于咸卦本身。从咸卦九四爻以下，复有困三解上，噬嗑之初上，否五鼎四，豫二复初，损三益上等，其义皆统于咸四。因为咸卦之第四爻，正为“心”之象征。对此，《易经·系辞》中有深刻的论述，将咸卦第四爻之意义发挥得淋漓尽致。如将其形容为“同归殊涂”；“一致百虑”；“精义入神”；“穷神知化”；并且主张“君子易其心而后语”，戒“立心勿恒”。

通过以上的分析，我们希望能够找到《易经》中所包含的心理学思想的线索。老子说：“使我介然有知，行于大道。”^⑬而《易经》则正是“群经之首，大道之源”。我们更希望当代的心理学家们，能够从《易经》中获得启迪。对此，我们可以用“易经与心理分析”，以及“爱诺思与易经”，来介绍《易经》对西方心理学的发展所产生的影响。

四、易经与分析心理学

当代西方心理学，尤其是心理分析和分析心理学，在其发展的初期，便已与《易经》结下了不解之缘。当卫礼贤（理查德·维尔海姆）在劳乃宣的帮助下，把《周易》翻译成德文的时候，已经通过他们的翻译，传递了其中古老的中国文化心理学的信息，正如卫礼贤的儿子海尔姆特·维尔海姆在该译本的英文版第三版（1967）序言中所说，“易经中所阐述的实际上是一种独特的人类心理现象”。在第三版的英译《易经》中，同样带有荣格为其德文本所撰写的“前言”，更是显示了《易经》对心理学的意义和影响。

荣格曾经这样说：“《易经》中包含着中国文化的精神和心灵，几千年中国伟大智者的共同倾注，历久而弥新，仍然对理解

它的人，展现着无穷的意义和无限的启迪。”这是荣格对于《易经》的理解，以及其对于《易经》之情感的表达。荣格说，“任何一个像我这样，生而有幸能够与维尔海姆，与《易经》的预见性力量，做直接精神交流的人，都不能够忽视这样一个事实，在这里我们已经接触到了一个‘阿基米德点’，而这一‘阿基米德点’，足以动摇我们西方对于心理态度的基础。”这个“阿基米德点”，是荣格对于《易经》的接受和理解，而这个“阿基米德点”，也正是荣格心理学发展的关键。

通过《易经》的帮助和启发，荣格提出了他的“共时性原则”（synchronicity），并将这种“共时性原则”，作为其分析心理学发展的一种内在基石。荣格说，我自己在对无意识心理学的研究中，发现西方的因果性原则在解释一些无意识心理活动的过程时，是不充分的；这也促使我寻求另外一种解释的原则。在英国学者保罗·戴维斯的名作《上帝与新物理学》一书的第六章“精神与灵魂”中，作者将荣格的一段话作为该章的“导引”：“我就是相信，人类自我或曰人类灵魂的某一部分，不受制于时间和空间的法则。”荣格深信，心理现象，必将遵循着一种有别于物理法则的法则；“共时性”原则是荣格的心理学信念，是荣格分析心理学的基石，也是荣格为之而奋斗的一种理想。荣格曾经说：“建立在共时性原则基础上的思维方式，在《易经》中表现得最为充分，是中国思维方式的最集中的体现。而对于我们西方人来说，这种思维方式，从赫拉克利特之后，便在哲学史上消失，只是在莱布尼兹那里出现过一些低微的回声。”在这种意义上，荣格说，《易经》正好适合于分析心理学发展的需要。

自荣格以来，几乎所有的分析心理学家，都对《易经》情有独钟。《易经》与心理分析和分析心理学，建立了深厚的关系；众多的分析心理学家，都从《易经》中获得了深刻的启发，并且将这种深刻的启发，发挥为其心理分析的实践。

五、爱诺思与《易经》

“爱诺思”^{*} 这个名字在西方具有东方的象征性意义，因为从其孕育和产生之日起，她便与中国文化，尤其是《易经》，结下了不解的渊源。爱诺思的创始人奥尔加·弗罗贝-卡普泰因夫人（Olga Froebe-Kapteyn），最初正是由于对《易经》的兴趣，邀请一些著名的汉学家或《易经》学者聚会，如理查德·维尔海姆（Richard Wilhelm）、鲁道夫·奥图（Rudolf Otto）和卡尔·荣格等，为爱诺思的发展奠定了基础。每年都要举行的“爱诺思圆桌研讨会”，早已成为国际上东-西方文化交流的重要活动。

正式的爱诺思圆桌研讨会开始于 1933 年，卡普泰因曾邀请荣格在 1934 年的爱诺思圆桌研讨会上，专门介绍《易经》的心理学意义。从 1933 年至 50 年代初，荣格几乎每年都要出席“爱诺思圆桌研讨会”，并且每次都是该系列圆桌研讨会的核心人物。因此，在瑞士苏黎士荣格研究院建立之前，爱诺思也就成了分析心理学的大本营。同时，《易经》与心理分析，《易经》的心理学意义，以及其深远的文化意义，一直是爱诺思东西方文化圆桌研讨会的主旋律。

卡普泰因夫人的继承者，担任爱诺思基金会主席近 40 年的利策玛（R. Ritsema）博士，同时也花了 40 余年的心血，从心理学的角度来研究易经，完成了影响深远的《周易》——“爱诺思易经版本”，一种独特的易经心理分析。

利策玛博士认为，《易经》充满灵性，充满了深刻的心理学意义，包含着目前西方深度潜意识心理学以及分析心理学的深刻道理。他说：“《易经》中包含着荣格所描述的原型力量。这种力

^{*} 爱诺思（Eranos）：国际著名基金会，欧洲东-西方文化研究中心，位于瑞士阿斯科纳。

量代表了生命的变化以及其意义的体验、规律或道。”^⑭利策玛曾经这样来介绍他们所翻译和注解的《易经》：“我们这部书是把富有灵性的《易经》，作为一种心理学的工具。”利策玛认为：“《易经》填补了当代心理学研究的一个重要缺口”。他们的翻译与工作，是要把《易经》中的心理学根源，复兴为一种活生生的心理学实践。表现与发挥《易经》中的心理学意义，也正是爱诺思《易经》版本的最大特色。

利策玛与斯提芬·卡赫（Stephen Karcher）合作，1989年以《爱诺思年鉴》的形式，发表了爱诺思《易经》的第一版，并且为其取名为：《周易：包罗万象的启迪》。接下来几年的爱诺思圆桌研讨会，基本上都是集中于对该《易经》版本的研讨，国际间著名的分析心理学家以及易经学者，频频聚会于爱诺思，共同研究爱诺思的《易经》版本，共同探讨《易经》中所包含的心理学意义。通过这些研讨，通过一种集体性的工作，也大大地改进与完善了爱诺思《易经》版本的内容与形式。1994年，英国基础出版公司又重新出版了爱诺思的《易经》，将其定名为：《周易：中国的经典，变化的启示》。

我们曾经几度访问爱诺思，并且在爱诺思圆桌研讨会上做关于《易经》和中国文化心理学的报告，同时也深为众多分析心理学家对《易经》的执著与热情所感动。在1998年“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”上，有10余位西方心理学家所提交的大会论文，都是关于《易经》与心理学或心理分析的。^⑮我们希望，通过“《周易》与心理学”，或者是“《易经》与心理分析”的主题，能够反映出中国文化心理学的意义，能够通过中国文化心理学，来促进当代心理学的发展，尤其是促进东一西方整合性心理学的发展。

参考文献

- ①李光地纂（刘大钧整理），周易折中，成都：巴蜀书社，1998. 955, 247，8，3
- ②周易正义，十三经注疏，北京：中华书局，1987. 82，2
- ③礼记正义，十三经注疏，北京：中华书局，1987. 1673
- ④程颐，程氏易传，见：郑万耕主编，易学精华，北京：北京出版社，1996. 627
- ⑤参见张立文（主编），心，北京：中国人民大学出版社，1996. 25
- ⑥毛诗正义，十三经注疏，北京：中华书局，1987. 296
- ⑦尚书正义，十三经注疏，北京：中华书局，1987. 162
- ⑧论语注疏，十三经注疏，北京：中华书局，1987. 2461
- ⑨朱熹（注），周易，上海：上海古籍出版社，1996. 145
- ⑩王弼，老子注，诸子集成，北京：中华书局，1993. 32
- ⑪Wilhelm R. , Baynes. The I Ching. New Jersey: Princeton University Press. 1967. PP. xvi - xvii
- ⑫Jung C G, Wilhelm R. The Secret of the Golden Flower. New York: Causeway Books, 1975. 141，141，144
- ⑬保罗·戴维斯，上帝与新物理学，长沙：湖南科学技术出版社，1994. 76
- ⑭Ritsema R. I Ching The Classic Chinese Oracle of Change. London: Element Books Ltd. 1994. 8 - 15
- ⑮高岚、李群，分析心理学与中国文化，学术研究，1999; (2): 34 - 36

附英文摘要：

I Ching and Chinese Cultural Psychology

Shen Heyong Gao Lan

(Department of Psychology, South China Normal University, Guangzhou, 510631)

Abstract

In the tradition of Chinese culture, I Ching has been called the “top of all the classics”, and “the origin of the Great Dao.” The historians of psychology today take China as the first homeland of psychology. They are realizing that in the tradition of Chinese culture, there are embraced rich psychological thoughts and special psychological system. Therefore, we will take I Ching as the foundation, through analyzing the heart character (Xin) in the I Ching, the meaning of the Chinese character heart in the Great Commentaries, and the symbolic meaning of heart in the hexagrams, to elaborate the meaning of Chinese Cultural Psychology, and its influence to the contemporary Western psychology.

Key words: I Ching, analytical psychology, Chinese cultural psychology

道与荣格的心路历程

大卫·罗森*

我长期以来深受道家思想的吸引，当我第一次读《老子》的时候，我觉得他是在对我说话。实际上，我第一次阅读荣格的时候，也有同样的体验。后来，我逐渐发现荣格自己在其很早的时候，便已经具有了道家的生活态度。当我把自己这两种重要的兴趣结合在一起的时候，当我意识到他们实际上是汇入了同一条河流的时候，我的《荣格之道》也就开始孕育了。

《荣格之道》是关于荣格心理整合之途径的，但实际上也反映了我自己的心路历程。这样的一种工作注定是要带有个人色彩的。我选择去苏黎士写这本书，在到达那里之后，我偶然读到荣格的一封信，其中一段俨然是荣格在对我说话：

“……简朴而顺其自然。你无须预测，但是能够回顾。世界上并没有‘如何’来生活，我们只是每天生活着……然而，你似乎很难不变得复杂，很难去做手边简单的事情……所以，从你自尊的高峰降下来吧，倾听自己最基本的感受。这就是你的路。”

在我到达苏黎士当天的夜里，我做了一个令人难忘的梦：

* 大卫·罗森（David Rosen）：美国荣格心理分析家，德州 A&M 大学荣格心理教授。

“我在一处看起来像是瑞士高山牧场的地方，身旁有一个女人。我从不认识这个女人，但她看起来像是我的朋友。远处的下方，是一个山区村落，有一条小河穿流而过。山上有一条滑索直接通往村落，但是我没有乘坐，而是与那女人一起，慢步走下山坡。”

在这个梦中，那位女人代表了我的创造性缪斯，阿尼玛，或者说是我的灵魂。这梦也表现了道的启示，它引导我，并且在我女性心灵的陪伴下，缓慢而自然地走向那山路。

荣格指出，梦是永恒的创造源泉：自性（或道）所传递给我们的消息。因而，我的梦也确认了我独自去苏黎士撰写《荣格之道》的决定。本来，我曾经希望我的妻子陪我一起做这次旅行，但是她没有同意。这也可以理解，因为她有着自己的事业和所要参与的事情。不过，我的决定，以及我执意前往的决心，促成了一种危机的出现。我的妻子是不希望我去的。她认为这是一种对家庭不负责任的行为。我感到很伤心，特别是因为我的三个女儿被牵扯到这种争论中。同时我也想，这种争吵不过是我们之间以前经常出现的“雷阵雨”，事后也就会烟消云散的；而一段时间的离别，还会使我们变得更加亲密。我知道有一位同事，也是利用休年假的时间，最近一个人去了澳大利亚。他的妻子选择留下来做自己的事情，但他们的婚姻似乎变得比原来还好。当时，我所面临的是这样的一种情况：一种深层的神秘力量，正在引导我跨越太平洋，去做一种研究，来撰写这本书。我只知道我喜欢这样一种研究，它是一种真正属于自我探索的研究。我几乎不知道，当我踏上这一旅途的时候，我就要面临我一生中最有意义的死亡与重生的体验。道早已昭示：我的“寂然而动”的旅程，将是一种持久的孤独。

我搬去了靠近苏黎士的一个新的住所。那是一个电工的首层房间，位于 Bassersdorf 的一个小村庄。当我知道由于原来租这房

间的人去了东方旅行，所以可以空出来出租的时候，顿时感到一种意外和惊奇。房间的客厅里，一半是东方装饰，一半是瑞士气氛。我告诉这位出租房子的人，我要撰写一部关于荣格和道的书，并且同样要旅行到东方，或者说神游东方，因而我大部分时间都会在这房间里。来到苏黎士的第一周至 10 天左右，发生了非常奇怪的事情。现在我意识到那是一种对未来事件的预兆。我感觉到我自己几乎是快要死了。我以为是我的心脏发生了问题，因为常有疼痛，有时会出现难以忍受的疼痛——尤其是这疼痛一直延伸到了我的左臂。通过朋友的帮助，我去看一位瑞士的内科医生。他为我做了检查，并且做了心电图，结果都是正常的。医生认为疼痛可能来自左颈部的旧伤。这说明就我的身体情况而言，并没有什么生命危险；但是，接着也就表现出，我要从心理上经历一种死亡体验。当时，我并没有充分意识到，这种自身生活危机的个人体验，将如何影响我的研究，如何使我更敏感于展现荣格的生活危机。

我身体复原之后，便即刻去拜访玛莉·路易·冯·弗兰兹（Marie Louis von Franz）和梅尔（C. A. Meier）——两位倍受尊重的荣格分析家，荣格的长期同事。从某种程度上说，他们比大部分活着的荣格学者，都更了解荣格及其心理学。我分别问他们俩，他们认为荣格是道家吗？冯·弗兰兹这样回答：“是的，荣格崇尚道家，并且身体力行于道家哲学的生活方式。”对此梅尔也表示赞同，他说：“是的，荣格是一位道家。现在，人们并没有认识到荣格的对立统一性心理学，从其本质上说与道家思想是一致的。人们想把荣格变成他本来并不是那样的存在。他扎根于自然及其对立与统一之中。然而，对于道家，他是如此的虔诚，如此的神往，荣格作为道家是再清楚不过了。”他们的言论使我获得了信心，我知道我所选择的道路是对的。

当我最初开始探索荣格的世界（他的生活和心理学），及其

与道家思想的联系的时候，我并不能充分地体会这两者是如何密切地反映着我自己的内在本性。后来体会到了，是我访问了波林根（Bollingen）的时候。那曾经是我 30 年的期望，当我 19 岁读了荣格的《回忆·梦·思考》之后，便开始期待有那么一天访问波林根。在那里，我能够看得见，和感觉得到荣格如何使自己与其心灵和自然和谐一致。在波林根，我感受到了孤独的祝福；我体验到了这片与世隔绝的土地所特有的宁静。对于荣格来说，由石头砌成的波林根塔楼，及其众多的雕刻与石像，起着一种超越性的作用。在最初建成的那栋塔楼里，荣格在其睡床的上方，绘制了一个巨大的曼荼罗，一种东方性的，带有西藏色调的道家的曼荼罗。白色的光从四面八方汇集到中心，第一圈有 12 个圆环，第二圈有 24 个圆环，所有的一切都笼罩于一种海天一色的背景中，外圈的四周是红色的，展现出一种火焰的感觉。这个曼荼罗代表着道家神光（《金花的秘密》）的概念，源自于水（阴／女性）和火（阳／男性）的结合。

亚菲（Aniela Jaffe）是非常理解荣格的人，他认为荣格在波林根是在表现他自己的本性。

“在这里，荣格以对自然的情感来表现自己，以一种在库斯纳赫特所不能表现的方式表现着自己。这是真正地扎根于属于他自己的土壤，与整个天空和大地交流……但是，还有一个东西，赋予波林根以其特有的禀性，那就是寂静。荣格是一位伟大的寂静者……对于荣格来说，使自己沉浸在一种深刻的内省状态是十分必要的，这是其内在活力的根源。创造性的思想就在这内外的沉寂中形成。”

撰写这本书（《荣格与道》）改变了我自己。我现在沉静得多了，更向往于自然的生活。在那没有收音机和电视机 7 个月的期间，我认识了 Bassersdorf 的小溪，熟悉了附近的山路；我与小鸟、树木和石头成了朋友。我撰写俳句体的诗，作为对自然和创

造的沉思。

我希望这本书除了告诉读者关于道家思想和荣格心理学之外，还能够启发和引导读者去整合阴（接受与女性）和阳（主动和男性）的力量与原则，促成一种更加和谐与平静的生活方式。我们大家都知道，这对于我们所面临的充满狂躁和压力的世界是非常需要的。荣格的心理学，如同道家的思想一样，包含着使意识自我和个人的存在，听从于自性和道的意义。那将是一种超然的存在，一种返朴归真的本性，一种永恒的道。

当我全身心投入撰写此书的旅程的时候，我才意识到注定要体验一种孤独。“孤独”（alone）一词起源于“独一无二”（alone）。那是一种整体的归一。除此之外，若是没有这种体验，我又如何知道我本来与自然、河流，以及道是一体的呢？于是，在瑞士，我与我的缪斯一起，开始了漫长的旅程。

不管怎么说，与家庭分离半年多的时间，是一种很大的牺牲。但是，牺牲在其深层的意义上意味着“使其神圣”。这项工作证明是一个转折点。其中的关键，曾经是，现在仍然是，在充满危机的山峰之间的黑暗峡谷中，寻获那中间的道路（老子和荣格都是这样做的），以更加完整地置身于光明之中。于是，这里也就包含着道的神秘与启迪：做出牺牲，听从于永恒完整之道。

卡尔·荣格的生活及其心理学显示着道的意义和作用。他对于心灵之自然世界的描述，与道家所描述的自然界是相似的。这两种哲学的本质是对立面的统一，也即导向整体的道家阴阳原则。

荣格，作为一个西方人，一直生活在许多东方传统的内向精神世界中。同时，他也没有放弃他所出生与生长的外向世界。他一直追求在西方的男性模式与东方的女性模式之间能够融会贯通。

荣格曾经是弗洛伊德的追随者，脱离弗洛伊德实际上是他生

活中的严重危机。中国人用两个汉字来表达“危机”：包含着“危险”和“机会”。道促使荣格走出危险（死亡）和机会（重生）的弯曲山谷，最终成为更加完整的个人。

《荣格之道》由两部分组成，每一部分包含三个章节。第一部分涵盖荣格生活的前三个阶段（从出生到与弗洛伊德的分裂），以汉字“危”的古体寓意为基础。

第二部分集中在荣格生活的最后三个阶段（中年危机的解决到荣格去世），以汉字“机”为基础。

本书共有六章，每一章都围绕着荣格生命和生活发展阶段的某一特殊危机。在每一章中，对于所面临的危机的解决，都联系到了荣格心理学的发展和道家思想的原则。作为引论部分的目的，可以看做是本书的第 7 个部分，是要让被许多人称之为黑暗、神秘和深奥的卡尔·荣格的生活，透出必要的光亮。我们将会看到，事实上当荣格去世的时候，他的生命是光明的，处于与道的和谐之中。

荣格的生活，分作六个部分，表现出一个中文的卦象。上卦为“危”，属于本书前三章的内容。在此我将作简要的介绍。

第一章，“朝阳与青春：成为独立的个体”。包含着从 1875 年荣格出生到他的早期学校生活这一阶段，潜意识的道家思想所起的作用。即使是在这时期，我们都可以看到荣格所表现出来的独特性。这一开始性的阶段，可用第一个汉字“危”的第一个部分“个”来表示。荣格当时所面临的危险，与许多年轻人所面临的危险一样，是他不能表现出其真正的自我。很幸运，我能够追溯荣格开始其自我实现的途径。荣格的心路历程，使我得以在荣格心理学中的自性概念和道之间进行比较，并且在此基础上揭示意识自我（一个人的身份认同）或“意识的核心”从自性与道中出现的过程。

第二章，“青春期到精神医师：荣格早期危机的解决”。讨论

荣格青春期的经历，大学生活，以及从医学院毕业（1900 年）和选择精神医师的职业。“悬崖”的象征，汉字“危”的第二部分，正好可以表现荣格青春期和成年早期的“早年危机”。正是在这一关键的时期，荣格的父亲去世，形成了“父亲情结”（也即一个人与父亲的冲突或问题）的阶段，以及与某一位长者一起解决这一问题的需要。若是使用荣格心理学的术语来表述的话，那么这一阶段集中在人格角色、阴影和情结形成等问题上。我们对与此有关的道家思想原则、人格、面具和影子等，也进行了讨论。

第三章为“弗洛伊德时代：荣格中年危机的出现”。荣格在 1900 年初次阅读弗洛伊德的《梦的解析》，但是到 1903 年才对这一杰出的著作有了全面的理解。1906 年，荣格给弗洛伊德寄去了他的《诊断性联想研究》，开始了两人之间的通讯联系。荣格与弗洛伊德都信奉这样一种革命性的观念，那就是精神病症状与心理失调的种种表现，都是可以理解的，从而也都是具有意义的。荣格在 1907 年访问了弗洛伊德，他当时 32 岁，弗洛伊德 51 岁。到 1908 年的时候，荣格已经成为弗洛伊德热心的追随者，后者的年龄足可以作为他的父亲。弗洛伊德把荣格作为精神分析的“皇太子”，作为他的继承者。然而，经历了在理论与观点上不同见解的几次争论之后，荣格在 1913 年与弗洛伊德分道扬镳。包含着荣格分析心理学思想的《无意识心理学》（1912 年，后来改名为《转化的象征》）一书的出版，促成了荣格与弗洛伊德的分裂。同样在 1913 年，荣格辞去了他在苏黎士大学的教授职务。汉字“危”的第三部分，是一种谨慎回应的象形。其特点是小心而缓慢地迈步，使得自己不至于丢失身份。这时，荣格开始面对自己消极的父亲情结，以及其人格中虚伪的一面。1913 年 12 月，荣格解决了一次自杀危机，采取了“自我消失”（象征性的死亡），选择新的生活，而不是自我损毁，摧残自己。换句话说，

荣格必须消除那种与弗洛伊德联系在一起的自我形象与认同。值得注意的是，在他们分手之前，弗洛伊德曾经表示担心荣格试图杀死他。然而，真正要杀死的是荣格的虚假自我，也即他意识中认同为弗洛伊德学者的自我。在这一章中，我们也讨论了道家以及荣格理论中的宽容性原则。

汉字“危机”之中的“机”，涉及到后面三章的内容。

第四章主要讨论“创造性的病患：荣格中年危机的解决”。

1913 年与弗洛伊德分裂之后，38 岁的荣格陷入了深度的抑郁，陷入了集体无意识的深渊。荣格曾产生关于以利亚（Elijah）的视象（该视象后来转化为积极的菲利门精神性形象和被称为 Ka 的一种邪恶表现），以及失明的萨洛米（Salome）视象。当时，荣格显然并不清楚他的女性的一面，正如他与其两位病人，莎比娜（Sabina Spielrein）和托尼（Toni Wolff）工作时所表现的那样。然而，通过对其前意识自我或虚假自我象征性的死亡体验之后，荣格经历了其真正自我的重生。1916 年，为了纪念这一经历与体验，荣格撰写了神秘的，带有道家色彩的文论《向死者的七次布道》。接着，他完成了其心理学纲要性的重要著作：《关于分析心理学的两篇论文》（1917 年）和《心理类型》（1921 年）。《心理类型》一书中包含着许多关于道家哲学的引注，在这里，荣格首次正式引入道家的核心概念，也即对立双方的整合与和谐；道家的这一核心思想成为荣格心理学最重要的基础。1922 年，荣格 47 岁的时候，买下了波林根的地产。具有重要意义的是，1923 年在其母亲去世之后，荣格开始在波林根建造第一座塔楼。正如汉字“机”的第一部分所表示的，象征树的木字旁，荣格在那里扎根以图发展。建造波林根的塔楼，本身是一种深远的积极想像的工作，有助于荣格解脱其消极的母亲情结。当荣格与弗洛伊德分裂之后，他经历了沉痛的牺牲（意识自我的死亡），这种牺牲需要在其心理世界建造一处神圣的空间。在其生命的这一关

键时刻，智慧老人的原型清晰而生动地在荣格内心出现。在这一章中，道家之弃伪绝智、虚怀若谷的原则也得到了讨论。

第五章为“东西方的整合：荣格晚年危机的出现”，表现了荣格整合自己心灵的更为谨慎的努力。通过其阿尼玛（其心灵中的女性层面），荣格感悟了其自性，促进了其人格超越性的整合。而这一过程与荣格对于东西方观点的整合正好一致。汉字“機”的第二部分，正是一线贯穿两组茧卵，象征着孕育与整合。茧卵孵化会变成蝴蝶，具有女性、灵魂和转化的象征意义。荣格心理学中的阿尼玛概念，或者是灵魂概念，接近于道家“阴”的范畴，表示夜晚与女性。阿尼玛与阴性的相似，以及“自性”与“道”的相似，激发了荣格对中国哲学与灵性的兴趣。荣格在 52 岁的时候，开始与理查德·维尔海姆合作，评论中国古代道家经典《太乙金华密旨》。

在纳粹时期，尽管荣格仍然有大量的学术与专业著作出版，但不幸的是，他偏离了“道”。心理的盲目性使得荣格陷入了潜意识情结以及强大阴影的影响与控制之中，导致了一些耐人寻味的错误的发生。1935 年，60 岁的荣格撰写了关于《西藏大解脱书》（The Tibetan Book of the Great Liberation）的评论，这表示他重新返回了其东方之路。四年后，当荣格充分认识到纳粹残忍事实的时候——他自己也被列入了黑名单，著作被焚烧——他撰写了对《西藏死亡书》的评论（1939 年），并且为铃木大拙的《佛教禅学导论》一书作序（1939 年）。1944 年秋天，荣格 69 岁的时候遭遇了一次心脏病（同时也是一次心灵的冲击），几乎濒临死亡，同时也获得了以宽恕为基础的真正治愈的可能性。

本书的最后一部分，也即题为“晚霞与回归自性：荣格晚年危机的解决”的第六章，代表了荣格回归整合的永恒之路。荣格 1947 年退休，那时他已经 72 岁，大部分时间都是在波林根的塔楼度过。三年后，他为维尔海姆翻译的《易经》英译本撰写了序

言。1951 年，荣格发表了他对于“共时性”的研究。1955 年，荣格 80 岁的时候，他的妻子去世。荣格随后撰写了《曼荼罗》以及巨著《感通之秘》（Mysterium Coniunctionis），在波林根完成了意义深远的工作，以及其石头中的积极想像。在其生命的最后几年，荣格终于获得了心灵与自然之间的和谐。当他 84 岁的时候，他开始与亚菲（Aniela Jaffe）一起完成他的自传《回忆·梦·思考》。汉字“機”的第三部分，象征意识自我与自性（以及自己与自性）的一种轴形，其间有守卫者（“機”字“戍”形的一部分）看护着意识及觉悟的疆界，正如荣格退隐于波林根塔楼。

孔子，曾受老子（《道德经》的作者）的影响，认为有三种普遍的德性：勇气、智慧与仁爱。像荣格在其自性化概念中所表达的那样，孔子相信，作为个体的善若不能服务于社会，仍然是不全面的。荣格通过其工作与贡献，实现了孔子所强调的“德”的内涵。然而，在其生命的最后阶段，荣格转向并且实践着道家的德性：知足、觉悟与平静，他知道惟有通过自然无为始可获得与拥有这些德性。最后，荣格认识到必须放弃意识自我的固执，返归完全整合的自性，也即那伟大而永恒之路——“道”。

本书将如何帮助我们的现实生活

在西方，由于缺乏生活的目的与信心，人们愈来愈表现出沮丧与灰心，陷入精神的危机，并且试图寻找意义。神圣地球乃至人类心灵污染的加剧，暴力的急速膨胀，正直与诚实的消失，都是这种伦理危机的证据。正如我们所讨论的，在汉语中，总是有两个汉字来同时表示英文的“危”意，也即“危”与“机”。于是，即使是在最困难的时刻，也有创造性发展出现的可能。道家哲学以及荣格心理学都提出了危机之中出现创造性转变的可能，但这种创造性转变的责任则存在于我们每个人自身。道家哲学与荣格心理学还这样认为，惟有通过一种我们内在心灵的转化，我们才能真正以某种成熟与灵性的方式来改变我们自己与社会。

在西方，人们对荣格心理学的兴趣在不断增加，同时，对于东方思想与价值的向往也在继续。道家哲学作为东方灵性思想的一个分支，正在深入人心。道家经典《道德经》，是世界上继《圣经》之后被最广泛翻译的著作。那么人们为什么对荣格心理学与道家哲学同时萌发兴趣呢？我认为正是由于它们触及到了我们心灵的危机，以及我们生活的意义。

《道德经》一书由老子完成于公元前 6 世纪。老子与孔子同代而略长于后者（公元前 6 ~ 5 世纪）。《道德经》从更古老的《易经》（又被译为《变化之书》）中吸取了道家的智慧，而《易经》则被认为至少又远于公元前 6 世纪千余年之久。“道”被翻译为大写与特定的“道路”，“德”被描述为“完善”，而“经”则被翻译为“经典”，于是，《道德经》也就意味着“完善之路的经典”。对道家来说，它既是一部哲学著作也是一部宗教著作。公元前 4 ~ 3 世纪，庄子（Chuang Tzu，有时在西文的发音注为 Chuang Tsu）发挥与普及了老子的道家思想。

2500 年之后，荣格心理学的发展在许多方面都与道家思想相吻合。这在荣格与维尔海姆合著的《金花的秘密》（1929 年）一书中得到了清楚的反映。我们也可以通过下面的一些例子来了解道家与荣格心理学的一致性：由阴一阳、暗一明、阴影一面具、邪恶一善良，以及女性一男性等所表现的对立世界；母性作为世界万物起源的思想；《易经》与“共时性”，以及道与自性；完善之路与自性化等。

荣格曾经这样说：“道家形成了具有普遍性的心理学原则……最大而又几乎不可逾越的困难，在于用什么样的方式与途径，引导人们去获得那不可缺少的心理体验，能够正视与面对潜在的真理。这种真理是统一的，并且具有一致性。我只能这样说，道家是我所知道的对这一真理最完美的表达。”（《荣格书信集》第一卷，第 560 页）

道家哲学既反映在荣格的著作里，也体现在荣格的生活中。荣格离开了弗洛伊德意识自我主导的个人潜意识世界，投入到心灵深处的集体无意识之中。荣格面对面地接触了自己的阴影，沟通了他内在的智慧老人和阿尼玛（灵魂），并且通过与自性的联系经历了一种真正的转化。他摆脱了他“弗洛伊德派荣格”的虚假自我，使自己真正的自我得以出现。荣格通过分析自己的梦，退隐于孤独，亲历心灵体验，以及通过绘画、书写、雕刻以及建筑波林根的塔楼来发掘积极想像等，实现了沉浸于自然心灵世界的全面接触。在本书中，我采用其著作与书信中的轶事、警言与段落，以及他的艺术作品，来阐述道家的神秘是如何引导荣格成长与发展的。

虽然与弗洛伊德分手之后，荣格几乎陷入了绝望的状态，但是他也在集体无意识的黑暗与混沌之中看到了某种自性之光。经历一种超越性的过程，荣格获得了转机；他度过了空虚的低谷与深渊，开始了其具有方向与目标的生活的新阶段。

《荣格与道》把心性作为心理学的最基本范式。荣格分析心理学的根本任务是自性化，一种整体性发展的过程，正如道家所主张的超越对立的统一。荣格心理学的基本原则也能反映出道家的基本思想：降低意识自我的位置，恢复人性自我的本来面目，回归道之永恒之路。

本书提供了一种沟通东方与西方心理观的途径；同时，也反映出古代的道家智慧以及荣格心理学如何能够帮助与促进人们获得心灵的统一性。

《荣格与道》并不是一部标准的传记，不是关于荣格心理学的学术性论著，也不是具体的心理分析的教科书。但是，读者通过阅读本书的体验，可以很好地接触荣格与道。通读全书，将能反映出荣格心理学（以及自性化过程）在本质上与道家的自身完善是一致的。两者都放弃对于意识自我的固执，而回归自性与道。

《荣格与道》所揭示的主题是，我们也可以放弃对于意识自我的固执，面对我们的阴影，跟随内在心灵的指引。像荣格那样，我们也能学习如何接受道及其存在，顺应内在生命的自然节律；我们甚至可以摆脱极端与过分的偏执，而采取一种中庸的态度；我们还可以听从于自然对于完善的呼唤。荣格的生活与工作，表明了一个人如何能够实现这些目标；同时也表明，我们每个人都可以通过自己的方式开始这种自性化的过程。拥有谦逊的自我以及真正的自性，我们可以重新承担起创造性的人生；从此我们的生命不仅是为了我们自己，同时也是为了大地母亲，为了整个人类大家庭。

《庄子》·养生·气功

曹础基

养生论在《庄子》中占有重要的地位。书中有一篇《养生主》，谈的是广义的养生，主要是人生处世之道，而不仅是保养身心。但对身心的保养也是至关重要的。篇中讲了大家所熟悉的庖丁解牛的故事。这个故事的表层意义是解牛，中层意义是养生，深层意义是得道。故文惠君听了庖丁的自述后，说“善哉！吾闻庖丁之言，得养生焉”。庖丁解牛轻巧自然，如歌如舞，而关键在于“依乎天理”，“因其固然”，养生之道也不外如此。庖丁开头就说：“臣之所好者道也，进乎技矣。”表明他的志趣不在解牛而在得道。他的解牛也正是体现了道。“依乎天理”、“因其固然”就是自然之道的运用。这个故事就足以表现庄子学说的不同层次：道是物理（万物之理，这是一种哲学层次，而不限于今天物理学的层次）之学，养生是性命之学，解牛是技艺之学。

可见，《庄子》作者在他养生时，主要是从哲学上、政治上以及人生处世上说明如何达到保身、全生、免害的目的。当然，从生理、心理、医学的角度上，亦不乏微言要义。

与传统的中医理论一样，作者的养生论是以阴阳学说为纲的。他认为阴阳是必须服从的：“父母于子，东西南北，唯命之从。阴阳于人，不翅于父母。”（《大宗师》）对人来说，阴阳调和为佳，

阴阳不和为病。阴阳是否调和，包括了三个方面：一是生活环境，二是生理状态，三是自身与环境的关系。从生活环境说：

阴阳和静，鬼神不扰，四时得节，万物不伤，群生不夭。（《缮性》）

阴阳不和，寒暑不时，以伤庶物。（《渔父》）

外界的阴阳变化，人是无能为力的。人的养生主要在于调节自身的阴阳关系，并使之与环境相适应。因为“离外刑者，金木讯之，离内刑者，阴阳食之。”（《列御寇》）阴阳对人体的侵害是一种自身内部的刑罚，而且这不是一般的刑罚，而是最惨重的刑罚：

兵莫惨于志，莫邪为下；寇莫大于阴阳，无所逃于天地之间。非阴阳贼之，心则使之也。（《庚桑楚》）

对身体危害最大的是心理上、精神上造成的阴阳不平衡，这是作者养生论的一个核心思想，书中屡屡言之。

事若不成则必有人道之患，事若成则必有阴阳之患。（《人间世》）

人大喜邪毗于阳，大怒邪毗于阴。阴阳并毗，四时不至，寒暑之和不成，其反伤人之形乎。（《在宥》）

成功失败都会令人产生得失之心，有了得失之患，则产生悲喜之情。过于悲或过于喜都会引起体内阴阳偏胜的现象。一个人的身体如果阴阳平衡，自然能自行调节以适应四时气候的变化。阴阳有所偏即失去平衡，严重者阴阳并毗，即阴阳俱虚，就会出现热时怕热，寒时畏寒，产生四时不适的感觉，与寒冬暑夏的天气不能调和。精神因素是如何影响生理变化、形成病机的呢？在《达生》篇中，作者以齐桓公“见鬼”为病的事进行了分析，指出：

公则自伤，鬼恶能伤公！夫忿瀦之气散而不反则为不足，上而不下则使人善怒，下而不上则使人善忘，不上不下，中身当心

则为病。

以为真的见鬼，心情紧张，引起心气愤急，扩散而不能收敛回复，以致体内气虚；气急上升而不下降则易生肝火而暴怒；下降而不上则中气不足，精神疲弊而善忘；聚结在中身当心处不散则会导致心机失调而病。佚文中亦谓“流脉并作为惊怖，阳气独上则为颠病”（《御览》七五二引）。这些都符合中医病理学原理。

按作者的提法，养生包括养形与养神两个方面。“养形必先以物”，讲营养等物质条件，这也是作者所认同的。但更重要的是“物有余而形不养者有之矣”！因为“人之所取畏者，衽席之上、饮食之间，而不知为之戒者”。（均见《达生》篇）衽席、饮食之事，是人的本能需要。然而不加节制，就会自取危害。“五味浊口，使口厉爽（病伤）”（《天地》）；“秋禽之肥，易牙和之，非不美也，彭祖以为伤寿，故不食也”。（佚文，《御览》八四九引）在对待养形方面的这些辩证观点都是十分珍贵的。枚乘《七发》开头一段“皓齿蛾眉，命曰伐性之斧；甘脆肥脓，命曰腐肠之药”等至理名言，中医在食色方面的一些禁忌，都是这些观点的继承与发扬。

作者养生论的主导方面是养神：

纯粹而不杂，静一而不变，淡而无为，动而以天行，此养神之道也（《刻意》）

这可视为作者养神的纲领。纯列恬淡，因顺自然，都旨在保持阴阳平衡。纯静而心神安定，体内阴阳协调，正气充沛，故“忧患不能入，邪气不能袭”；“其寝不梦，其觉无忧”动而以天行即“循天之理”，“静而与阴同德，动而与阳同波”，取得与周围环境协调，“故无天灾，无物累，天人非，无鬼责”。（均见于《刻意》）

如何实践这种养神之道来修养自己呢？作者提倡气功养生

法，这是作者养生之道的精髓。

气功在我国产生于什么时候，还没有足够的文献可以考定。根据郭沫若考证，战国初期的《行气玉佩铭》中，已有气功的记述。（见《天地玄黄》、《行气铭释文》）现存最古的医学经典《黄帝内经》，亦有气功的记载。（见《素问》、《上古天真论》、《遗篇刺法轮》）足以肯定，在二千多年以前，我国已有气功流行。但纵观先秦古籍，记载甚少，就是记了，也语焉不详。惟《庄子》一书例外，全书二十三篇，涉及气功的文字甚多。《齐物论》、《人间世》、《大宗师》、《应帝王》、《在宥》、《天地》、《天道》、《刻意》、《知北游》、《庚桑楚》、《徐无鬼》等篇都有描述。可以说《庄子》是现存的第一部记载气功的典籍。

气功有三要素——姿势、气息、意守，这在《庄子》中都有具体的描绘。

关于姿势的：

南郭子綦隐机而坐，仰天而嘘，荅焉似丧其耦（《齐物论》）

其容寂，其颡颥（《大宗师》）

堕肢体（《大宗师》）

身若槁木之枝（《庚桑楚》）

形若槁骸（《知北游》）

熊经鸟申（《刻意》）

除最后一项属导引之外，其余皆为静功。“荅焉”、“堕”是全然放松的表现；“寂”、“槁”是十分静寂的形态。“隐机而坐”以及《大宗师》中说到“坐忘”，表明取坐势为多。而这种坐势似乎比较随便自然，而非端坐，故可以“仰天而嘘”。

关于运气的记载比较简略：

合气于漠（《应帝王》）

纯气之守（《庚桑楚》）

欲静而平气（《庚桑楚》）

古之真人，……其息深深。真人之息以踵，众人之息以喉（《大宗师》）

吹响呼吸，吐故纳新（《刻意》）

最后一项是配合导引的吐纳法。其余全是静功的运气。作者认为运气是凝神、排除杂念、入静的手段。要入静就得平气，如何才能平气呢？“息以踵”，用脚跟进行呼吸，即把气引至脚跟（一般说经涌泉穴），上下往复运行。发展到后来，就形成了气功中的踵息法。

三要素中关于凝神、意守的记述最多：

其神凝（《逍遥游》）

吾丧我（《齐物论》）

心斋（《人间世》）

无视无听，抱神以静（《在宥》）

解心释神，莫然无魂（《在宥》）

忘汝神气（《天地》）

纯素之道，唯神是守（《刻意》）

心若死灰（《知北游》）

齐（斋）以静心（《知北游》）

卫生之经，能抱一乎（《庚桑楚》）

守神、抱神、抱一、凝神与解心释神、忘汝神气，看似相反，其实是统一的。一方面是精神活动的集中，集中在自身之中；另一方面是无心于外界的感触，排除环境的干扰。无视无听才能抱神以静，两者相反相成。不管抱神或释神，目的都是为了进入虚静的境界。虚静就是忘，不仅忘物，而且忘我：“齐（斋）三日，而不敢怀庆赏爵禄；齐五日，不敢怀非誉巧拙；齐七日，辄然忘吾有四枝形体也。”（《达生》）“参（三）日而后能外天下；已外天下矣，吾又守之，七日而后能外物；已外物矣，吾又守之，九日而后能外生；已外生矣，而后能朝彻；朝彻而后能见

独；见独而后能无古今；无古今而后能人于不死不生。”（《大宗师》）所谓三者、五日、七日、九日，并非实数，只是约略言之，说明练习入静悟道的过程、步骤，最后达到“心如死灰”的境界。作者曾借孔子之口说过：“夫哀莫大于心死，而人死亦次之。”（《田子方》）因此“心如死灰”并非真的“死”，只是心神“如”死灰一样，是一种异常静寂的状态，故曰“不生”。但静寂中“能朝彻”“能见独”；“无声之中，独见晓焉；无声之中，独闻和焉”，（《天地》）故曰“不死”。这就是介乎意与不意之间。

要达到“见独”，需要一个练习修养的过程。练习修养还得有方法，《人间世》所说的“心斋”就是一个具体的方法：

若一志，无听之以耳而听之以心；无听之以心而听之以气。听止于耳，心止于符。气也者，虚而待物者也。唯物集虚。虚者，心斋也。

这里的“听”即太极拳推手时“听劲”的“听”，不单指使用听觉，而是使用整个感觉。这段话不太好懂，我们试作如下意译：

你先使自己的意念专一，不要用耳朵去听而用心去感触；毋须再用心去感触而用神气去感触。耳朵停止了它的感觉，心神不与外界接触。神气是虚静地随物自然的，惟有道才能集结在这个虚静的境界中。这个虚静的境界就是心斋。

要使心神专一，必须首先排除外界的干扰。外界的刺激物是通过人体的视觉、味觉、嗅觉、触觉、听觉等引起人的脑神经活动的。人们做气功的时候，要排除视、味、嗅、触诸觉的干扰比较容易，最难排除的是听觉带来的干扰，四面八方的声响袭来，不由你不听。《庄子》作者不说“无视之以眼”“无嗅之以鼻”，而说“无听之以耳”，是突出了难点，实质上已概括了停止一切对外界的感触，使精神专一。精神集中到哪里呢？既然杜绝了对外界的感触，那么“听之以心”就是以意识对自身的感触，亦即

自我感觉。因为承上句“无听之以耳”而来，故不用“意”而用“听”。按照气功的一般规律，以意顺气，以意导气，感觉着自身体内气息的运行，意与气混然结合。等到体内气息的运行已经比较稳定的时候，也就无须着意去引导了，所以“无听之以心而听之以气”。“听之以气”表明连呼吸都毫不着意，处于自身神气的自然运行之中，所感觉到的只是气，也好像只是由气去感觉。耳不听，心无念，气运不息，就进入完全的虚静。

陈撄宁先生（原任中国道教协会会长，对道家学说及气功皆有精深研究）认为，“庄子这段话说的完全是静功的做法”，“为了达到这个‘静’的目的，古人曾立出许多法门，如数息、止观、持咒、结印、诵经、参公案、看话头、习禅定、心存丹田或眼观鼻端等等，虽不免有些宗教意味，但其主要作用仍在降伏自己的念头。这些法门有的以一念代替万念，有的着重于锻炼精神，大都不赞成绝对的无念。比较起来，我认为庄子的‘听息法’为最好。所谓听息法，就是听自己呼吸的气。这种听呼吸的方法是庄子书上的妙法。”（《气功精选·静功》）

入静只是静功的开始，而不是全过程。入静之后如何呢？《应帝王》篇记载了一个十分有意义的故事：郑国有个神巫叫季咸，能给人看相，预言人的生死、祸福，异常灵验。列子知道了，告诉他的老师壶子。壶子叫列子请季咸来给自己看相。下面作者是这样描写的：

明日，列子与之见壶子。出而谓列子曰：“嘻！子之先生死矣！弗活矣！不以旬数矣！吾见怪焉，见湿灰焉。”列子入，泣涕沾襟以告壶子。壶子曰：“乡吾示之以地文，萌乎不震不正，是殆见吾杜德机也。尝又与来。”明日，又与之见壶子。出而谓列子曰：“幸矣，子之先生遇我也，有瘳矣，全然有生矣！吾见其杜权矣！”列子入，以告壶子。壶子曰：“乡吾示之以天壤，名实不入，而机发于踵。是殆见吾善者机也。尝又与来。”明日。

又与之见壶子。出而谓列子曰：“子之先生不齐，吾无得而相焉。试齐，且复相之。”列子入，以告壶子。壶子曰：“吾乡示之以太冲莫胜，是殆见吾衡气机也。……尝又与来。”明日，又与之见壶子。立未定，自失而走。壶子曰：“追之！”列子追之不及。反以报壶子曰：“已灭矣，已失矣，吾弗及已！”壶子曰：乡吾示之以未始出吾宗。吾与之虚而委蛇，不知其谁何，因以为弟靡，因以为波流，故逃也。

故事写得很生动，有破除迷信的意义。季咸是个迷信职业者，招摇撞骗。他可能也懂得一点医学常识，通过望诊，看人的神色情态来推测、判断人的健康状况及身世遭遇等。壶子请他看相，把他捉弄一番，捉弄的办法就是运用气功使自己的神情变幻莫测。示之以“地文”，是入静的境界，看来好像杜塞了生机一般，亦即《齐物论》中说的形如“槁骸”，心如“死灰”，故季咸说“见湿灰焉”。示之以“天壤”是运气境界，这时“名实不入”，杂念已经排除，而“机发于踵”，以意导气，由脚跟而起，即《大宗师》说的“息以踵”，故季咸看到了生机。示之以“太冲莫胜”，即是守气的境界，体内阴阳平衡，气神藏而不露，像止水之渊那般平静，使季咸“无得而相”。示之以“未始出吾宗”，即入道的境界，这时由静转动。但这个动是忘我的动，不介入任何主观能动的因素，随其自然，如“波流”一样，“虚而委蛇”。这叫“同于大道”（《大宗师》）；“合于天伦”（《刻意》），是庄子静功中的最高境界，是季咸之流和一般人所无法企及、无法理解的。

这种静功有什么好处呢？作者说：“静默可以补病”（《则阳》），“必静必清，无劳汝形，无摇汝精，乃可以长生。”（《在宥》）一是治病，二是延年，这就是静功可以达到的效果。一个人之所以生病、短命，有外界的原因：风、寒、暑、湿、燥、火，中医称之为“六淫”；有自身的原因：喜、怒、忧、思、悲、

恐、惊，中医称之为“七情”；还有食色之类。外因与内因相比较，内因更为重要：

兵莫惨于志，莫邪为下；寇莫大于阴阳，无所逃于天地之间，非阴阳贼之，心则使之也。（《庚桑楚》）

这段话把一个人的心理对自身健康的影响说绝了。心志不和，阴阳失调，对于人的身体是莫大的伤害。静功能排除心头上干扰阴阳平衡的因素，使“万物莫足以挠（挠）心”（《天道》），使人体进入一种自然运动的状态，这叫“抱神以静，形将自正”（《在宥》），从而达到健康的目的。

《庄子》不是一本专门谈气功的书，就是上述谈到气功的地方，也主要不是谈气功的。在《刻意》中还看到作者对吐纳导引的批评：

吹响呼吸，吐故纳新，熊经鸟申，为寿而已矣。此道引之士，养形之人，彭祖寿考者之所好也。作者认为，“不导引而寿”才是理想的，这就得靠“天地之道，圣人之德。”上述的静功正是与这种道德相结合的。在天道的指导下做功，通过做功领悟天道，性命双修，这是庄子气功理论的最大特点。南宋年间绍兴有个严谷山人江袤曾经有过简略的阐述：

人知所以守息，则知所以养气；知所以养气，则知所以入道；知所以入道，则抱一禅定，固无殊致也。庄周言养形之士，吹响呼吸，此特其浅浅者耳。形神俱妙，盖本于袭气母。（见《南华真经本义·附录》卷六）

用虚无的观点指导更易于入静，入静之后通过自身的气功运动又反过来体会到虚静无为的哲理。做功是修养入道的缩影，修养入道是做功的扩大、延伸。所以抱一守道与禅定入静是一致的。上文引《达生》与《大宗师》说到三日、五日、七日、九日的修炼过程，即可以说是练功的过程，也可以说是人生修道的过程。因而《庄子》书中关于气功的论述是为论道、明道服务的。

今天，气功的科学性已被人们逐渐认识。《庄子》中的气功理论是祖国医学的一份重要遗产，我们应当深入发掘。正如陈撷宁说的：“庄子听呼吸法原为性命双修的基础，古今注《庄子》者，几乎没有一个把这层工夫全部明白开示于后学，他们多数是由于不懂，少数是出于保密，遂致此法埋没两千余年，几乎灭绝。这是道家学说的优秀遗产之一，应该发扬继承下来。若仅用以疗病，似乎未尽其用，老年人如有条件，在闲暇时，可进一步深造，探讨这一门高深的修养学术。”（见《气功精选·静功》）

老子对人类的贡献

张粹然^{*}

老子姓李名耳，字伯阳，谥曰聃，后人称他为老聃。根据《史记·老子列传》记载，他和孔子同代。他生于周灵王初年，约为公元前 570 年。《史记》说他活了一百岁，“或言二百余岁”。老子生长于中国文化最发达的春秋战国时期。在诸子百家中，他的知识面最广，对人生的理解也较深。因为他曾做过周朝的史官，掌握的历史资料较多，所以大家认为他所作的《道德经》论述的面既宽且深，代表中国古代哲学思想的精髓。过去在 1995 年及 1996 年，我曾经在两次国际学术会上发表过《评老子的人格观》的论文。现在，我想进一步全面论述老子的学术思想，以期从较广的范围和国内外同行商讨。

一、老子对宇宙本源的认识

根据《道德经》第二十五章的记载：“有物混成，先天地生。寂兮寥兮，独立而不改，周行而不殆，可以为天下母。吾不知其名，字之曰道。强为之名曰大。”那么，什么是道呢？《道德经》第一章：“道貌岸然可道，非常道。”第二十一章：“道之为物，

^{*} 张粹然：成都大学心理学教授。

惟恍惟惚。恍兮惚兮，其中有象；惚兮恍兮，其中有物；窈兮冥兮，其中有精；其精甚真，其中有信。”第十四章还补充说：“其上不皁，其下不昧，绳绳兮不可名，复归于无物，是谓无状之状，无物之象，是谓恍惚。”他的这些话就在全面地说明“道就是宇宙的本源”，是茫茫无涯际、不可称说，而又空虚无形的一种状态。这种没有形状、没有物体的形象就叫做“恍惚”。

二、宇宙的来源

老子在《道德经》第四十二章中说：“道生一，一生二，二生三，三生万物。”道本来就如老子所说为“无状之状，无物之象”（《道德经》第十四章）。这和当代宇宙起源论从混沌状态逐渐演化的学说极其相似，也正是《道德经》第一章和第十四章先后所描述的“无，名天地之始；有，名万物之母”及“天下万物生于有，有生于无”。在“恍惚混沌”，逐渐变化的阶段，也称之为“无”；在其中已表现出“有、象、有物、有精、有信”阶段，他便称他们为“有”。这样，宇宙才又逐渐从“有”而产生万物。他的宇宙起源论的学说比西方要早两千多年，是值得称道的。

三、宇宙中万事万物以及人事运行的规律都以“道”为最高准则

老子说：“人法地，地法天，天法道，道法自然。”“孔德之容，惟道是从。”（《道德经》第二十五章及二十一章）前者说明“道”依据自然法则，影响着万事万物以及人类；后者说明大德之人的仪容，是遵从“道”的。他在《道德经》第五十一章中又说：“道生之，德畜之”，“长之育之，亭之毒之，养之覆之，生而不有，为而不恃，长而不宰，是谓玄德。”这说明“道”产生万物，“德”抚养万物，使万物成长、发育、稳定、成熟。“道”使万物生长而不据为己有，对万物有所作为而不自恃有恩，使万物滋养成长而不加以主宰，这便叫做深远的道德。老子还在《道

德经》第三十四章中说：“大道泛兮，其可左右，万物恃之而生，而不辞；功成不名有，衣养万物而不为主。”这就是说，大道像水一样漫溢，周流于万物左右，使它们依靠它生长而不推辞，成功了却不居功，护养万物而不作它们的主宰。这些章节都说明天地万物和人类都受自然和社会历史规律的主宰，这是不以人们的意志为转移的。

四、《道德经》提出了朴素的辩证法思想

老子是一位辩证法巨人，他的《道德经》中，竟有七八十处涉及到辩证法的范畴，对我国和整个世界都有极为深刻的影响。如在第一、二章中所说的：“道可道非常道，名可名非常名。”“天下皆知美之为美，斯恶矣；皆知善之为善，斯不善矣。故有无相生，难易相成，长短相形，高下相盈，音声相和，前后相随。”对“道和名、善和恶”的解释便是非常辩证的。第二十二章提出：“曲则全，枉则直，洼则盈，敝则新，少则得，多则惑。是以圣人抱一为天下式：不自见，故明；不自是，故彰；不自伐，故有功；不自矜，故长。夫惟不争，故天下莫能与之争。”在第二十四章中说“自见者，不明；自是者，不彰；自伐者，无功；自矜者，不长。”两者正好在对比中说明了人类生活中如何自知、自处和如何对人的辩证法。第四十章指出：“反者道之动，弱者道之用。天下万物生于有，有生于无。”描述了天下万事万物和人生中对立面展开的原理。在第五十八章所提出的“祸兮福之所倚，福兮祸之所伏”则进一步说明了事物对立面相互依存、相互转化的原理。第四十章中所说的：“反者道之动，弱者道之用。天下万物生于有，有生于无。”也说明上述这个道理，指出事物向相反的方面发展到它的反面。天下的事物从“有”产生，而“有”又从“无”产生，进一步说明人、事、物相反相成的道理。宇宙中的万事万物是时时变化着的，是对立统一的。这种

“变化”的本身、“变化”的主体，就是“道”。总之老子的朴素的辩证法思想是非常丰富的，这正是他观察事物的方法论基础，是值得我们认真学习和研究的。

五、《道德经》还教导我们做事做人的道理

根据《史记·老子列传》，老子在接待孔子时，曾说：“且君子得其时，则驾；不得其时，则蓬累而行。吾闻之，良贾深藏若虚。君子盛德，容貌若愚。”司马迁认为他“修道德，其学以自隐无名为务”。以上足以说明老子对待自己、规劝朋友，都很强调操守。这也使得孔子在会见老子后，对他的弟子说出了他对老子高尚人格的赞赏：“吾今日之见老子，其犹龙也！”（《史记·老子列传》）老子的人格是时代的反映。他对当时人心奸诈，国与国争战不休的局面，忧心如焚。在全面考虑人心以后，曾说：“信言不美，美言不信；善言不辩，辩言不善。”并主张：“圣人不积，既以为人，己愈有；既以与人，己愈多。天之道，利而不害；圣人之道，为而不争。”（《道德经》第八十一章）所以，他特别强调正面教育，言行统一，爱人利他。他这样做，正是以守信实，做好事，不自私，不争利，作为转变人心、改造社会的基础，决非苟且偷生者可比。他在《道德经》第二章中说：“生而不有，为而不恃，功成而弗居。”这正是他入世为民、立功不求名、大公无私的人格写照。《道德经》第十章和第十九章所说的“生而不有，为而不恃。长而不宰，是谓玄德”、“见素抱朴，少私寡欲”都强调：人不要主观，不可有私心。这样大公无私的道德便是老子人格的支柱。在《道德经》第二十一章，他还进一步指出：“孔德之容，惟道是从。道之为物，惟恍惟惚。惚兮恍兮，其中有象。恍兮惚兮，其中有物。窈兮冥兮，其中有精。其精甚真，其中有信。自古及今，其名不去，以阅众甫。”他以空为德，他认为有大德的人是尊重“道”的。“道”，无形，却有实物、有

精气、可信、可验，贯穿古今。这便是老子人格力量的根源和精神支柱。

六、老子的“无为”思想是积极的

《道德经》第三章写道：“为无为，则无不治。”老子认为无为而治，正是天道的表现。只要实行“无为”，国家就没有治不好的。“无为而治”使民风醇厚，便能使国家长治久安。这“无”和“有”是辩证统一的，是客观事物属性的两个方面，是相辅相成的。第五十七章写道：“以正治国，以奇用兵，以无事取天下。吾何以知其然哉？天下多忌讳，而民弥穷；民多利器，国家滋昏；人多技巧，奇物滋起；法令滋章，盗贼多有。故圣人云：我无为，而民自化；我好静，而民自正；我无事，而民自富；我无欲，而民自朴。”第五十八章又接着写道：“其政闷闷，其民淳淳；其政察察，其民缺缺。”“是以圣人方而不割，廉而不刿，直而不肆，光而不耀。”老子所讲的“无”和“有”是辩证统一的，是客观属性的两个方面，是相辅相成的。在《道德经》第八章，老子以“上善若水，水善利万物而不争。”说明最善的人像水一样，善于使万物得到利益而不与之争，以进一步阐发“无为既无不为”的积极意义。有些主观唯心主义者以“唯意志论”观点把个人的主观愿望强加于人民大众，因为它违背了自然和社会历史发展的客观规律，常常碰得头破血流，一事无成。在中国古代历史上，孔子曾讲过：“无为而治，其舜也软。”（《论语》）管子也说过：“无为者，帝；为而不以为者，王；为而不自贵者，霸。”（《管子》）这种“处无为之事，行不言之教”的治国纲领和领导艺术是我国从原始共产主义社会起，就为许多圣君、明主和英明的领袖们所崇尚和执行的。

七、老子的人格支柱在于他为人做事一贯的大公无私

《道德经》第十九章“见素抱朴，少私寡欲”及第十章“生而不有，为而不恃，长而不宰，是谓玄德”，都强调人不可有私心，也不应主观。这正是老子人格的支柱。其后，在第二十一章，他进一步指出：“孔德之容，惟道是从。道之为物，惟恍惟惚。惚兮恍兮，其中有象。恍兮惚兮，其中有物。窈兮冥兮，其中有精。其精甚真，其中有信。自古及今，其名不去，以阅众甫。”他以空为德，以虚心为德。他认为虚心而有道德的人是尊重道的。

老子的这种人格支柱正是他那个时代的反映。对于他那个年代的人心奸诈，国与国之间争战不休的局面，他忧心如焚，在全面而深刻地考虑之后，他说：“信言不美，美言不信；善言不辩，辩言不善。”并主张：“圣人不积，既以为人，己愈有，既以与人，己愈多。天之道，利而不害；圣人之道，为而不争。”（《道德经》第八十一章）

八、老子的养生之道，在《道德经》中也有多处表现

老子的养生之道是以“道”为指导，与气功相联系，贯穿于他的整个生活，并影响我国道教的发展与道家的修炼的。《道德经》第四章“道冲而用之，或不盈渊兮，似万物之宗”，说明“道”本是空虚的，但是，用起它来却不会穷尽，因为它是那么渊深。道教对道家 and 老子《道德经》的继承，主要表现在他们把“道”奉为最高信仰及其教理的基础，然后加以发挥。同时，他们继承了老子和道家一贯崇慈、尚俭、贵柔、清静、无为的思想，强调了“载营抱一”、“专气致柔”（《道德经》第十章）和“见素抱朴”、“少私寡欲”（《道德经》第十九章）等修养的基本原则，以老子“归根复命”的说法作为内炼的基本理论根据；又

以《道德经》中“恍惚”、“自然”、“守中”、“无为”、“有为”等词语作为内炼中的要点。

《道德经》第二十五章是老子“天人合一”、人与环境保持平衡思想的基本章节。它一开始就说：“有物混成，先天地生。寂兮寥兮，独立而不改，周行而不殆，可以为天下母。”指出天地万物初生的状态；然后说明“吾不知其名，字之曰道”；最后归纳为“人法地，地法天，天法道，道法自然”这一修心、养性、做人、处事、治国、平天下的道理。这种朴素的宇宙观和认识论是值得我们学习的。

九、《道德经》也为世人提出治国之道和领导的艺术

首先，在周朝末年，天下纷争、诸侯割据的时代，他明辨是非，同情弱国贫民。他说：“民之饥，以其上食税之多，是以饥；民之难治，以其上之有为，是以难治。”（第七十五章）

其次，老子认为：“故贵以身为天下者，可以寄天下；爱以身为天下者，可以托天下。”（第十三章）他对于领导的人选非常重视，只有那些把天下政治和治理天下政治看得比自己的身体还重要的人才能做领导人。

第三，他强调：领导人要守雌、处柔、不要自以为是。他在不同的章节曾对政治领导人提出：“以正治国，以奇用兵，以无事取天下。”“故圣人云：我无为，而民自化；我好静，而民自正；我无事，而民自富；我无欲，而民自朴。”（第五十七章）说明以正常的方法治国，用奇特的方法作战，以自然无为的方法治理天下的必要。“其政闷闷，其民淳淳；其政察察，其民缺缺。”“是以圣人方而不割，廉而不刿，直而不肆，光而不耀。”（第五十八章）说明政治宽大，人民就醇厚；政治分析明辨，人民就浇薄。因此，圣人方正，而对人不残破；清廉，而对人不伤害；直率，而不放肆；光明而不耀目。“治人事天，莫若嗇。”（第五十

九章）说明治理别人或管理自己，都不如收藏精神、积累道德而不用。“治大国若烹小鲜。以道莅天下，其鬼不神。”（第六十章）说明治理大国就像煮小鱼。用道治理天下，鬼就不灵验。“江海所以能为百谷王者，以其善下之，故能为百谷之王。是以欲上民，以其言下之；欲先民，以其身后之。是以圣人处上而民不重；处前而民不害。是以天下乐推而不厌。以其不争，故天下莫能与之争。”（第六十六章）说明江和海能够使百川归向它的原因，是它善于处在低下的地位。因为不争，所以天下没有谁能够和他相争。善为士者，不武；善战者，不怒；善胜敌者，不与；善用人者，为之下。是谓不争之德，是谓用人之力，是谓配天之极”善于当统帅的人，并不依仗武力；善于作战的人，不易忿怒；善于战胜敌人的，不勉强争斗；善于用人的，对人谦下。这叫做不与人相争的德，这叫做善于利用人的能力，这叫做与自然相配合，是自古已有的最高准则。

十、老子是人不是神，他有历史的局限性，而他的优点是我们人人都可以学到的

从历史上看，中国汉朝以前，老子只是受人尊重的长寿老人、思想家。汉桓帝延熹八年（公元 165 年），陈相边韶作《老子铭》，推崇老子，也只是说他是“自伏羲以来，世为圣者作师”，把他看做“圣者作师”。

老子的被神化，首先是由于道教的创始人为了宣传的目的所致。根据《史记·老子列传》所载，孔子把老子比作“龙”，说：“至于龙，吾不能知其乘风云而上天。吾今日见老子，其犹龙耶！”说他“乘风云而上天”。其次，根据《史记》记载，他们认为老子活了“一百六十岁，或言二百余岁。以其修道而养寿也”。从而推测他道行深，寿命长，“莫知其所终”，是道家始祖。第三，葛洪写《神仙传》，把老子的形体描绘得非常特殊。虽然，

他为了扩大道教的影响，也只说他是得道长寿的人，并未说他是神灵异类，不可学到；但形体非凡，又被列入《神仙传》中，极力描绘推崇，岂能阻止历代信徒的迷信！第四，《抱朴子·杂应篇》根据《仙经》的记载，竟不顾葛洪的忠告，进一步描绘老子“身长九尺，黄色、鸟喙、隆鼻，秀眉长五寸，耳长七寸，额有三理上下彻，足有八卦，以社龟为床，金楼玉堂，白云为阶，五色云为衣，重叠之冠。左有十二青龙，右有二十六白虎，前有二十四条朱雀，后有七十二玄武”，已俨然是太上老君的形象了！第五，唐朝皇帝姓李，把老子看成同宗。在唐高宗乾封元年追封老子为太上玄元皇帝，这就进一步使老子从政治上被统治阶级同化了。这些都是老子不曾梦想到的。

因此，神秘主义、神话的人格不是老子的人格。老子因为曾做过周朝的史官，管过档案，知识渊博，清静自正，博大精深，胸怀天下，无为自化，是他长期学习、实践、修行的结果，是人人都可以学习的榜样。这便是后人在学习老子及其《道德经》这部世界名著时应该采取的态度。

禅宗精要与修持

杨佛兴^{*}

一、禅宗起源

禅，乃“禅那”之略称。义为静虑，谓：宁静散乱之心，而起契理思虑也。本为色界诸天所具之德，而亦一切定境之通名。

禅宗之禅，直以妙观察智和平等性智起用，不同三乘禅之仅溯源于阿赖耶识或异熟识也。以超也三乘教之上，故称“教外别传。”

据《大梵王问佛决疑经》云：“大梵王至灵山，以金色优钵罗花献佛，舍身为床座，而请佛说最上禅法。世尊登座，拈花示众。人天百万皆不知佛旨所在，唯摩诃迦叶破颜微笑。世尊云：‘吾有正法眼藏、涅槃妙心，实相无相微妙法门，咐嘱摩诃迦叶！’”

一乘宗旨亦称“正法眼藏”，以如来法流之运行、非开真正法眼不能默契其妙也；亦名“涅槃妙心”，于寂灭中自心隐具大用、未尝或息也。

梵王长于禅定，但以离欲为主。舍身作床座者，即以此定为

^{*} 杨佛兴大阿阇黎，著名禅师。

基础而求向上也。最上之禅，从空出有，如莲花之清净不染。释尊入禅宗最高三昧加持会众，并拈所献金花示众，看谁能领会其旨。迦叶尊者，独契涅槃妙心，开出清净莲花，是真具正法眼者。释尊遂以此实相无相、微妙法门咐嘱之，是为禅宗初祖。

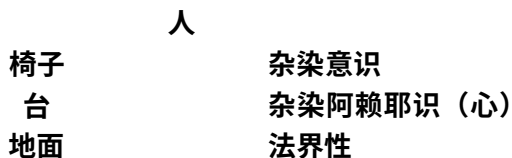

二、离识见性

佛灭后 600 年，马鸣生于中印度，聪明善辩，好面折人，三乘论师每被难倒；以致他很傲慢，目中无人。后被禅宗十祖胁尊者折服，皈依佛门。蒙禅宗十一祖富那奢尊者开示“离识见性”妙旨，悟入真如境界。之后，接班为禅宗十二祖。

“离识见性”妙旨传来中国后，受到极大关注和发展。其法理如下：

心为有情作用要具，其根据不一：下焉者，唯知意识为主；中焉者，兼知阿赖耶识为主；上焉者，乃知法界性为主。

“离识见性”四字，为禅宗顿教修持的关键所在。图示如下：

佛学常言：“一切众生都有佛性，但为无明妄念之所覆盖。一旦冲破无明障碍，则原有佛性当下历然。”无明障碍为何？由上图可知：杂染意识和阿赖耶识是也。

六祖云：“著境波浪起，如水有波浪，故名为此岸；离境生灭息，如水常通流，故名为彼岸。”波浪一起，便落被缚凡情；息浪常流，方是灵活智慧。要而言之：依脑用事，分别意识炽盛，尘浪大兴；敛脑归心（阿赖耶识），分别意识消灭，尘浪随息，此名亲近波罗蜜；能并泯其心（阿赖耶识），斯名真实般若

波罗蜜多。

比如：人登座椅上，欲举其椅必不可能；下座立台上，乃能举之；若欲移台，又必须下台立地乃能移之。椅喻脑，台喻心，地喻真如。

禅宗顿教属一乘教。一乘行者自人道立场起修以至成佛，中间经历三种身份：

（一）尘身。即在人间起修之肉身。此身由神识和合四大而成，虚妄不实，易受六尘污染，自身亦常起六尘作用，故有“尘身”之名。

（二）根身。吾人未能摆脱尘身之前，恒以肉身所依之命根（神识所在之处，中医名为“下丹田”）为据点，与相关尘境（即环境尘相）交互联系。万物之具实用者，原各有本质为出发点。本质虽无形相，却能与人身五官（眼、耳、鼻、舌、身）潜相钩结，意识标以符号，乃现同分妄见之形态。行者若能扫荡意识不留痕迹，则自身五官唯挹取环境中之无形本质集合于身内，自顶至命根显出一道力线，是名根身。

（三）法身。尘身未彻底泯灭时，根身原得出现于阿赖耶识中。惟杂染种子犹存，所现根身遂带灰暗之色。及俱生我执永断，阿赖耶识告终（杂染部），无复尘身牵累，根身恒常清净自在。发展之极，上达娑婆顶，下达娑婆底。及根身亦泯，唯觉本性遍满大千世界，不落时空格式；而觉之所照无所不了、机之所感无所不见：是名法身。

理解三种身份，对尘身，可以前六识明之；对根身，须泯去前六识，而仗七、八两种清净内识观之；对法身，则要根、尘二身俱泯，唯以大觉照之。

（注 此段法理，曾听冯达庵大阿阇黎开示。）

三、禅宗起源于印度，兴盛发达于中国

禅宗传二十八代至达摩祖师，他遥感中国机缘成熟，乃来中国弘化，是为中国禅宗初祖。因见中国佛徒多从文字入手，讲经法师亦多依文解义，不脱意识形态，未契佛经妙旨，反为发现佛性之障碍；因而独创一派、别具一格：“不立文字，直指人心，见性成佛。”

达摩门风高尚，对学人要求非常严格。达摩示慧可云：“不可以小德小智、轻心慢心来求无上大法。欲以小德小智、轻心慢心求得无上大法，痴心妄想而已！”当时大雪纷飞，慧可呆立天井中向达摩求法，已经积雪没踝、其寒彻骨了。他听到达摩如此开示，不禁心情激动、热血沸腾，演出了“断臂求法”的故事！此正《维摩经》“夫求法者，宁舍身命，何言乎……”者也。

达摩传慧可为二祖，可传僧璨为三祖，璨传道信为四祖，信传宏忍为五祖。

五祖晚年，化缘将尽。一日对全体门徒曰：“世人生死事大。汝等终日只求福田，不求出离生死苦海。自性若迷，福何可救？汝等各去自看智慧，取自本心般若之性，各作一偈来呈吾看。若悟大意，付汝衣法为第六代祖。火急速去，不得迟滞。思量即不中用！……”

当时，神秀为教授师，德高望重，徒众都以为他会接班为六祖，所以推让他作偈。神秀作偈云：

身是菩提树
心如明镜台
时时勤拂拭
勿使惹尘埃

杨按：行者实修，蒙祖师威神加持，冲破分别我执、分别法执，“凡心顿开，灵光忽耀”，即为自心佛性发越之动机，是为见

性之始。此见，即庵摩罗识清净见分；心光，即清净相分。所谓“开悟”指此，而非意识形态忽然想通。

禅宗初关开悟之后，实修返照，定中自觉肉身泯灭，唯感一条力线，命根（下丹田）达顶，由明而光，是名“根身”。

神秀偈的前二句是描写根身境界。因仅破分别我执、分别法执，分别人、我之心虽很淡薄，但俱生我执未破，异熟缘至之时仍会引起烦恼，故须时时提高警惕（“时时勤拂拭”）以防“无明熏真如，致迷真逐妄、造业轮回”。故五祖对门徒说：“依此偈修，免堕恶道；依此偈修，有大利益。”

然而神秀只破分别我执、分别法执，尚属清净意识境界。未破俱生我执，即未入空真如境界，尚未离识见性。故五祖又对神秀说：“汝作此偈，未见本性。只到门外，未入门内。……”

由于神秀实证禅宗初关，破分别我执、分别法执，以致他的道德品质自然远超凡夫高尚。例如：“秀之徒众往往讥：‘南宗祖师不识一字，有何所长？’秀曰：‘他得无师之智、深悟上乘，吾不如也。且吾师五祖亲传衣法，岂徒然哉？’”乃派门徒志诚往曹溪求法。又，神龙元年上元日，安、秀二师在则天皇帝御前推让惠能大师曰：“南方有能禅师密受忍大师衣法、传佛心印，可请彼问一乘大法。”则天皇帝乃遣薛简驰诏迎请惠能大师。师上表辞疾。

由上可见：神秀是有修有证、道德高尚的人，他始终都很尊敬六祖惠能大师。

《八识规矩颂》谓：“有情日夜镇昏迷。”即：众生第七识带起之俱生我执，萌诸内心，固有我相、他相之见存；形诸外迹，更有此身、彼身之分别。一般凡夫，不论醒时、睡时，此执未尝暂舍，故日夜恒在我相阴影之中，昏迷不觉。益我者视为亲友，损我者视为仇敌。世界所以多故，全系于此。

惠能当年在磨坊舂米，由童子引他出来听人念神秀偈，一听

则以应神速，即说我亦有偈：

菩根本无树
明镜亦非台
本来无一物
何处惹尘埃

前二句指明神秀所证的不足，后二句是破俱生我执的见地。即破俱生我执，则实证禅宗重关，生空真如现前，诸法毕竟空寂，故曰“本来无一物”；即破七识，则一切不染，故曰“何处惹尘埃”。然而，五祖看了此偈之后，却以鞋底擦之，曰“亦未见性”，其理为何？则有二层道理：其一，有保护惠能的作用。因他明白其他门徒的心态，怕他们谋害惠能。其二，也是最主要的，他知：惠能虽破俱生我执，但未破俱生法执；只会如实空，不会如实不空；只契真空，未契妙有，明体而不达用。

惠能初偈之后，五祖知他们只差一点，观察时节因缘将至，乃潜入碓坊，以杖击碓三下而去。惠能即会祖意，三鼓入室。祖以袈裟遮围，不令人见，为说《金刚经》。（杨按：唐密传大法时，先须作法保护坛场，以防邪魔混入破坏。五祖以袈裟遮围然后为惠能说法，亦具上述密意。）惠能既破俱生我执，既能无住，蒙五祖威神加持，并为他说法；说至“应无所住而生其心”时，惠能犹如触电一样，言下大悟，一连说出了五个“何期”；“何期自性本自清净，何期自性本不生灭，何期自性本自具足，何期自性本无动摇，何期自性能生万法！”即：真空之中能出妙有；明体，达用；深契性、相不二妙旨。对于万法，以智证之，唯性无相；以识志之，依性起相。即“色即是空，空即是色”。

五祖见惠能一连说出五个“何期”之后，知他已破俱生法执、实证法空真如——即证第一句禅（牢关），从此可以“续佛慧命”、“传佛心印”，乃传衣法给他为第六代祖师。

《金刚经》云：“应无所住而生其心。”密意如何？答曰：识、

相对立，则能、所分离。未能分离，则必有所住。尽离内、外识，乃真无所住，乃真一无所得。于无所得中，理致不昧，灵活自如，是名“般若波罗蜜多”。见性工夫至此，则随身入世，随问而答、随境而作，无不妙符实际、巧叶机宜。《证道歌》云：“但得本，莫愁末；如净琉璃含宝月。既能解此如意珠，自利利他终不竭。”

杨按：“如净琉璃含宝月”，是行者修持时定中的实证境界。所谓“宝月”、“如意珠”，即一切种性的结晶。所谓佛性即一切种性，其间包含一切如来的种性和其他众生的种性。性性之间，密放、密收，互相传感，各能照了：即“既能解此如意珠”。（现代电脑联网，略堪比拟。故科技愈发达，愈能证明佛法是真理。）故六祖不识字而能讲经，而且言必中肯，随问而答，反应神速，契理、契机。

六祖年二十四传衣，三十九祝发，大转法轮于岭南，说法利生三十七年，得旨嗣法者四十三人，道超凡者，莫知其数。六祖后代分为五支，其法脉至今犹存，并发展到全球各地，度无量众；对人类的精神文明起到了很好的作用。应验达摩悬记：

“吾本来兹土
说法度迷情
一花开五叶
结果自然成”

由上可见：禅宗深入中国文化，源远流长！

禅宗的“游戏”与戒律概念

龚 隽*

席勒说过“只有当人充分是人的时候，他才游戏；只有当人游戏的时候，他才完全是人”。^①可见，“游戏”不仅是一种嬉戏的活动，它与某种严肃的东西有着本质的关联。历来学者们对游戏的读解、定义有不尽相同的路线和立场，但一般都承认游戏具有自由的活动和无目的的合目的性等特征。游戏在不同的文化背景中，存在着维特根斯坦所说的“家族类似”，而不是本质主义意义上的一致性。这就在方法上为本主题的研究预设了某种规定：禅风中的游戏具有一般游戏意味的特性，而这又不能完全从同质性的意义上来加以理解，必须充分关注到禅宗特有的文化脉络和其游戏活动的异质性面向。^②游戏，通常是中国禅师们用于表示他们乐道和悟后禅悦自在的一种方式。这种看似教行不拘的作风，背后却蕴含了深秘的意味。

一、“乐道”、“游戏神通”与“游戏三昧”

从源流上分析，中国禅的“游戏”可能与印度佛教原始法流中的“乐道”观念相关。柳田圣山曾批评西方学者以强烈的伦理

* 龚隽：博士，教授，广州中山大学。

性和逻辑性来读解原始佛教的偏向，指出原始佛教的实践，本是“乐道生活”的冥想与精神的统一，并认为中国禅僧只视思想和哲学为游戏的做法，也间接地原因于此。^③在印度传统中，存在着各种可称之为“游戏”的活动，关于这一点，已有学者从梵文语言学的解析中，索隐出梵文中游戏概念的多重含义。^④我们从早期流译论典和注经传统中，也发现了有关游戏概念的各种说明。如《大智度论》卷七中说“戏名自在，如师子在鹿中自在无畏，故名为戏”。^⑤这还是一般意义上的游戏观念。《维摩诘经》中提到“游戏神通”和“禅悦为味”，僧肇也特别从“自娱”和“因戏止戏”的说法加以诠释。^⑥应该说，只有到了中国禅，特别是慧能及其所影响下的南中国禅的运动中，游戏才取得了更为充分的展开和异常丰富的面相。中国禅师们更乐意用“游戏三昧”的说法来表示禅境这种殊胜的意境。宗宝本《坛经》“顿渐品第八”就说到“游戏三昧，是名见性”；《传灯录》卷八谓南泉禅师云“后扣大寂大室，顿然忘筌，得游戏三昧”；而慧洪的《禅林僧宝传》卷二十八中，也说杨歧禅师“天纵神悟，善人游戏三昧”。^⑦如此类似的说法，在中国禅宗的文献中还相当多，我们无法详细列举。

从表面上看，中国禅的“游戏三昧”颇有些不自拘于小节，未始藏其狂言，甚至是慢教慢戒的粗暴作风。如《无门关》中说，参破祖师关，得大自在后，就可以“逢佛杀佛，逢祖杀祖”，“向六道四生中，游戏三昧”。^⑧这种禅风中所蕴藏的玄机，并不能从简单的放任行为中去作解释。与其说它是荒诞不经和玩世不恭，毋宁说是旨在拆解传统形成的程式化或公式化了的系统法则，回到自性的悟解上面来。因此，在这类乍看不拘教行的放狂自得中，存在“作为解脱而被感受到的”另一种秩序，^⑨一种铃木大拙所说的“难以干犯的真理的系统表示”，“一种活跃的精神，亦即毫无痕迹的绝对肯定的精神”。^⑩也就是说，“游戏三昧”的背后存在着

可能是要严肃得多的精神规则。Bernard Faure 对禅风中的“疯狂” (madness) 进行了深刻的考察,他认为禅者的“疯狂”并不只是一种方便,而是有了本体论的根源。就是说,它被看做佛性的自发性表达和对于“虚假”(佯)的反判。^①

我们习惯于把游戏与严肃理解为绝对对立,荷兰学者胡伊青加说,这种理解没有触及到问题的实质。他举例说,柏拉图把游戏与圣礼等同,这并未因此而玷污后者,相反,这一方式把游戏概念提升最高的精神领域。“在游戏中,我们可以活动在严肃的水平之下”;“活动在美与神圣的领域中”。^②伽达默尔也认为,游戏活动本身存在一种独特的,甚至是“神圣的严肃”。只有当游戏者全神贯注于他正在从事的游戏活动本身,使得游戏完全成为“只是一种游戏”,而不为其他的活动和目的所扰乱,这就是“在游戏时的严肃”。^③当禅师们要求在日常生活中的一切活动中,都保持高度入神而又极为单纯的意识状态,把活动只是当作一种活动本身,而不含有别的目的或对象那样去对待时,他就存在于“游戏三昧”之中了。大珠慧海与源律师的一段对话,最能说明这个问题:

“源律师问:‘和尚修道,还用功否?’师曰:‘用功’。曰:‘如何用功?’师曰:‘饥来吃饭,困来即眠。’曰:‘一切人总如是,同师用功否?’师曰:‘不同。’曰:‘何故不同?’师曰:‘他吃饭时不肯吃饭,百种须索;睡时不肯睡,千般计较。所以不同也。’”^④

中国禅的“游戏三昧”直承了传统佛教中“乐道”和“游戏神通”的法流,而毕竟表示了不同的意趣。这里存在福柯“知识考古学”意义上的“断裂现象”和“最富于独特性的断言”。^⑤但这一点还没有为学者们所注意,我们姑且从两个方面略加辨析。

1. “乐道”在印度禅的传统中,主要指乐于禅的静谧与法喜之中,它是由专一于禅定而带来的寂灭之乐。《经集》第二品

一章中有如下的记载：

“镇静安定的释迦牟尼达到灭寂、无欲和永恒，这种正法无与伦比。在正法中，能找到这种珍宝。但愿凭借这一真理，获得幸福。”

“无上的佛陀赞美纯洁。人们说那是无间禅定。这种禅定无与伦比。……”

“他们屏弃爱欲，专心致志，遵行乔达摩的教诲，达到至高目的，进入永恒，享受寂静之乐。”^⑩

这类寂静的乐道主题，可能源于印度佛教中“心性本寂”的观念。性寂的观念，照吕澂先生的解释，是重在“离染转依”，就所知因性染位而言，深究于“离染去妄之功行”。^⑪即是说，寂灭之乐，旨在远离一切意识和生活世界，把法的欢娱与日常的行事隔绝开来。中国禅者所说的“游戏三昧”，则惟恐把修道与生活分成两片，而恰恰倾向于日常生活中来加以表现。在西方传统中，“游戏”与“工作”的概念是严格分割而无法相容的两部分，^⑫但是禅不主张分解生活与工作，它力图把印度佛教中“否定世界”（world - denying）的倾向转到“肯定世界”（world - affirming）的面向上，^⑬这是一种本真的“游戏三昧”，它如慧能所说“于一切时中，行、住、坐、卧，常行直心”，它不是“除妄不起心”的“看心看净”和“言坐不动”，而是要在日常生活的一切行事中去体会“道须通流”的意境。^⑭

在生活中“随处任真”“守分随时”，^⑮即随缘而不离禅的意趣，从存在论的基础上说，必须承诺“性在作用”、“遍周沙界”这一前提。只有承认道的遍在通流，才有可能说当下圆明，“借事明心，附物显理”^⑯。即肯定道的流行畅达以及道与一切生命空间的通融无碍，才能为在日常生活的各种法则之内去优游于悦、任运自在和通透忘机提供开展的余地。据说，早在达摩的弟子波罗提与国王论法时，就提出“性在作用”、“遍现俱该沙界”

的思想。^②无论这一传说是否属实，而由“性在作用”开启的，约平常活泼的行事中去直指心要，却在南中国禅的运动中显示出来。如天台德韶禅师就说：“良由法界无边，心亦无际。无事不障，无言不显。如是会得，唤作般若现前，理同真际，一切山河大地，森罗万象，墙壁瓦砾，并无丝毫可得亏缺。”^③至于黄檗门下讲“语默动静，一切声色，尽是佛事”，^④临济说“心法无形，贯通十方，目前现用”等，^⑤更是要彻底消解乐道与生活世界的横隔。于是，禅的愉悦就不只在宁静的冥想中去体认，而“举措施为，不亏实相”的一举一动，甚至放喝棒打、指手画脚、呵祖骂佛，都无不是在善说法要，指示学人“即今日前孤明历历”地迥独根尘，透脱罗笼。^⑥照禅师们的意见，游戏并非特指某种有规则的活动，而是我们对于这种活动所稟持的一种态度和看法。就是说，只要心无所住，不在意识中作活计，专注于高度的内在面向上的自觉和深秘经验，就无处不生活在禅的三昧与喜悦之中。吕澂先生在谈到禅宗“保任功夫”时，有深刻的观察。他认为禅家一门深入而透彻全体，并不是动辄凝滞，由此便有了“直心”；“一切时中视听寻常，更无委曲”。这说明禅生活原是严肃、谨慎，并无放任的意思。于心地自肯之后，还要逐事去体验以净尽习气。^⑦

中国禅的“游戏三昧”不同于印度佛教中念寂的“乐道”倾向，从形式上看，还是在日常行事中有所为、有所作的活动，却是指向和顺于解脱自在的。西谷启治把禅的“游戏三昧”说成是“脱落身心”的实践。他指出，禅的这种“游戏三昧”只有在目的论与末世论，“人中心主义”与“理体中心主义”全盘瓦解之后的“空之场”中，才能出现。西谷特别强调，这“空之场”是“绝对的此岸”的日常生活世界，禅的“游戏三昧”即不离世间法，是“游戏”与“工作”的完美和解。在日常生活里，一切无心无为，法尔自然即是“空手还乡，任运延时”的三昧。^⑧我们可

引无住禅师的话来概括：“真心者，念生亦不顺生，念灭亦不依寂。……无为无相活泼，平常自在”。^③

再从中国文化的脉络来更深一层地观察。禅宗“游戏三昧”的任性活泼、不离世间与儒家的“成于乐”、“游于艺”，道家的“至乐”、“天乐”和“逍遥游”之间，是否如有的学者所认定的那样，存在一种简单的类比关系呢？正如禅的游戏和一切游戏概念之间存在一种我们上文所提到的“家族类似”一样，禅的“游戏三昧”与儒、道传统的游戏间当然有不少可以会通的地方。而我在此文中的目的，主要是点出他们之间的异质性。

从儒家的立场看，儒家赋予游戏以强烈伦理性的目的，故其“成乐”与“游艺”，都沛然表示出成仁成德的关切，可称之为一种“教化的游戏”。何晏集解，邢昺疏的《论语》“述而第七”解释“依于仁，游于艺”时说：“艺，六艺也，不足据依，故曰游。游习者，道德仁义也。”又说：“劣于道德与仁故，不足依据，故但曰游。”^④显然，游戏在这里是次于道德而又辅承于道德的，它无从脱离成德的期望而为一自为自在的存在。禅的有为有诈，并不限于道德的行事。对于一个有经验的禅师来说，一个平常的举动，甚至一个看似无意谓的话头，也都藏有“无意义但有意蕴”的机锋，指示着某种深刻的悟解。从风格上看，禅的游戏也没有儒家“游于艺”中的那一份检束或文雅。禅师们总是喜欢用一些不合常规的手段去表示大机大用和格外提持，试图把礼乐引归到自性中去加以完成，取得慧能说的“自性心地”的“内外明彻”。^⑤禅宗对于传统既定礼法，如颂经、念佛、打坐等仪式的批判，都必须切合到这种内在性中，才能得到恰当的理解。同样，禅宗游戏这种不离日用常行的作风，也有别于庄子寻种超然物外，“入无穷之门，以游无极之野”的高远意趣。庄子的“独往独来”、“以游无端”，具有遗世独立和远行高蹈的性格。^⑥庄子的“逍遥”含有一层否定的意味，他不仅意在远离日常有作之苦，

于自然俱游，还要“极乎无亲”地兼忘一切道义负担。^④对庄子的游，成玄英的疏解值得注意。他说“逍者，销也；遥者，远也。销尽有为累，远见无为理，以斯而游，故曰逍遥”。^⑤这是“徒处无为，而物自化”的一流。^⑥从禅的游戏角度看，庄子的“游”过于独守“无为”，还未能贯彻到“绝对的此岸”中加以消化。保唐无住禅就曾批评老、庄之学如声闻乘，只住于无相、清净的一面，他说“庄子、老子尽说无为无相、说一、说净、说自然；佛即不如此说，因缘、自然俱为戏论……”他认为，禅的行法是“不住无为，不住无相”而“常在世间”、“不染世法”的。^⑦禅的游戏，是不断烦恼而入涅槃的，它不是空间上的遗世远行，而是“于自念上离境”、“于一切境上不染”。因此，禅的工夫重在从内在向度上彻底远离“二相诸尘劳”，做到“于一切法上无住”、“不染万境而常自在”。^⑧比较而说，禅宗的游戏化解了庄子道境中生活世界与修道之间的紧张，把“出入六合，游乎九州”的高远，引向了更为平常和日用生活的方便中。

2. “游戏”在印度佛教论典中，通常是关联于某种神通变化的自在愉悦，印度早期佛教对于“神通”（abhijñā）的态度还非常暧昧，但不少学者认为，它几乎成为佛教的基础之一。他们不同意单纯以理智主义的倾向，即以佛教“哲学”的名义去否定佛教中有“神通”的观念。尽管大乘佛教具有解消神通的一面，如“空”的逻辑有可能把一切神通变化都归之于妄念所生。但大乘佛教在消解的同时，仍然包含了神通的因素。^⑨如《维摩经》中就多次提到“游戏神通”的说法。这种“游戏”并没有表现出平常心的自在，而强调了“神通化人”所特有的“五通”、“六通”等的化用和“自在无碍”。罗什解释说“因神通广其化功，亦以神通力证其辩才”。^⑩从中国早期传承的印度禅法、论典和中国学僧的解释性著作中，我们仍然可以随处发现这种神通为大的见。如《阴持入经》就渲染由禅定而达到“耳能彻听，身能飞

行，变化万端”等神通自在。^{④①}《安般守意经》也说到“断生死，得神足”。^{④②}康僧会为《安般守意经》作的《经序》，也专门提到“行寂”之后能获得“无幽不睹”的神通。^{④③}即使像道安这样的义学僧侣，也偶尔为之张目。^{④④}所以梁慧皎在评论早期禅法时，曾以“四等六通，由禅而起；八除十八，籍定方成。故禅定为用大矣哉”以及“禅用为显，属在神通”的话来作概述。^{④⑤}不管怎么说，早期中国禅法活动中重视神通自在的倾向，多少为后起中国禅学中偏向于慧学的趋势所抑制。^{④⑥}到了禅宗，则更提出“游戏三昧”来代替“游戏神通”的说法，其实已有了很深入的意义。中国禅宗的门风，对于神通可以说是非所反对，却是有所不取的。日本学者富永冲基在他的《出定后语》中曾经指出，印度的特点是醉心于神通戏法，而中国人的兴趣则主要在学识。Bernard Faure 发现中国禅不同于印度禅的一个重要特征，就在于中国禅宗传统有“去魅化”（demythologizing）的倾向，具体表现为重视对“基本理则”（basical principles）的沉思，而不断批判奇异之术、神通之论。如净觉的《楞伽师资记》求那跋陀罗传中就批判了各种神异禅法。^{④⑦}神会的“无念”，保唐的“无忆”也有解消神通的意趣。而在临济的禅法系统中，神通被重新解释，成为一种身心自由的精神性的“隐喻”。更意味的是，他从道宣的《续高僧传》到《楞伽师资记》和《传法宝记》这些早期中国禅宗史书有关禅师神通记录的变化中，发现中国早期禅有不断从神通向学理转化的趋势。Faure 认为，中国禅由重神通到“去魅化”的转向，是在对付道教和本土化的各种方术之后，力图接近儒家和趋向中国式意识形态的结果。^{④⑧}

敦煌本《坛经》重在讲“一行三昧”和“般若三昧”，它的意趣大抵都是不离随缘而“常行直心”；“常净自性”。敦煌本还不曾以“游戏三昧”的说法来加解释，而后出的《坛经》本子，就已明确提到“游戏三昧”的，如宗宝本《坛经》中就说“见性之

人，立亦得，不立亦得。去来自由，无滞无碍。应用随作，应语随答，普见化身，不离自性，即得自在神通，游戏三昧，是名见性”。尽管这里还出现“自在神通”、“普见化身”一类的字眼，但毕竟是随缘而禅，不离自性的“一行三昧”或“般若三昧”。如果我们结合宗门灯录中所记载的，大量禅师们对于神通变化的呵毁，就更容易了解禅宗法流中这种“游戏三昧”的殊性。

《五灯会元》卷四“黄檗希运禅师”中载：“后游天台逢一僧，与之言笑，如旧相识。熟视之，目光射人，乃偕行。属涧水暴涨，捐笠植杖而止。其僧率师同渡，师曰：‘兄要渡自度。’彼即剃衣蹑波，若履平地，回顾曰：‘渡来！’师曰：‘咄！这自了汉。吾早知当斫汝胫。’其僧叹曰：‘真大法器，我所不及’。言讫不见。”

又《五灯会元》卷第九“仰山慧寂禅师”所记一段对参，更能说明禅的游戏对于神通的解消：

“有楚僧从空而至，师曰：‘近离甚处？’曰：‘西天’。师曰：‘几时离彼？’曰：‘今早’。师曰：‘何太迟生！’曰：‘游山玩水’。师曰：‘神通游戏则不无，这里佛法须还老僧始得’。”

从“游戏神通”到“游戏三昧”的不同提持，又一次表示了中国的禅意在臻于平常心和生活世界的场所。一个开悟的禅师入圣之后，仍然必须经过一个平凡人的生活，做平常人所作的事，而不是到处施展他的神迹。但这种平常的行为对于他已经有了新的意义，等到深入而真的体会，那就不只是平常和屑屑细行，而有了灼然朗照的深秘，这就是百丈禅师所说的“不异旧时人，只异旧时行履处”。^④

二、从外在戒法到内心的自控

真正严肃的游戏是要在法则与需要之间建立一种平衡，即在礼法、规范与自由之间找到一种孔子所说的“从心所欲而不逾

矩”。学者们一般倾向于把禅风中的“教行不拘”看成中国禅的一次革命，或简单与狂禅一类的流弊联系起来看。问题其实更为复杂。对于禅者说的规矩或礼法，应区分为“内在自控”和“外在规范”来加以观察。表面行为的任性与慢戒，可能表示了对规范深一层的意见。依禅师们的意见，规矩本来是根源于自性而又顺于自性的，只是由于众生自性的障蔽，才需要外在礼法的形式加以规约。从心地的体性来说，可以是“实际理地不受一尘”。慧能就说“戒本源自性清净”，“得悟自性，亦不立戒定慧。……自性无非、无乱、无痴，念念般若观照，当离法相，有何可立！”^①重视到规范与自心要求的合一，其宗趣本是在内在化的形式中去恢复规范和礼法的本来意义，使之与人性自由的活动打成一片。因此，遵守规范与破坏规范的区别不在形式上的行为合辙与否，而更在自心对于规范的觉解和持犯程度。如洞山良价所说“拟心是犯戒，得味是破戒”，^②这可以说是一种更高的规范。铃木哲雄对于唐五代禅宗的研究也表明，禅门于戒律的处理不能简单地看做是轻视戒律，其中可能隐含了对戒律的形式主义批评，背后有更深刻的意义值得重视。^③

可以作一些简略的思想史审查。从早期汉传大、小乘禅法来看，都注意到戒的规范。最早由安世高译的《大安般守意经》卷一有说：“守意为道，守者为禁，亦谓不犯戒”。西晋竺法护译《修行道地经》卷第一中也提到“奉戒清净”，“戒净志乐无我想”，并说“假使行者毁戒伤教，不至寂观，唐捐功夫”。从罗什辑译的《坐禅三昧经》，佛陀跋陀罗所传译的《达摩多罗禅经》中，我们也都可以发现早期传禅与戒法的密切关联。如《坐禅三昧经》卷一上来就提到禅师们对弟子的择选，首先就要考察其持戒的程度，尔后才决定是否传法。《达摩多罗禅经》卷下亦谓“净戒为梯，能升慧堂。戒为庄严具，亦为善戍卫。戒能将人至于涅槃，……戒香流出一切普熏。”^④由此可见当时传禅对于戒法

的重视。不过，从这些戒法内容，以及康僧会、道安、慧远、僧睿、慧观等对于这些禅籍所作的序文来分析，都还没有明确从自心或自性的意义上来强调戒禅的融会。

根据印顺的研究，道信禅法因受南方天台学的影响，重视了戒禅合一的风格。由于道信“菩萨戒法”没有上来，无从详知其内容，但他相信，弘忍门下的禅风，禅与菩萨戒的结合，原来是禀承了道信的门风。^④问题是这一门风是否表示了本源于自性清净的戒法取向。从神秀所传的戒法看，敦煌本、宗宝本等《坛经》都把其所说的“诸恶莫作名为戒”，与慧能主张的“心地无非自性戒”对照起来讲，似乎暗示神秀还没有意识到自性戒的高度。而从《大乘无生方便门》所记神秀“坐持禁戒”的“菩萨戒”法，乃是“护持心不起，即顺佛性”的“持心戒”和“佛性为戒”。^⑤如何统一这两种说法，可能还要进一步研究。^⑥关于神秀为中心的北宗与戒律的关系，Bernard Faure 有专门而深入的研究。他认为北宗对于戒或规范的应用有超越传统古典律学的形式主义而引向内在化和观心实践的倾向，但《坛经》为代表的南宗则把这种内在化的观念推到更为彻底的程度，主要表现在自性戒或自我内在规范的提出。在 Faure 看来，自我规范的概念甚至否定了守心或持心戒的意义，他借用柳田圣山的研究说，《坛经》的这一宗趣是受到中观和三论学的影响。^⑦可以肯定，把一切规范销归到自心上来强调本性清净、无须外铄的主张，是经由慧能的提炼而一时成为通则的。《坛经》中说的“心平何须持戒，行直焉用参禅”的原则，在曹溪的后学中可以说是发扬光大了。

荷泽神会的《坛语》与敦煌本《坛经》关于戒律的观念上虽然还存在着明显的差异，^⑧但仍然保留了慧能重于心地上说戒的思想。如《坛语》中说“妄心不起名为戒”。^⑨而石头、洪州、保唐门下，很少提到戒法的传授，严重的，如保唐一系，还对“说持说犯，作想受戒”的行仪有所勘落，斥之为“细步徐行，见是

见非”。^④不过，这都应看做是对戒法形式或外在规范拘执的呵毁，而不是对自心规范的否定。石头门风就有这样的作略。石头的任运所行、不听律、不念戒表示了不重形式的戒法。《祖堂集》卷第四本传中载：“师受戒后，思和尚问：‘你已是受戒了也，还听律也无？’对曰：‘不用听律。’堂曰：‘还念戒也无？’对曰：‘亦不用念戒。’”这是行仪上的“不拘小节”，而其宗要还是要归于自性上的自律，故《祖堂集》又谓其“略探律部，见得失纷然，乃曰：‘自性清净，谓之戒体。诸佛无作，何有生也？’”石头下的药山也讲“离法自净”而不“屑事于细行”，而结合他答石室高沙弥关于受戒之义云“不受戒而远生死”，又批评口说戒行（“犹挂着唇齿在”）的观念看，他只是反对外在的规范。^⑤洪州的禅风一面讲行的放任而同时又主张自心的检束。百丈制定丛林清规虽还有整肃见气、创立法式的意味，^⑥而终究趋于自性无染、无取舍的一流。他对“有罪”、“无罪”的解释，就是从这层意义上说的。^⑦洪州的门下，对自心内在的规范也有清楚的认识。如道一弟子惟宽，就强调了戒规与心法的不二。《传灯录》卷七载其回答白居易问法时说：“无上菩提者，被于身为律，说于口为法，行于心为禅，应用者三，其致一也。譬如江湖淮汉在处立名，名虽不一，水性无二。律即是法，不离于禅，云何于中妄起分别？”显然，他是要把律行化约到心法中，而于自性上确认规范的合法性。

把律制内在化，由自性清净而决定行仪的是否合范，这一点是理解中国禅风中“游戏三昧”与规范关系的重点。禅师们对于行为的自在与放任的不同，是有严格判准的。临济可以为我们提供很好的例证。临济的宗风颇有“向天下横行”的狂者姿态，《人天眼目》卷第三中说：“临济宗者，大机大用，脱罗笼出巢臼，虎骤龙奔，星施电激……负冲天意气，用格外提持，卷舒纵横，杀活自在”。^⑧临济接机的方式，也较极端地表现了放喝、棒

打等作风。

“僧问：‘如何是佛法大意？’师便喝，僧礼拜。师云：‘这个师僧却堪持论。’问：‘师唱谁家曲，宗风嗣阿谁？’师云：‘我在黄檗处三度发问，三度被打。’僧拟议，师便喝。随后打云：‘不可向虚空里钉橛去也。’”《临济录》中类似这种格外提持的事例还很多，我们不必一一详举。这些机用代表临济门风中的“游戏三昧”。照临济的解释，他应用这些手段，是要开启学人真正的见解。“今日学佛法者，且要求真正见解。若得真正见解，生死不染，去住自由……”自由而不流于放任，是临济禅风的本色。在临济看来，缺乏真实见解的“言礼无度”，一味佯狂才是“即心狂”。他斥之为“野狐精魅”，认为这是惑乱天下的根源。于是在自由与放任之间，临济必须寻求某种勘验的法度。不同于一般从经教的文字或外在礼法的建立，去楷定邪正的标准，临济是倾向于从内在化的心地见悟中去加以辨识，这即是著名的宾主论议。

“师示众云：道流，佛法无用功处，只是平常无事，屙屎送尿，著衣吃饭，困来即卧。愚人笑我，智乃知焉。古人云：‘向外作工夫，总是痴顽汉。’你且随处作主，立处皆真，境来回报不得。纵有从来习气，五无间业，自为解脱大海。今时学者总不识法，……奴郎不辨，宾主不分。如是之流，邪心入道，闹处即入，不得名为真出家人，正是真俗家人。”

“问：‘如何是佛魔？’师云：‘你一念心疑处是佛魔。你若达得万法无生，心如幻化，更无一尘一法，处处清净，是佛。’”^⑤

临济拈出的“四宾主”，可谓具体而微地开展了“辨魔拣异，知其邪正”的观念，故《人天眼目》说其“验龙蛇于一主一宾”。可见临济宗风中的活脱自在，严格说来，是因着内在心解的法度，才不至于流于狂荡而有了深一层的秘义。

三、结语

我们要说明的问题是，中国禅宗中的“教行不拘”和“游戏三昧”的作风，并不像学者们一般所认为的那样，必然地流出慢教慢戒的狂禅一流。和明末王学的分流一样，起初，禅师们对于律制都有了自己的看法和心法上的标准，能否坚持这一内在性的标准，成了勘辨邪正的关键和最后防线。故陈坦先生说“惟禅宗明心见性，毁其外不能毁其内”，这是很深刻的见解。^⑥问题就在于，自性戒或内在规范确是孤拔难持、犯众难成的，禅者的行迹，偏于狂的，也有意气太高、行事太奇而易变得没有规矩。就是说，内在律制可能由于取法太高而又缺乏外在律制那种可供把握的具体行仪，无从构成一种普遍有效的规范。它可以成为圣人的法则，却难以形成丛林的一般清规。趋于末流的，自心的持犯就难免是名存实亡而为流弊的滋生提供无数的方便。临济门下，就有不悟而盲喝乱喝的现象。《古尊宿语录》卷第五“临济录”中说“师应机多用喝，会下参徒亦学师喝。师曰：“汝等总学我喝，我今问汝：有一人从东堂出，一人从西堂出。两人齐喝一声，这里分得宾主么？汝且作么生分？若分不得，已后不得学老僧喝。”^⑦从道宣、梁素、宗密、芙蓉、雪峰义存和文益、汉月法藏、无异元来等不同时期、背景下对狂禅者流的批判中，不难发现，中国禅宗祖师过于讲究自性清净而不重于律制的制度化构建，已经常性地或程度不同地造成宗门中“不谙戒律，甚辱祖风”的情况出现，^⑧于是，“游戏三昧”和“内在礼法”原有的积极意义也就易于在这种二律背反的发展中日见式微。

注释：

①席勒，《审美教育书简》（第一五封信），转引自朱光潜，《西方美学史》下卷，北京：人民文学出版社 1984 年，第 450 页。

② “异质性”概念，是在福柯“知识考古学”的意义上使用的。参见《知识考古学》，北京：三联书店 1998 年。

③ 柳田圣山，《禅与中国》，北京：三联书店 1988 年，第 15 页。

④ 参见（荷兰）胡伊青加，《人：游戏者》，贵阳：贵州人民出版社 1998 年，第 38~39 页。

⑤ 《大智度论》，上海：上海古籍出版社 1991 年。

⑥ 僧肇等注，《注维摩诘所说经》，上海古籍出版社 1990 年，第二九、九四页。

⑦ 慧洪，《禅林僧宝传》，《佛光大藏经·禅藏》本。

⑧ 《无门关》，《禅宗语录辑要》，上海古籍出版社 1992 年，第八六三页。

⑨ 加达默尔，《真理与方法——哲学诠释学的基本特征》上卷，上海：上海译文出版社 1992 年，第 134 页。加达默尔在本书第一部分“Ⅱ”中，专门就作为本体论的游戏概念作了深入的分析，可资参考。

⑩ 铃木大拙，《禅学入门》，北京：三联书店 1988 年，第 46 页。

⑪ Bernard Faure, The Rhetoric of Immediacy—A Cultural Critique of Chan/Zen Buddhism, Princeton: 1991. P115–116, 123.

⑫ 《人 游戏者》，第 22~24 页。

⑬ 《真理与方法》，第 131 页。

⑭ 《五灯会元》卷二，“大珠慧海禅师”，北京：中华书局 1984 年。

⑮ 《知识考古学》第 185 页。

⑯ 均见郭良谔译，《经集》，北京：中国社会科学出版社 1990 年，第 31~32 页。

⑰ 吕澂，《辩佛学根本问题》，《中国哲学》第 11 辑，北

京：人民出版社 1984 年。

①⑧ 在西方传统中，游戏概念通常是与工作、劳动严格区分的。如亚里士多德就把游戏视为劳作后的休息与消遣，康德也特别把游戏与“手工艺”或“一种劳动”作为一对照性概念。参见朱光潜，《西方美学史》下册第 383 页。

①⑨ Bernard Faure, The Rhetoric of Immediacy, P117.

②⑩ 郭朋校敦煌本《坛经》，北京：中华书局 1983 年。

②⑪ 分别见《五灯会元》卷第七“保福从展禅师”，卷第十“清凉文益禅师”。

②⑫ 《五灯会元》卷第四，“甘贄行者”。

②⑬ 《景德传灯录》卷三，“第二十八祖菩提达磨”，台北：新文丰出版公司 1997 年影印本。

②⑭ 《五灯会元》卷第十。

②⑮ 《古尊宿语录》卷三，“黄檗（希远）断际禅师宛陵录”，北京：中华书局 1994 年。

②⑯ 《古尊宿语录》卷四“镇州临济（义玄）慧照禅师语录”。

②⑰ 同上。

②⑱ 吕澂，《中国佛学源流略讲》，中华书局 1979 年，第 378 页。

②⑲ 转引林镇国，《空性与现代性》，台北：立绪文化事业有限公司 1999 年，第 59 页。

③⑩ 《五灯会元》卷第二，“保唐无住禅师”。

③⑪ 《十三经注疏》下册，中华书局 1980 年，第二四八一，二四八二页。

③⑫ 郭朋校本《坛经》。

③⑬ 郭象注，成玄英疏，《南华真经·在宥》，上海古籍出版社 1993 年。

③⑭ 郭象，《南华真经序》，同上本。

③⑤ 成玄英，《南华真经疏序》，同上本。

③⑥ 《南华真经·在宥》。

③⑦ 《历代法宝记》，《佛光大藏经·禅藏》本。

③⑧ 郭朋校本《坛经》。

③⑨ The Rhetoric of Immediacy, P103 - 105.

④① 均见僧肇等注，《注维摩诘所说经》，第二七，九四页。

④② 《大正藏》卷十五。

④③ 同上。

④④ 《出三藏记集》卷六，中华书局 1995 年，第二四三页。

④⑤ 参见道安，《安般注序》，同上本。

④⑥ 慧皎，《高僧传》卷十一，中华书局 1992 年，第四二六，四二七页。

④⑦ 详见拙著，“重提印度禅与中国禅——一种早期的思想史观察”，《中国佛学》第二卷第 2 期。

④⑧ Bernard Faure, The will to Orthodoxy——A Critical Genealogy of Northern Chan Buddhism, California: 1997. P10.

④⑨ The Rhetoric of Immediacy, P105 - 125.

④⑩ 《古尊宿语录》卷一，“大鉴下三世（百丈怀海大智禅师）”。

④⑪ 郭朋校本《坛经》。慧能多次引述《梵经》来说明此义，可见他的自性戒观念是印度大乘菩萨戒法的引探。《梵经》中就明确提到，从“心地法门”中讲“一切众生戒，本源自性清净”。参见《大正藏》卷二四。

④⑫ 《瑞州洞山良价禅师语录》，《禅宗语录辑要》本。

④⑬ 铃木哲雄，《唐五代禅宗史》，第四六五，四六六页，山喜房佛书林，昭和 60 年。

④⑭ 均见《大正藏》卷十五。

④⑮ 印顺，《中国禅宗史》，南昌：江西人民出版社 1990 年，

第 45 ~ 46 页。

⑤⑥ 《大正藏》卷八十五。

⑤⑦ 从北宗对于戒行有相当的重视，但从现有的纪录看，其多讲以律扶禅，似乎并没有特别暗示从自性上来了解。如王维说净觉禅师“律仪细行，周密护持”，“戒生忍草，定长禅枝”。（《全唐文》卷三百二十七；大唐大安国寺故大德净觉师塔铭）“唐少林寺同光禅师塔铭”中说到“以修行之本，莫大于律仪，究竟之心，须终于禅寂。禅律之道，其在斯乎。”（《全唐文》卷四百四十一）《大照禅师塔铭》也提到普寂“以正戒为墙，智常为座”；尸波罗蜜是汝之师，摩他门是汝依处”（《全唐文》卷二百六十二）此外，《文苑英华》卷八六〇中所载李华的“大律师碑”，卷八五八载的“嵩岳寺碑”中，都有相似的说法。

⑤⑧ Bernard Faure, The Will to Orthodoxy, P107 ~ 118.

⑤⑨ 湛如，“简论《六祖坛经》的无相忏悔——兼谈唐代禅宗忏法体系的形成”，《六祖慧能思想研究——“慧能与岭南文化”国际学术研讨会论文集》，《学术研究》杂志社印行。

⑤⑩ 杨曾文编校，《神会和尚话录》，中华书局 1996 年，第六页。

⑥① 《历代法宝记》，《佛光大藏经·禅藏》本。

⑥② 《祖堂集》卷第四，“药山和尚”，长沙：岳麓书社 1996 年。

⑥③ 阿部肇一认为，百丈一改传统“律制”而创立了一种新的“律禅”，详见其著《中国禅宗史——南宋成立以后的政治社会史的考证》，台北：东大图书公司 1988 年，第 37 ~ 38 页。

⑥④ 《古尊宿语录》卷一，“大鉴下三世（百丈怀海大智禅师）”。

⑥⑤ 《人天眼目》，《禅宗语录辑要》本。

⑥⑥ 《古尊宿语录》卷“镇州临济（义玄）慧照禅师语录”。

⑥⑥ 陈恒，《中国佛教史籍概论》，中华书局 1962 年，第四十页。

⑥⑦ 《古尊宿语录》卷四“镇州临济(义玄)慧照禅师语录”。

⑥⑧ 《敕修百丈清规》，转引阿部肇一，《中国禅宗史》，第 38 页。

佛教影响下的荣格

——从《起信论》到《向死者七次布道》

刘耀中

荣格与佛家的关系已经被许多学者所论及，如哈罗德·考沃德（Harold Coward）在其《荣格与东方思想》一书中^①，便以印度佛教为背景说明荣格所受东方思想的影响。但是，我们认为 Harold Coward 的著作有贡献也有局限，他不了解中国文化与荣格思想的关系。因而，我们在“佛教影响下的荣格”的标题下，将要论述这样两个事实：

（1）佛教对荣格的影响不是在荣格的思想成熟之后，而是在其成熟之前；

（2）佛教对荣格的影响主要来自中国，荣格的思想基础是中国的文化传统。

几年前，我把荣格自传中附录的《向死者七次布道》翻译成了中文^②。荣格这篇完成于 1916 年的文章，带有许多神秘的色彩，尤其是他在七次布道的结尾，说了几句类似咒语的文字，他自己从未告诉任何人这些文字的意思，而至今也没有任何人能够理解其真正含义。但是，对于细心读过荣格著作的人来说，《向

* 刘耀中（Edward Jung Low）：华裔荣格学者，著名文化评论家。

死者七次布道》的意义则是十分明确的，在其神秘的色彩和神秘气氛的背后，所反映的是一种中国佛教的境界。

“一群死者从耶路撒冷归来，在那里他们的追求未能如愿以偿。他们恳求我让他们进来，倾听我的训示……”于是，荣格便开始了他向死者的布道。

荣格说：“我从一开始就觉得世界是虚无的，而虚无就是充满”；“人是一扇门，通过这们你可以从诸神、恶魔和灵魂的外部世界进入到内部世界，可以从一个大宇宙进入自己的小天地。”在这向死者的七次布道中，荣格认为他已经体悟到了“空无一物又万物皆有的道或佛性”，于是他列举了生与死、光明与黑暗等对立的统一，试图阐述在把握佛性上获得两极的和谐。而这种佛性，既是一种原始的心理模型，也是荣格所描述的集体无意识的本质属性。

显然，荣格在这里所表达的，是一种典型的佛教思想。那么，荣格的这些佛教思想又是从哪里来的呢？当我们把荣格的《向死者七次布道》，与佛教大乘入门经典《大乘起信论》来做比较的时候^③，上面的问题便不言而喻了。

《大乘起信论》一向被认为是大乘佛教的入门书，人们认为其为印度的马鸣所著，但实际上是中国佛教学者托名而做^④。因为在印度本土，从未能够找到《大乘起信论》的梵文原本，而流行于后世的，只是出现在中国南朝和唐朝的两个中文版本。1897年，长期生活在中国的西方传教士李提默太，在南朝真谛中文版本的基础上，将《大乘起信论》翻译成了英文，并于1907年在中国的上海首次公开出版，1910年在爱丁堡出版了同样的版本。实际上，一向沉迷于佛教研究的日本学者、明治维新时的铃木大拙，已经在1900年出版了他根据唐朝中文本翻译的《大乘起信论》^⑤。我认为，荣格是读了《大乘起信论》之后，才触发了他向死者布道的想法，才产生了《向死者七次布道》这篇带有东方

神秘色彩的著作。

在《大乘起信论》开篇的赞美诗中，有这样明确的表达：佛法包含万有，包含着万有的原始模型（Archetype of all）。大乘起信论的基本教义，是要提出宇宙永恒的灵魂的本质与特性。这种永恒的灵魂的本质，也正是所有存在的理由，而其特性，可以有三种基本的表达：

1. 其无所不包的特性，在真如原形的意义上，所有的事物都源于一、同属于一；
2. 其表现为万有特性，成为如来真人，便能够知悉世间万事与万物；
3. 其无穷的能量，宇宙灵魂能够为世间万物提供生生不息的动力源泉。

不难看出，荣格在其《向死者七次布道》中所表达的基本思想，也正是《大乘起信论》的中心论点。同时，在李提默太所翻译的《大乘起信论》中，还十分明确地表示：The soul of Mind of the True Model is the great essence of the invisible and the visible worlds。（真如模型的灵魂或心魂，是可见世界与不可见世界的伟大本质。）这实际上也就是荣格表达为“集体无意识”（collective - unconscious）的本来意义。

1960年，沃尔顿（Alan Hull Walton）在重新编辑出版李提默太的翻译本时，曾经做了这么一段评论：李提默太对《大乘起信论》的翻译，对于那些具有基督教背景，崇拜东方但尚未能接触佛教思想的读者来说，可谓是雪中送炭。1907年前后，也正是荣格向东方来追求灵感，构思与创建他的原始模型、集体无意识和个体化心理学意义的时候，这一代表中国佛教思想的《大乘起信论》，给荣格送去了心理学创作的动力源泉。

我们在文章的开始，提出要论述两个事实：1. 佛教对荣格的影响不是在荣格的思想成熟之后，而是在其成熟之前；2. 佛

教对荣格的影响主要来自中国，荣格的思想基础是中国的传统文化。荣格通过李提默太翻译的《大乘起信论》而开始接触佛教思想，这直接反映在其 1916 年完成的《向死者七次布道》中，代表了其心理学思想发展的基础，而作为大乘佛教入门的《大乘起信论》，并非如人们所认为的那样是古印度的马鸣所撰，而实际上是中国佛教学者托名而作。因而，在《大乘起信论》中，所表达的是一种中国佛教的奠基思想。

当然，荣格思想的来源并不是单一的^①，在 1910 年前后的近 20 年间，他也曾深入地研究了广泛影响西方的诺斯替思想，而在其《向死者七次布道》中，我们也可以看到这种影响的痕迹。在李提默太之前，德国学者马克斯·米勒（Max Miller）也曾翻译了许多著名的东方经典，包括同样为大乘佛教经典的《楞伽经》，荣格在早期所受东方思想尤其是佛教思想的影响，也不局限于李提默太翻译的《大乘起信论》。

注释：

① 《荣格与东方思想》，“Jung and Eastern Thought” by Harold Coward. state Univ. of New York Press, NY, 1985。

② 刘耀中、李以洪同著《建造灵魂的宇宙——西方著名心理学家荣格评传》，东方出版社，中国北京，1996 年版内的附录《向死者七次布道——荣格》。

③ 马鸣（Ashvagoshā）.《The Awakening of Faith》，Translated by Timothy Richard. Edited by A. H. Walton Forwarded by Aldous Huxley, University Book, NY, 1960。这是李提默太译的《大乘起信论》的再版。

④ 任继愈主编《宗教辞典》，上海辞书出版社，1983 年。

⑤ 伊文思、温慈（Evans - wentz），“The Tibetan Book of the Dead,” Oxford Univ, 1927。这是莲花生著的英文译本原名《西藏

度亡经》，徐进夫译本是在北京宗教文化出版社 1995 年，该书内有铃木大拙的译本的摘录。

⑥刘耀中著《荣格》，台湾东大图书公司印行，1995 年。

《易经》与儒、道、心理学

傅剑平^{*}

《易经》说的人很多，自有《易经》以来，产生了数不清的说辞，和成系统的理论。但是，于《易经》本身的许多重要问题，仍然是不清楚的，比如易卦究竟源何而产生？“易”字其本义究竟是什么？等等。从《周礼》可以知道，古有“大卜，掌三兆之法；……掌三易之法。”古时的《易经》并非只有一部，而是三部：（1）《连山》；（2）《归藏》；（3）《周易》。而且系统方法也有异，《连山》、《归藏》以不变为占，而《周易》以文献，即便函是周代，预占吉凶的数术主要有三种：（1）卜法；（2）筮法；（3）梦占。三者的地位，卜法居首，筮法次之，梦占只起到参考的作用。周人用《周易》或许多些，但并不代表《周易》在那个时代有什么特别的重要性。

从《易》的不变为占和以变为占的性质，又从《易》的操作相对不太过繁难的事实，就衍生出“易”一名含三义之说，即简易、变易、不易。简易的方法，使得《易经》便于操作，易于传播。不易的性质，使得从周代起，《易经》就以经卦八、别卦六十四的内容形式一直流传下来。变易的性质，不仅使得《易经》

^{*} 傅剑平，博士，教授，华南师范大学中文系

本身的组合、变化包罗万象，更使关于《易经》发展、变化的种种新说、新理论体系的产生、衍化成为可能。《连山》、《归藏》可以说是道器同体，此所以易道其能广大。《周易》产生之初，就其所蕴含的方法和理论而言，自然是“道”。世易时移，易道的价值没有消逝，而又成为后人托附己说的一个张本，种种的新义都能援易而入，《易》就变成了“器”。这种现象，用王夫之的话来说，就是“学成于聚，新故相资历而新其故”。^①“故”就是“不易”，而“新其故”就是“变易”了。

《易经》与儒道

近几年来，《易经》研究的热点之一，是探讨《易经》（包括《经》和《传》两部分与儒道两家的关系。观点主要分为两派，一派认为《易经》的“十翼”为孔子所作，“系辞”是孔子儒家的哲学思想；一派则认为易“系辞”主要反映老子道家之观点，进而更认为《易经》非儒家典籍，乃道家系统之作。余意，《易经》（不含“传”）之产生时代，早于儒、道两家，可以说《易经》（不含“传”）同为儒、道之源。儒、道两家源于《易经》（不含“传”），而又各有发明，发展方向有别而已。儒家述《易经》，突出了人与人、人与社会的人伦之道，以人伦论证人道；道家论《易经》，突出了人与自然的自然之道，以天道说明人道。究之以《易经》儒、道两家所崇之端，历历俱存。限于时间，今天在这里不能详细具论，只提出儒、道两家均源自《易经》的“饮食之道”来加以说明。

饮食不仅是人类赖以生存的物质基础，一日不可缺少，而且祭享占筮、祈风时顺及年丰大小等内容也无不以饮食为主要的对象。中国的先民根据人类基本物质生活及精神生活的经验将其升华为抽象的道理即“饮食之道”。先秦时代以至整个封建社会，象征国家最高政治权力的鼎彝尊盘，以及绝大部分礼器，究其本

来功能无一不是先民饮食之器皿。于此可知，古代中国很多的思想文化观念和社会政治制度，都从“饮食之道”为喻而立论，而运作，这可以说是中国传统文化的一大特点。而此一大文化特点，是由《易经》首先系统确立起来的。《易经》六十四卦中，有二十四卦是讲“饮食之道”的，其中尤以《需》、《噬嗑》、《颐》、《艮》、《谦》诸卦更为重要，不但讲“饮食之道”，更提出“养生”之说。儒家与道家受到《易经》以“饮食”之道为喻来立身处世、治国经邦的重大影响，十分明显。儒家提出“民以食为天”，认为“为君之道所生在人之食”，并认为“食为八政之首”^②，其他类似的儒家道理，多至不可胜计。而《老子》以“治大国若烹小鲜”^③之说喻为政治国之道，庄子以“饮食”为“养生之主”，以“庖丁解牛”喻要妙之道的境界，都是明证。至于道家、道教之种种细致入微的以“饮食之道”修持养生，以达采真补元的“真人”之境，内容就更广为人知了。从这个意义上讲，《易经》的“饮食之道”确实是我们进一步去认识、探究中国传统文化的一把钥匙。

《易经》与心理学

首先要说明，我的专业并非心理学，今天我所能讲的，仅是从一个中国传统文化的研究者，从《易经》的角度，来说明中国传统文化和西方心理学的“联姻”，是可信和可行的。荣格教授当年曾提出“哲学与心理学的联姻”，由于中国传统文化史哲不分家的性质，使得这种中国传统文化与西方心理学“联姻”的视野，变得更加宽阔和深入。

荣格教授在《分析心理学》里，曾经提出并论说了诸如“词联想方法、积极想像方法”、“宗教、神话、传说与原始意象联系”、“感觉、思想、直觉、无意识和集体无意识”、“移情作用”、“梦分析等等理论和方法。众所周知，这些已经是荣格思想的重要

概括。而荣格教授所讲述论说的这些理论和方法，在《易经》中也能得到印证。

《易经》的表现形式是用卦画、爻辞等符号来象征代表自然变化和人事休咎，《易经·系辞下》“是故易者象也，象也者像也”。然后，又辅之以种种联类譬喻式的词语，或暗示，或明指，或罗列，以激发占者关联式的思考（corelative thinking）。这所谓“关联式的思考”，正是中国古人习常的一种思维方式，大体上包括了想像（imagination）、类比论证（analogy）和直觉（intuition）等方法在内。《易经》正是用了这些形式方法让人通过卦画、卦辞、爻辞及各种辅助性的说明，去“积极的想像（creative imagination）”。而更重要的是，因了自然、人生的复杂，《易经》在占卜预测时，更注重其操作形式的神秘性，一切的结果并非明白宣告，更多的是通过上述方法，开启人们通向无意识之路。而整个《易经》的系统，相当程度上，正是依赖于人们的集体无意识，而得以产生、存在和发展的。《易经》六十四卦中的相当部分，作为古人筮占的记录，可以说正是古人无意识过程的记录。

《易经》中有许多析梦的经卦，著名的如“履”卦之梦虎，“剥”卦之梦伤身，“咸”卦之梦所见事，都是显例。与《易经》同时流行的“三兆”之一的梦占，虽然与《易经》不是一个系统，但尤可资代心理学作为分析的材料是显而易见的。

最后，我想说一说对于“移情”、“投射”的看法。荣格教授在论说“移情”时，曾特别指出：“移情通常是发生于两个人之间的一种作用，而不是发生于一个人的主体和一个物质的客体之间。”基于此，荣格教授认为“移情”是“必须消解”的，因为“非人格内容的投射”是一种有害的无意识心理作用，所以意识或有意的认识便会摧毁它。^④对此，包括对《易经》在内的中国传统文化的认识，我有不同的理解，以求教大家。

西方哲学是强调主客体分立的哲学，以此一主客分立哲学的

标准立论，荣格教授关于移情、投射心理作用的分析，我自己完全认同。但中国传统文化与西方哲学文化不相同的一点，恰恰是中国古代的哲学与文化，是一种主客不分立，或并不那么强调主客分立的哲学与文化。正因此，《易经》企图证明宇宙，包括自然界同人类社会，是一个有联贯性的整体，帮《系辞传》说“天下同归而殊途；一致而百虑”。所以，在《易经》中就可以用“天象”说明“人象”，用天道论说人道，二者密不可分。这种人立于天地之间，是自然的一部分的思想，在儒家的“天人合一”和道家的天地万物同生于“太一”，“天地与我并生，而万物与我为一”等思想中，都有同样的认识 and 表现。在这样一种思想文化背景之中，“不言我遇物而言物迎我，不言物感我而言我赠物”^⑤的移情、投射心理，就可以不被意识或有意的认识摧毁，因为此种移情、投射无论是出于无意识，或竟然是有意的认识的心理作用，就不一定全是有害的。否则，像《易经》这样充满“究天之际”内容的东西，竟然会成为中国传统文化的宝典，便难以想像了。

《易经》蕴含着众多有关心理分析的素材乃至个案，若从严谨的心理科学观点看来，还是尚未成为心理科学的东西。要使之成为科学心理学，则有待于东西方科学家的密切合作和深入研究。正如荣格教授曾经说过的那样：“去占有新的事实，去寻求新的理论。”^⑥

注释：

①王夫之《周易外传》。

②见班固《汉书·艺文志》“农家”部分，及颜师古注。

③见《老子》第六十章，及《庄子》“养生主”。

④见荣格《分析心理学》，上海译文出版社，第139、第156、第140页。

⑤见钱钟书《管锥篇》第 908 页。

⑥见《分析心理学》。

宇宙·人格·悟性

——中国古代心理思想的诠释学解读

杨广学^{*}

摘要：中国传统文化，尤其是原始儒学、道学和中国化的大乘佛学，以及融合三家的王阳明心学，蕴含着十分丰富、独具一格而且极其高明的心理学思想资源，值得经由文化和创造的诠释，推陈出新。本文首次提出并讨论了代表中国文化心理学的宇宙论、人格文化论、直觉悟性论。

关键词：心理学 诠释学 文化传统

中国五千年的文明史给人类留下了无比珍贵的文化宝藏。中国文化源远流长，博大精深，是我们建设新文化、开创新生活的不可替代的精神资源。在世纪之交东西方文化的冲突与融汇的大潮中，在中国现代化的进程中，能否发扬我们的文化主体意识，能否善用我们丰富的文化资源，直接影响着中华民族的复兴大业。

文化传统意识的继承不是为了“保存国粹”，更不是发思古之幽情，而是要从现代和后代的广阔视角，融会古今，贯通中西，进行文化传统之间的多元对话，用诠释学的方法创造性地解

^{*} 杨广学：心理学博士，教授，烟台师范学院

读传统，以推动新文化的综合创造。

心理学思想是文化的核心成分。中国文化中蕴藏着十分丰富、独具一格而且极其高明的心理学思想，值得我们下大力气开采、阐发。本文综合介绍最有中国特色的三种心理观，即宇宙生命论、人格文化论、悟性直观论。需要指出，这几种观点的提出意在提示中国传统心理思想的特色，并非包罗万象的概括，只能作为进一步研究的起点而不是最终结论。

一、宇宙生命论

传统中国文化把宇（上下四方）宙（古往今来）以及世界万物看做一个统一、完整的有机联系的大系统。宇宙、天地、自然等词都是指一个生生不息、大化流行的过程。我们不妨称这种整体变化的宇宙观为宇宙生命论。

“生”即化生。命即命运，规律不移之胃。《周易·系辞下》说：“天地之大德曰生”；“生生之谓易”。《周易·咸卦》曰：“柔上而刚下，二气感应以相与；……天地感，而万物化生。”《周易·乾卦》说：“大哉乾元，乃统天。云行雨施，品物流形。大明统始，六位时成。……乾道变化，各正性命。保合大和，乃利贞。首出庶物，万国咸宁。”（参考译文：乾元盛大，万物由此生化育，归属天下。云气流动，雨水下降，各种物品变化成形。太阳周而复始地运行，天地四时有了规则。……天道变易生化，使万物具有了自己的本性和命运。天道谐合统一，正常顺利。众物生成，万国安宁。）

《周易》所把握的宇宙是一个完整、统一、自生自造、恒变不居、大化流行的宏伟生命。在这里，时空万物自然成理，普遍周行，和谐有序，生化成性（本性），率性成命。这个宇宙大生命自生自长，“范围天地之化而不过，曲成万物而不遗，通乎昼夜之道而知，故神无方而易无体”（《周易·系辞上传》）。终始往

复，表现出自己的性、命、道、理。管子说：“道者，扶持众物使得生育，而各终其性命者也。”（《管子·形势解》）性命之理，自然之情，就是“道”。换言之，宇宙的变化规律、万物的本性、命运，就是道。

天道有常。庄子说得最清楚：“天地有大美而不言，四时有明法而不议，万物有成理而不说。圣人者，原天地之美而达万物之理，是故至人无为，大圣不作，观天地之谓也。”（《庄子·知北游》）天道之常即“天命”。《周易》说：“一阴一阳之谓道。继之者，善也；成之者，性也；仁者见之仁，知者见之知。”（《系辞上》）又说：“刚自外来，而为主于内，动而健，刚中而应，大亨以正，天之命也。”（《无妄·彖辞》）大道运行，自然合理，人之性、物之性都与天道相一致。“圣人之作易也，将以顺性命之理。”（《周易·系辞下》）孟子的心性说认为人道以天道为本，尽心知性、顺乎自然常态生活就是有道德的君子，“天之生物也，使之一本”（《孟子·滕文公上》）；“天生蒸民，有物有则。”（《孟子·告子上》）；因此，人只要保持本性善良的真心就能合乎天道：“尽其心，知其性也，知其性，则知天矣。”（《孟子·尽心上》）

传统中国哲学的最高境界是“天人合一”。以孔孟为代表的原始儒学强调人的主观能动精神，主张人要效法天地，弘道修德，尊生主动，以人的创造与宇宙的大化流行相回应、相媲美。

“唯天下之至诚，为能尽其性；能尽其性，则能尽人之性；能尽人之性，则能尽物之性；能尽物之性，则可以赞天地之化育；可以赞天地之化育，则可以与天地参矣。”（《中庸》）天地人三才鼎足而三，宇宙大生命之创造精神周流遍布，贯注于自然之万物，也是人的生命根源。体仁爱物的道德实践的依据和最终鹄的的都是天人合一，即超越人己物我之间的鸿沟，达到天与人、人与人、人与物之间真正的和谐统一的境界。

以老子、庄子为代表的原始道家崇天道、尚自然，不以人害

天“致虚极，守静笃”（《道德经》），齐物我，超对待，破除“芒味”，致广大，尽精微，不受物役，不为俗累，“照之于天”，而达到与宇宙大生命贯通契合而浑然一体的超越境界……“天地与我并生，万物与我为一”（《庄子·齐物论》）。道家与儒家虽有道德实践上的争论，但在天人合一观和宇宙生命论的根本出发点和终极归宿上，却是立场近似，殊途同归。儒道互补的源头也就在于这一根本点的相通。

天人合一思想是传统中华精神具有的一个核心特征。它与西方文化中心与物、人与自然的机械割裂和对立形成鲜明对照。面对种种现代文明病的肆虐，如环境的破坏、资源的浪费、价值的虚无、人格的分裂等等，天人合一思想的魅力已得到东西方许多有识之士的广泛赞赏。

而天人合一之所以可能，是以宇宙生命论为依据的。深入研究中国传统的有机宇宙观对于本土化心理学的建设，意义重大而深远。

二、人格文化论

以人为本的人本主义思想是中国传统文化的基调。天、地、人三材，人居于中心。人非天地不生，天地非人不灵。人为万物之灵，也是天地之心。这与西方流行的偶像化宗教神学思想形成鲜明对比。人格文化论集中体现了中华民族的伟大人本主义精神。

理想人格是中国各种思想流派毫无保留地共同致力的目标。而培养理想人格的途径是天人合一的尽心知性、道德践履功夫。以文化教育培养健全人格以至于建设大同社会是儒学的根本宗旨。《易传·文言》说：“夫大人者，与天地合其德，与日月共其明，与四时合其序，与鬼神合其吉凶。先天而天弗违，后天而奉天时。”就是说“大人”无私无偏，遵循自然规律行事，能够做

到与天地合德，即以人道贯彻天道。圣人“仰以观于天文，俯以察于地理，是故知幽明之故。原始反终，故知死生之说，……知周乎万物，而道济天下，故不过。旁行而不流，乐天知命，故不忧。安土敦乎仁，故能爱。范围天地之化而不过，曲成万物而不遗……”。这种乐天知命、仁人爱物的“大人”或“圣人”是儒学最高的人格理想。

宋朝大儒张载在《西铭》中说：“天地之塞，吾其体；天地之帅，吾其性。民，吾同胞；物，吾与也。”天地生人，人体与天体合一；充满天地之间、主宰万物、统帅一切的精神，也就是人的天性或本性。中华文化的理想人格确实是顶天立地、大写的人。民胞物与的气概与心胸不愧是中国人本精神的高标绝响。

“文以化之”的道德实践的方法集中地体现在以孔子《论语》为代表的圣贤典籍之中。例如，《论语·季氏》一篇就反复申述“三友”、“三乐”、“三戒”、“三畏”、“九思”（视思明、听思聪、色思温、貌思恭、言思忠、事思敬、疑思问、忿思难，见得思义）等为人处世的道理；初看似觉平凡无奇，实乃修养高深的微言大义，不愧“极高明而道中庸”的美誉。“纸上得来终觉浅，绝知此事要躬行。”理想人格的实现要落实在日常生活的身体力行，落实在诚意、正心、修身、齐家、治国、平天下的功德言行。

《周易·贲》说：“观乎天文以观时变，观乎人文以化成天下。”人文教化即文化的本义。社会生活和人格修养都是文以化之的过程，即人的广义的文化创造。王阳明倡导“致良知”，倡导“知行合一”，即主张人要克服一己之私欲，用本然良知去体验诚信躬行，落实在做人处世的道德实践之中。这样一种见心知性、民胞物与的人本主义文化精神与天道自然的宇宙观相辅相成，形成了中国十分独特而又极其高明的宇宙哲学和人生哲学，同时也就是一种“一以贯之”的心理学思想体系。

三、直觉悟性论

贯穿全部中国文化的特征鲜明的整体思维方式可以概括为悟性的直觉或直觉的悟性。这一思维特征是理解中国人的心理以至整个中华文化精神的中心环节。

悟性 (understanding) 和直觉 (intuition) 是中国人智慧活动的体 (本体) 和用 (功用) 两个方面: 悟性是体, 直觉是用, 体用不二; 合起来就是悟性的直觉 (intuition by understanding) 或直觉的悟性 (intuitive understanding)。悟性与理性 (ration) 是人类特有的两种基本能力, 是相对独立的两种智慧形式。简略说来, 理性是分析的、逻辑的、概念式的、线形推理的, 而悟性是整体的、直观的、意向的、跳跃飞动的。理性的长处是条分缕析、脉络清楚; 悟性的长处是整体把握、不离根本。现代人类各民族在一定程度上都具有这两种智慧形式, 不过在两者的组合方式和水平上有着各种各样的差别。在人类文明发展史上, 悟性的发展应该远远早于理性的发展; 在个体生命的过程中也应该是悟性在先, 理性晚出。这样看来, 悟性又是理性发展的基础。

中国人直觉悟性的思维特征突出地表现在中华文化的各个方面。例如在绘画中注意气韵的生动、传神得意; 在书法中取法“经天纬地”(王羲之语)、“睹物象而致思”(卫恒语); 《易经》的图像思维; 《诗经》三百篇常用的比兴手法; 中医学的“闻、问、望、切”阴阳虚实辨证, 中药学的“君、臣、佐、使”和四气、“五味”、“升降浮沉”理论, 都鲜明地体现了中国人在整体中把握变化的直觉悟性的思维方式。

悟性的运用方式是整体的、直觉的、超概念、超逻辑的、直接体悟的、主客统合的。与西方知、情、意三分的心理学和主客(心物)二元的传统哲学不同, 中国式的整体思维在主体意识的生命中把握客观事物(事件), 通过自我反思(内省)获得世界

与人生的意义；在情感体验和意向活动中确立主体存在的方式和原则；在道德、艺术、生产实践中完成自我、贡献社会；在终极关怀的意义上，又能够参悟理一分疏，体认真如不二，做到任运自然，超越有形有限，实现真善美合一的无差别境界。

原始儒学、道学和中国化的大乘佛学以及融合三家、汇通一体的宋明理学、尤其是王阳明贯通有无的心学都是发挥直觉悟性的优秀代表。儒家讲求“反求诸己”、“穷理尽性”、“四端”、“七情”、“浩然之气”、“体会为心”、“天道性命”和“躬行践履”；道家主张“抱朴归真”、“虚静”、“心斋”、“忘我”、“言无言”、“体道”、“体自然”、“神与物游”；佛学倡导“明心见性”、“顿悟”、“无思之思”、“即色即空”、“体用不二”、“即心即性即佛”、“触事而真”、“目击道存”等等，都是十分深刻精到的心理学洞见。

西方传统哲学和心理学偏重于形式逻辑的分析理性，偏重于概念的思维和实证的推理，相对忽视了直觉悟性的地位和作用。认真继承中华优秀传统文化，很重要的一个任务就是研究、发扬我们民族善于运用直觉悟性进行整体思维的传统，克服西方学术中常见的只能分不能合、只讲有不讲无、拘泥僵死的概念而不知变通的形式主义弊病。

整体思维具有超越形式逻辑、超越概念体系、超越主客体对待、是非争执的特征。现象与本质、事实与价值、内与外、知与行都能够融会贯通、全面地加以把握，并一以贯之地落实到言传、意会、体味、解悟、证修和践履的人生实践之中。消融一切界限与分别，综合一切差异与对立，在永恒的流动变化中掌握自然的性命道理，正是人类直觉悟性的巨大优势所在。

周敦颐与荣格的人格观比较

郭斯萍*

摘要：人格可分为精神人格与面具人格，在肯定与重视精神人格的意义方面，东方的周敦颐与西方的荣格可谓殊途同归。周敦颐的“圣人”人格以划分善恶始，以扬善抑恶终，导致生命力衰弱的精神人格。荣格的“自性”人格强调各种原型的和谐统一，承认“阴影”的强大活力与升华。两种理想人格相比又的确是貌合神离。

关键词：精神人格 面具人格

一、问题：人格、面具人格、精神人格

人格（Personality）一词源自拉丁文“面具”（Persona）。面具是在戏台上扮演角色所戴上的特殊脸目，它表现剧中人物的身份。我国京剧的脸谱如大花脸等也代表人物性格和角色特点。把面具指义为人格，实际上说明两层意思：（1）一个人在生活舞台上演出的种种行为；（2）一个人真实的自我。把人格说成是面具那样的东西，说明人格就是表现于外的、在公众场合上的自我。我们把自己显示于世界的面具当作我们的人格，这种说法正好表

郭斯萍：副教授，江西师范大学心理技术应用研究所。

明人还有由于某些原因不显示的蕴藏起来的東西。

面具一词经过心理学界和其他有关领域的多种应用并产生了不少演变之后，瑞士心理学家荣格（Carl Gustav Jung）将它采用于自己的学说之中，其含义指自我的外延，指人对于社会习俗和惯例向他提出的要求而做出反应时所具备的外壳。按照荣格的观点，文化要求于他所扮演的角色就成为人格，其实也就是他的公开的人格。这种包括外部的自我和内部的自我，就是真实的人——人格。

那么，人格到底是什么呢？最为简明的说法就是，人格是人的特点的一种组织。人有表现于外的、给人印象的特点，也有外部未必显露的、可以间接测得和验证的特点。这些稳定而异于他人的特质模式，给人的行为以一定的倾向性，它表现了一个由表及里的、包括心身在内的真实的个人——人格。

可见，人格一词从内容、特点上分析便有外部人格与内部人格之分。外部人格就是“外部的自我”，即荣格所概括的“文化要求于他所扮演的角色”或“外壳”，也就是面具一词的本义，本文统称为“面具人格”。内部人格就是“内部的自我”，“不显示的蕴藏起来的東西”，即“真实的自我”，本文统称为“精神人格”。面具人格与精神人格的关系就体现了“由表及里、包括心身在内的真实的个人”的人格内涵。

在人格的上述结构中精神人格显然居于重要和决定地位，面具人格则处于次要和被决定地位。成熟、健康、稳定的精神人格是人格的动力之源、活力之源，同时也是面具人格的真正支柱与核心。心理学界对于精神人格较为重视的主要是精神分析学派。除此之外，真正把对精神人格的思考视若生命的则是那些关注人类命运、个人幸福的思想家们。比如先秦孟子的“吾养吾浩然之气”，宋代陆九渊的“我堂堂地做个人”，都鲜明地提出了塑造“精神人格”的重要性问题。本文之所以要将西方新精神分析

派的重要代表荣格与我国宋代理学的开山鼻祖周敦颐这两个看起来毫不相关的历史人物放到一起来比较，就是因为在他们各自的学说中实际上论述着一个共同而永恒的主题——精神人格的重要性及其完善途径。换句话说，这种比较决不是为了文章的猎奇，而是问题本身的重要意义所致。

二、比较：“圣人”人格与“自性”人格

（一）关于精神人格的重要性之比较

宋代是一个文化繁荣、学术灿烂的朝代，这种传统尤其以理学为辉煌，其经脉连贯明代。宋代哲学在我国哲学发展史上有一个鲜明特色，就是特别强调精神文明，把精神文明提得很高，认为精神文明高于物质文明。其精神文明的内容包括：（1）强调道德的自觉性。在宋代哲学中最重视的就是怎样做人的问题，特别强调人的价值、人的自觉、人格尊严。（2）强调民族气节。宋代理学家对外族入侵绝不屈服，南宋末年文天祥就保持着高度的民族气节，这也是受理学影响的结果。

宋代哲学以理学为代表，而理学的开创者就是周敦颐。周敦颐（1017—1073 年）又称濂溪、周子，他的两篇哲学短文《太极图说》与《通书》就充分反映了宋代哲学的上述特点。周敦颐认为做人的最高目标是“圣人”，即经过了“士”与“贤”两个层次的修炼之后便是“圣”。在《太极图说》中他论述了一个由无极而太极，由太极而阴阳，由阴阳而五行，由五行而万物，“惟人得其秀而最灵”^①的宇宙万物和人的生成说。而在人类中，“圣人定之以中正仁义而主静，立人极焉”^②。所以，人是自然的精华，而圣人又是人的精华，是与“太极”相对应的“人极”。从自然的精华到人的精华，表现为“士—贤—圣”的修炼进程，这个进程充分标示出了人类精神发展的层次特点与价值水平。精神是大自然全部精华的结晶，“形既生矣，神发知矣”^③，因此作为

人格结构核心内容的精神便必然成为以周敦颐为首的宋代理学家们所首先思考和主要关注的问题。事实上，周敦颐、张载、二程、朱熹和陆九渊等理学家，不仅其学识博大精深，而且其人格修养颇有仁者风范。他们都曾在朝为官，都是众口皆碑的清官。他们都是“为学即为人”思想的积极倡导者和杰出践行者。

前面提到过荣格关于人格的解释。荣格（1875—1961 年）是瑞士心理学家，他创立的分析心理学大大发展了弗洛伊德的古典精神分析理论。在荣格的心理学中，人格作为一个整体就称为精神（Psyche）。精神包括所有的思想、感情和行为，无论是意识的还是无意识的。它的作用就像一个指南针，调节和控制着个体，使他适应社会环境和自然环境。“心理学不是生物学，不是生理学，也不是任何别的科学，而恰恰是这种关于精神的知识。”^④精神如此之重要，于是便成了荣格学说的核心，也成了他终生孜孜思考的主题。荣格的精神概念等同于人格，其中“思想、感情”属于精神人格，“行为”则属于面具人格。尤其荣格在以意识为维度把精神分析为“意识”“个人无意识”“集体无意识”三个层次时，更加强调了人格的精神内容。而在荣格最具创造性的“集体无意识”理论中，除了“人格面具”原型是面具人格的主要内容外，其余的几种原型如阿尼玛、阿尼姆斯、阴影、自性等便主要是精神人格的内涵了。荣格是一个真正的心理学家，是一个始终不懈地探索人类精神的人，他说：“人类存在的惟一目的，就是要在纯粹自在的黑暗中点起一盏灯来。”^⑤荣格本人就是一个精神高度发展“具有开朗心情和无与伦比幽默感”^⑥的学者。

可以说，周敦颐与荣格这两位思想迥异的杰出学者虽然相隔近千年，但在其学说中却闪烁着同样的光芒，即对人格的精神方面或者说对精神人格都倾注了毕生的热情与不懈的探讨。而且，他们还都以其绝美的人格昭示着世人。

（二）关于精神人格的起源与发展之比较

在周敦颐那里，“圣人”是天人合一的结果，“圣人”人格是所有人格的典范。从自然的无机物到有机物，从简单生命到“得其秀而最灵”的人，然后人再从士到贤，从贤到圣，正体现了从天到人、天人相通的“进化”过程。周敦颐关于“太极而人极”的分析与推测的确从形式上与现代生物进化思想几乎一致，以至有的学者认为：“不是说生活在近千年前的周敦颐具有现代人的科学头脑，而是说周子的猜测被现代科学的发展所证实。”^⑦周敦颐的“太极而人极”的思想真的与现代科学观点暗合吗？这显然是一个不能回避的问题，因为它直接关系到我们对“圣人”人格的理解。要解答这个问题，又必须从“天人合一”这个命题的剖析入手。

在中国古代哲学中，天人合一的命题是贯穿其中的主线。最早提出此观点的是孟子，他说：“尽其心者，知其性也；知其性，则知天矣。”^⑧即是认为天道与人道相通，天的本性寓于人的本性之中。宇宙的根本就是人伦道德的根本，人伦道德就是宇宙规律的体现。因此，人之所以高于自然万物，就在于人的本性与天相通。周敦颐的“无极而太极，太极而人极”的观点就是孟子“天人相通”思想更具体、更精致的继承与体现。并且经其发展而成为理学的一个理论基石。从天人合一的基本含义可以发现，由于天是人伦道德的本源，天便具有人格的所有特点。说人具有自然的某些属性是正确的，但因此认为自然（天）也具有人的所有属性如伦理道德等等便是误入歧途了。天人合一的致命错误就在于它表面上将天道说成人性，实际上却是将人性说成天道，将人伦道德视为宇宙自然的全部内容与根本准则，从而彻底否定了自然的客观属性，客观世界便不知不觉消失于中国哲学的视野之外，取而代之的是作为崇拜与欣赏对象而非认识对象更不是创造对象的人化自然。人格化的自然永远只是人类的美丽投影，它使古老

的中华民族得到的只是虚幻的伴侣和不结果实的智慧之花，失去的却是创造的自由与真实开朗的人格特质。因此，天人合一实质上是天被人“合”，表面上天人相合了，实际上却是人与自然的隔绝。可见周敦颐关于圣人人格起源与发展的观点决没有与现代科学的有关思想暗合，相反，其伦理本位特色正说明其人格理论并未跳出传统哲学的泥淖，这种对自然内容的排斥便成为中国古代哲学的基因并且遗传给了周敦颐的“圣人”人格起源理论，构成其人格学说中无法弥补的遗憾，久久地影响着民族性格的完善。

比较荣格有关思想便更能清楚周敦颐的误区所在。荣格在分析精神的内容时，认为意识只是个人无意识的极小一部分，而个人无意识又是其集体无意识的更小部分。如果把意识比作海面冰山浮出的那个尖顶部分，那么个人无意识就是海面下那庞大的冰山体，而集体无意识则是那更加广袤无垠的神秘海床。从这个比喻可以看出荣格是把集体无意识看成个人无意识与意识的真正发源地。换句话说，从集体无意识到个人无意识再到意识，这便是荣格的人格发展观。集体无意识的发现是荣格对精神分析运动的伟大贡献，它打破了弗洛伊德无意识理论中严格的环境决定论，证明了正是进化和遗传为心理结构提供了蓝图，就像它为人体结构提供了蓝图一样。荣格认为，“人的心理是通过进化而预先确定了的，个人因而是同往昔联结在一起的，不仅与自己童年的往昔，更重要的是与种族的往昔相联结，甚至在那以前，还与有机界进化的漫长过程联结在一起。”^⑨这就确立了精神在进化过程中的这一位置。

从个体出生的那一天起，集体无意识的内容就给个人的行为提供了一套预先形成的模式。“一个人出生后将要进入的那个世界的形式，作为一种心灵虚象（virtual image）已经先天地被他具备了。”^⑩当这种心灵虚象和与之相对应的客观事物溶为一体时，

便成为意识中实实在在的内容。例如集体无意识中存在着母亲这一心灵虚象，它就会迅速地表现为婴儿对实际的母亲的知觉和反应。可见集体无意识的内容就决定了知觉和行为的可选择性。荣格把集体无意识的内容称为原型（archetypes）。必须注意的是，原型不同于人生中经历过的若干往事所留下的记忆表象，不能被看做是在心中已充分形成的明晰的画面。例如母亲原型并不等于母亲本人的照片或某一女人的照片，它更像是一张必须通过后天经验来显影的照相底片。荣格说：“在内容方面，原始意象只有当它成为意识到的并因而被意识经验所充满的时候，它才是确定了。”^①所有的原型通过种族遗传深埋于人的无意识之中，它们大都永远不被意识到，只有极少数能进入到意识领域。原型是集体无意识的核心，就像磁石一样，把与它相关的经验吸引到一起形成一个情结（complex）。情结从这些附着的经验中获取了充足的力量之后，便可以进入到意识中去。换句话说，原型只有作为充分形成了的情结和核心，才可能在意识和行为中得到表现。反之，在人的意识与行为的表现后面总能分析到相应的情结及其原型。从原型的远古来源来看原型具有普遍性，但从原型所吸引的经验复杂程度来看其情结又具有极大差异性。比如所有的婴儿都具有同一母亲原型，但由于每个婴儿所处的不同家庭乃至同一家庭中亲子关系的差异，便导致母亲原型在外现过程中表现出个性差异。

同弗洛伊德一样，荣格从个人与童年的联结中找到了个人无意识，而且，比弗洛伊德更进一步的是，荣格还从个人与种族的联结中发现了集体无意识。表面看来，荣格的人格起源与发展观（动物祖先→人类祖先→集体无意识→个人无意识→意识→精神人格）与周敦颐的人格起源与发展观（无极→太极→阴阳→五行→万物→人→士→贤→圣）非常相似，而且后者似乎还包含了前者。但是，由于荣格是在真正的自然背景中寻找人格的发展轨

迹，而周敦颐则相反，是在虚假的自然（即人格化的天）基础上对人格的发展进行分析，因此，这两种人格理论便不仅仅是由于时代或地域的差异，更主要是由于作者推论前提即自然观的差异，而导致两者的貌合神离了。下面从内容上的进一步比较便能更清楚其中的“神离”程度。

（三）关于精神人格的内容或结构之比较

在论述什么是圣人时，周敦颐认为，“圣人与天地合其德，日月合其明，四时合其序，鬼神合其吉凶”。^⑫也就是说，圣人在品德、才识、风度、智慧诸方面都是最杰出的，都符合宇宙自然的变化规律，真正达到了天人合一的理想境界。可见，周敦颐的圣人人格核心是“德”。“德”是中国古代哲学思想中一个重要的概念，尤其是道家与儒家对此有着决然不同的解释。老子认为宇宙运动的根本规律是“道”，道在人类本性与行为上的表现便称为“德”。因此，老子一部三千言的《道德经》就阐发了一种反国家、反战争乃至反社会组织形式的“无为顺性”的自然主义人生观。儒家则赋予“德”极浓的社会伦理思想，认为社会生活中的人伦秩序便是德的内涵，并且比附为天道，成为天人合一的基本内容。周敦颐的“德”就是儒家涵义的继承与发展。天道既然包括社会伦理色彩极浓的“德”，那么它在人性中又如何表现呢？周敦颐的解答是用另一个概念“诚”来表示。因为儒家的德既代表天道又代表社会伦理，所以，诚也就既是“天道”又是“人伦”了。

周敦颐说：“诚者，圣人之本。大哉乾元，万物资始，诚之源也。乾道变化，各正性命，诚斯立焉。纯粹至善者也。”^⑬这就是说，诚是圣人的根本特点，它来源于宇宙的初始状态。当这种初始状态变化发展之后，它便表现为这种变化发展的最终秩序。周敦颐接着又说：“圣，诚而已矣。诚，五常之本，百行之原也。”^⑭即是说，诚作为圣人的根本特点，又表现为社会的伦理规

范。因此，一个自然秩序，一个社会秩序，本质上都是“纯粹至善”的表现，体现在“圣人”身上便统称为“诚”亦即“天人合一”的典范。

可见，“天”在这里不仅被“人化”（天被人合）而且还被“美化”（天人合德）了。这便导致其精神人格不仅失去了自然的源头，而且还人为地被分裂为“善”与恶二端。因为既然“诚”为自然与社会的“纯粹至善”，那么，自然与社会便必然还有“非诚”的一面，即周敦颐所说的“邪”或“恶”——“非仁、非义、非礼、非智、非信”^⑮等等。而且，由于“后世礼法不修，政刑苛紊，纵欲败度”^⑯，使得人性中禀乎天道的“诚”愈来愈被日益增加的“非诚”因素所害，于是“诚”的境界便越来越远离凡人了。人性中既然有诚有邪，且诚弊于邪，那么要达诚为圣，就必须有一番弃恶去邪的功夫。周敦颐首先肯定圣“可学”，学圣的关键是“无欲”。人性本来无欲，由于后来世风败坏使得纯粹的人性也染上了“欲”。染上欲的人便会是非不清，便会有过失。但是周敦颐又鼓励说：“孰无过，焉知其不能改。改则为君子矣。”^⑰周敦颐其后的理学家则由此发展出“天命之性”与“气质之性”的差别，更有“存天理、灭人欲”的至圣歧径。这种恶果并不奇怪，其逻辑起点在于孟子“天人合一”的“人格化”倾向，其逻辑发展则是周敦颐“天人合诚”的“圣人”人格思想。首先是人为地将人性分为诚与邪的对立双方，然后根据“天人本善”的逻辑提出抑恶扬善的“去欲”途径，最后达到“善性实现”的圣人境界。而这种境界虽然比孔夫子还要严肃端庄，但其虚假本质又只能造就出更多的“假圣人”而已。

在荣格那里，精神人格的自然基础是集体无意识。在集体无意识的原始意象中，既有充满原始与本能欲望的原型，又有智者与英雄的原型，既有原型之间的相互冲突，又有原型的和谐统一。荣格几乎把他整个后半生都投入到有关原型的研究和著述之

中，他识别和描述过许许多多的原型，他说：“人生中有多少典型情境就有多少原型，这些经验由于不断重复而被深深地镌刻在我们的心理结构之中。”^⑧荣格描述了四种影响我们人格形成的原型，即人格面具、阿尼玛和阿尼姆斯、阴影以及自性（the self）。其中阴影是最具原始性与动物性的原型，它是一切原型中最强大的一个，也是人格面具最危险的敌人。如果两者能够化敌为友和谐配合，人就会感到自己充满了生命的活力，并且达到一种理想的人格境界。否则，或者是阴影冲破面具造成冲动与危险，或者是面具成功地压抑住阴影养成可能文雅但无生命力的人格。这些原型虽然各具特性、彼此冲突，但与周敦颐的“善恶对立，抑善抑恶”的人格观不同，荣格认为人格并非就此四分五裂、“善恶”难容。相反人格本来就是一个统一体，而且，最终还能越过冲突实现更完满的统一，人格的这种统一力量就是自性原型。“自性”在集体无意识中是一个核心原型，就像太阳是太阳系的核心一样。自性是统一、组织和秩序的原型，它把所有别的原型（包括“非善”的原始本性），以及这些原型在意识和情结中的显现，都吸引到它周围，使之处于一种和谐状态。总之，它把人格统一起来，使一个人自身以及与外界都处于这种和谐、完满状态。人格的理想境界就是充分的自性实现，就是原始生命力的充分升华，就是自然属性与社会属性界线的完全消失。自性原型的概念是荣格研究集体无意识最重要的成果。他曾总结说：“自性是我们生命的目标，它是那种我们称之为个性（individuality）的命中注定的组合的最完整的表现。”^⑨

如果说“自性”人格追求的是本我与面具和谐、内部世界与外部世界统一、个性与共性相融的话，那么“圣人”人格则强调善与恶的分裂与对立，自然属性与社会属性的水火不容，从而导致人格面具的膨胀、内在生命力的压抑、个性乃至人性的迷失与异化。由此可见，压抑或否定人的自然本性并不是学“圣”途

径，更不是对精神人格的完善人格的精神内涵并无善恶之分，关键在如何使之上升到意识水平并且与人格面具充分协调起来，从而真正丰富与完善我们的人格世界。

三、结论：丰富精神内涵，追求壮美人格

它山之石，可以攻玉。比较周敦颐与荣格的精神人格理论之异同可以看出中西文化观的差异性影响。人格是一个人的全部，精神人格又是人格的核心。只有精神人格的全部内容都得到了充分的发展，才能认识人生的真实意义与无限魅力。“圣人”人格是“天人合一”哲学的产物，其美好的愿望与追求反映了中华民族善良而纯洁的心灵特性，成为历代仁人志士谱写壮美人生的内在动力，也是所有普通中国人的精神源泉。但是，我们也不能不看到“圣人”人格又由于其对自然属性与社会属性的割裂表现出明显的缺陷。与“自性”人格相比，它愈益表现出苍白、僵化、缺少活力等不足。尤其是它对“善性”的片面理解与追求，都从意识深处严重束缚着国人的性格与创造力。时代的大潮既荡涤着传统精神人格的僵死成分，又呼唤着能够创造未来的新型人格！

注释：

①②③④均见周文英主编《周敦颐全书·太极图说》第 31 页，江西教育出版社 1993 年第 1 版。

⑤⑥⑨⑩⑪⑬⑭均见〔美〕霍尔等著《荣格心理学入门》第 29、26、25、40、43、65 页，三联书店 1987 年 5 月 1 版。

⑦梁绍辉《太极图说通书义解》。

⑧《孟子·尽心章句》。

⑫、⑬、⑭、⑮、⑯、⑰、均见周文英编《周敦颐全书·通书》第 89、96、108、134、137 页，江西教育出版社 1993 年 1 版。

章鱼的启示，沙盘的智慧

乔伊斯·考宁汉^{*}

章鱼是性爱意识的象征，它呼唤着人们把爱诺斯（Eros）的精神纳入到人格这一整体中去。
——Comandini, 1988

爱诺斯一方面属于人类最原始的动物本性，只要人类还拥有着生物的躯体，爱诺斯就会一直如影随形；另一方面，爱诺斯又与精神的最高形式密切相关。然而，只有当人的精神和肉体和谐相处时，爱诺斯才会茁壮成长。
——Jung, 1953

许多年以来，我一直被章鱼八只爪子的意象紧紧包围，它们作为一种象征不时出现在沙盘游戏、艺术活动和现实生活中。这些映像在我的周围交织缠绕，紧紧地拥抱着我，同时还夹杂着一丝甜蜜。我喜欢这种感觉，拥抱的姿势虽然用的只是两条胳膊，可事实上却象征着整个心灵的回归。这种映像是卷入、共享、关联的象征之一——爱诺斯。我发现，章鱼不仅仅作为一种能将人窒息的动物这一消极形象存在，它还是一种能谕示我内心世界与

^{*} 乔伊斯·考宁汉（Joyce Camuyrano Cunningham）：美国心理分析家，《沙盘游戏治疗》编辑。

外界现实之间的关联的“另类生物”。而我对此也能领悟。

年幼时，我在巴西的海边住过，心灵中一直保持着这样一个模糊的记忆：日落时分，出海打鱼的船只回来了，过路的人帮着船夫把沉重的 arrastao 网拉到岸上，这时沙滩上会残留下一些海藻、绳子之类的东西，还有那些缠在鱼网上被拖上岸的粘满沙子的海洋生物。我并没有为这些快要窒息的海洋生物感到难过——它们仅仅是食物而已，而捕鱼则是当地自然秩序的一部分。但是，印象中还是有一些模糊的因素困扰着我。第二天早晨在艾维丽达艾坦兰克（Avenida Atlantica）咖啡屋里，一道叫“蓝色绸带”的菜肴，就是这种略带紫灰色的还活着的海洋生物软软地趴在冰块上。我永远不会形成一种对章鱼的美食嗜好。我宁愿让它活着。

20 年后，我到希腊的克里特岛旅游，在那里我又一次看到了章鱼。虽然岛周围有很多艘渔船，但这一次邂逅却不是在水边而是在陆地上的 Herakleion 博物馆里。那里陈列着上百个古老陶制的双耳瓶，每个双耳瓶的外表都是以章鱼的图案为装饰的，上面描绘的是章鱼盘旋的腕足和瞪大眼睛凝视的目光。这些陶器是四千年前 Minoans 人非常珍爱的物品。我们可以想像古代艺术家们是如何轻抚着这些陶器并在上面挥舞着画笔表现出这种动物的天性的。但是这种风格化了的盘旋的主题作为一种象征也暗示了艺术家本人与这种动物之间的联系。

转换的联结

章鱼的拥抱这一象征可以以一种消极的形式出现，结果会导致自我的潜在破坏。但是，这一象征也可能会使人的内部心灵与外部世界的联系得到进一步的加强。有时，它能使一个初学者或顽童的心灵中闪过一丝顽皮的念头，使他们敢于去碰触那些被视为在 watery 无意识中漂浮的阴影的东西。这种自我的和无意识的

接触能产生一种互相转换的关系。“这种象征性的映像封冻了自我的态度，使它停止从无意识的根基中吸取所需的能量。在无意识的这种深度下，章鱼就像印度教里长着许多胳膊的天神，在心灵的各个方面唤起了许多微妙的、永远不断变化的却又扣人心弦的新的接触点。”(Comandini, 1988, p. 104)

Comandini 进一步谈到了由这种接触所引起的积极的转换。他说道：“章鱼的腕足不仅仅能将人窒息或吞没，它们还是巧妙地建立和定义事物之间关系的活纽带。它们表达了一种不是通过分离而是通过接触来理解的方式。它们是爱诺斯精神的体现”(p.95)。我想起了一些家长，他们出于本能的心灵感应，知道在特定的时刻孩子需要多近或多远的距离，从而在身体和精神两方面将自己的孩子紧紧地抓在手里。孩子的需求总是像炼金术中密封容器里的流体一样不断变化，称职的父母能够与他们的孩子保持密切的联系，并能够容忍孩子们的需求的这种波动性。

像情人一样，章鱼可以作为一种性接触的象征。有两幅艺术画，一幅是由 Katsushika Hokusai 完成于 1814 年的木版画“珍珠女和两只章鱼”，另一幅是由 Masami Teraokay 于 1992 年完成的油画“新浪潮系列／八只避孕套的幻想”。两者都描绘了人与这种动物的遭遇。这两位艺术家，虽然相隔了近两个世纪，却都把章鱼表示为性爱。历史上，章鱼一直被认为是邪恶的，因为它与性吸引的情感相联系。但是当教会因为这种“罪恶”的热情而把章鱼视为魔鬼时，“在它的‘邪恶’之后……存在着古代性爱的拥抱，即关联的拥抱”。作为爱诺斯的象征，章鱼代表着积极的联结、关联和最终的 coniunctio oppositorum，因而与新的可能性的产生有关系。

杀人的手——一个临床上的例子

有一位年近 30 岁的抑郁的妇女，她摆出了一个沙盘布景，

自称为“杀人的手”。沙盘上的东西大多被描绘为已死的或将死的——一个真正的 mortificatio 的场景。沙盘的中间是一条大鱼的骨架，附近翻仰着一条沙鲸；左上角有一个女芭蕾舞演员躺在沙上，旁边站着一个金色的骑士，手中正挥舞着他那执行死刑的剑；这附近还有一把大刀，与骑士的剑遥相呼应。

病人说她已失去了一切。在这之前的一年里，她健康状况不佳，一直遭受着慢性疼痛折磨，这严重困扰了她的日常生活。由于抑郁程度很深，她的内心自然充满了痛苦和愤怒，这几乎使她变成了一个完全绝望和无助的人。生活中爱诺斯的缺乏，已深深地浸入到她的无意识领域，由此出现了一种补偿性的力量，即渴望控制自己的生活和亲属的欲望。她的经历表明她已失去了控制。

随着时间的流逝，她心理和身体上的痛苦开始逐渐消失，她变得更乐于与人相处，更有同情心了。夏季的一天，她又来了，穿着一件 T 恤衫，上面印着一只惹人喜爱的粉红色和绿色相间的章鱼。以前她所摆的沙盘布景中的“杀人的手”已逐渐变成柔顺、友好的章鱼了。我还记得当时把所有玩具拿走后沙盘布景的形状，在我看来，那正是一只章鱼！在消极的映像“死亡之手”的下面，隐藏着的是积极的、代表着爱诺斯与生命的章鱼的形象。事实上这两种映像是同一主题的两个方面。

由于深度的抑郁，意识被拽到了最底层。事实上，章鱼表达的不是分裂，而是一个最基本的联结……它预示着一个转折点……对于那些能意识到自己的神经真正紧张的名人来说，这种“梦魇般的”经历能避开现实生活中的毁灭，而转变为心理上的创造力。

正是这只以“杀人的手”的形式出现的黑暗的章鱼把病人拽入到一种几乎使她毁灭的境地，但也正是这只章鱼在后来又解放了她，使她恢复了活力。她重新投入生活之后，人际关系更加和

谐了，并逐渐全身心地沉浸到一种音乐艺术中去。她那尖锐的棱角软化了，就像海玻璃被沙子、水和时间磨平了一样。她曾经在沙盘布景中用过海玻璃，并告诉我它们是“美人鱼的眼泪”。在治疗后期，章鱼在她的沙盘布景中又出现过一次。这一次，她在沙盘的右上角用石头、漂亮的绿叶搭了一个潮湿的海床，又造了一个洞穴，还在边上放置了一只略带褐色的章鱼。附近还有一些贝类、海星、螃蟹、小鱼以及几个看起来像是在岩石旁边嬉戏的黑色的小章鱼。可以看出，沙盘布置者对她的“住所”非常满意。

虽然她身体上的情况仍然不是很好，但从心理上来说，她变得更能随遇而安了，也能调整自己适应不同的生活挑战了，特别是在一些需要她像章鱼一样收放自如的人际交往的场合。沙盘中，章鱼在“它洞穴旁的花园”里似乎显得十分舒适自如、易于接触。

我宁愿呆在海底
 呆在一个阴凉的章鱼的花园
 它把我们迎入，告诉我们已身在何处
 在它阴凉的章鱼的花园……
 喔，每个男孩和女孩都那么高兴
 知道他们是如此快乐、安全……
 我宁愿呆在海底
 和你一起呆在一个章鱼的花园……

(R. starkey, 1969)

爱诺斯与整体

作为一种头足类动物，章鱼有一个头和八条腿，恰好能形成一个曼荼罗（mandala）的形状。它可以被看成是一个辐射出八

条射线的圆心，即自性的原始象征。坎贝儿（Campbell）告诉我们，章鱼和荷花之间存在着古老的联系。在提到日本八世纪的青铜屏风上的章鱼主题时，坎贝儿说，“……那些腕足——它们的力量分散开来——像慢慢释放出荷花的茎梗，既象征着作为宇宙中心的太阳，也象征着作为躯体要害的心脏……”

章鱼可以被想像成是一个黑暗的太阳或水底深处的太阳。坎贝儿进一步把章鱼描述为“一种深海太阳的象征，是高高天空中的太阳的相对物：它不喷洒光线，不带来光明，而是不断地占有、抓握、携带和吞噬”。这一映像虽然带有破坏性，但它却是通过结合接触的方式之一。其象征比较消极的一面，正如星体的黑洞“不断地携带和吞噬”一样，是一种爱诺斯丧失后狂怒的表现。

然而，作为一种象征，章鱼把我们吸入到一个几乎将人淹没的深处，从而给我们提供了一个接触无意识的机会。这一内部的关联，如果聚集在一起，也可以从外部反映出来。我们会变得更富有创造性，并感到一种个人与环境、自然、社会团体、爱人以及动物之间的深深的情感上的联系。

爱诺斯这一原则既根植于我们的肉体，也与“精神的最高形式”密切相关。在西方文化中，自我经常与它黑暗的动物本性失去联系，由此也渐渐远离了爱诺斯。爱诺斯只有在身体和精神和谐相处时才会茁壮成长。

大毒蛇……和其他爬虫通常用来象征人类心灵中仍与动物性一面相联系的部分……心灵的这些部分往往与躯体的生命有着最直接的联系……许多神经官能症的起因就来源于这样一个事实：我们太过于压抑自己肉体 and 它黑暗的冲动了……古老的大毒蛇已经被过于清醒的意识残忍地伤害了……

通过否定自己动物性的一面，我们否定了心灵潜在的整体性。像所有的动物一样，章鱼天生就是一个整体。当我们为整体

而奋斗，充满热情、充满同情心地对所有内部的象征和外部的生物都加以接受时，一个求同存异团结的整体就有意识地产生了。

(李江雪译)

荣格心理学与中国文化

高 岚 申荷永

内容摘要：荣格及其分析心理学，对于我们国内的心理学和人文科学都曾产生了重要的影响。但是，荣格心理学本身，却与我们的中国文化，有着内在的联系。或者说，荣格正是在充分吸收了中国文化的基础上，才完善与发展了其分析心理学的思想体系。在本文中，作者通过汉学家维尔海姆，以及通过《易经》和“道”，分析与论述了荣格分析心理学与中国传统文化的关系，阐述了中国文化心理学的意义。

关键词：荣格 分析心理学 中国文化心理学

美国著名心理学史家布雷德和墨菲等人，都曾表示过他们的一种共识：心理学的第一个故乡在中国。实际上，许多西方著名的心理学家，在其理论和体系的形成中，确实受到了中国文化的深刻影响。卡尔·荣格和其分析心理学便是一个明证。

一、维尔海姆的影响

国际分析心理学会主席托马斯·科茨（Thomas Kirsch）博士，在 1994 年 8 月访问中国的一次演讲中提出，就荣格心理学思想

的形成而言，理查德·维尔海姆（Richard Wilhelm）的影响，远远超过了弗洛伊德或其他任何人。实际上，荣格自己也承认这一点，他曾经明确地表示，“维尔海姆给了我无限的启迪，我所受他的影响，远远超过了其他任何人”。^①而维尔海姆所给予荣格的启迪，也就是中国文化对于荣格的启迪；维尔海姆对于荣格的影响，也就是中国文化对于荣格的影响。

荣格在 20 世纪 20 年代初期便结识了维尔海姆，那正是荣格自己在其心理学的研究中最为关键，同时也是最为艰难的时期。与弗洛伊德正统精神分析的分裂，使得荣格面临许多压力。他希望能够有一种理论的根基，来帮助他整理自己的研究，使他能够有足够的力量和勇气，来抗衡他所面临的压力。1923 年，荣格曾专门邀请维尔海姆来到苏黎士，在其主持的心理俱乐部中，介绍与评论中国的《易经》，介绍与讲解中国文化。荣格与维尔海姆广泛地讨论了中国文化的意义，讨论了西方的心理学和精神分析理论的发展。使荣格感到惊讶的是，在维尔海姆看来，西方无意识研究的发现，早已经存在于中国古老的文化之中了。维尔海姆认为，荣格以及弗洛伊德所致力与探求的无意识心理学，正是中国文化思想或中国文化心理学中所固有或所包含的东西。

荣格自己曾有过这样的表示：“维尔海姆一生所从事的工作，对我来说是如此的重要和具有价值，是因为他为我解释与证实了我过去一直在追求、在思考、在向往，以及在从事和研究的东西。”^②荣格说：“维尔海姆的工作，给我们带来了中国文化的基因，给我们带来了一种足以从根本上改变我们世界观的中国文化基因。”^③荣格深深敬佩维尔海姆的“汉学”，以及他对于中国哲学，对于中国文化的深刻理解。荣格曾经说过，我甚至不能用“影响”一词，来描述中国文化和中国思想与维尔海姆的关系，因为实际上，维尔海姆完全是被中国文化所征服了，被同化了。

面对这样一位汉学家，面对这样一位汉学家所代表的深远的中国文化，荣格将其作为自己终生的良师益友，也作为自己心理学的深远背景。

二、荣格心理学的秘密

在我们的理解中，中国文化是一种充满了心理学意义的文化；这种心理学的意义，具体而生动，表现着一种实在的生活的价值。荣格和维尔海姆把他们合著的《金花的秘密》一书，称之为“中国生命与生活之书”，便代表了他们对中国文化之理解的一个侧面。

而这里的“生命与生活”，实际上也就是一种“心理学”。

Cary F. Baynes 在《金花的秘密》一书英译本的前言中写道：“心灵必须依赖于科学，将其作为现实世界中的向导；而科学也必须转向心灵，来寻求生活的意义。这就是《金花的秘密》所展现的观点。通过维尔海姆和荣格的共同努力，我们第一次有机会来理解和欣赏，能够在许多方面满足我们的需要的东方的智慧。在《金花的秘密》中，这种东方的智慧脱离了形而上学的描述，而置之于心理学的体验之中。”^①

《金花的秘密》本身，对于荣格自己的心理学的研究和发展，起到了十分重要的作用。而在《金花的关系》中，也包含着荣格与中国文化的关系。1938年，当《金花的秘密》德文第二版出版的时候，荣格在其序言中写道：“我的已经去世的朋友，本书的合作者理查德·维尔海姆将本书的原稿送给我的时候，正是我自己的研究和工作处于最为关键的时刻，它对于我的研究尤为重要，正可谓雪中送炭……维尔海姆送给我的这本书稿，帮助我从困境中走出……这样，这本手稿，至少是在这一阶段，为我提供了来发表我的一些关键性研究结果的好机会。”^②借助于对维尔海姆翻译的评论，在《金花的秘密》中，荣格全面展现了自己对于

中国文化的理解与吸收。实际上，他的评论，几乎占据了全书一半的内容，是《金花的秘密》最具特色的部分。

在荣格的理解中，“金花”是对道家练功时，通过坐禅和沉思，在体内出现的一种神秘光感，它会导致一种精神的顿悟，一种智慧的升华。因此金花的秘密也就是人的心灵的秘密，是人的真正内在生命的秘密。在其独特的评论中，荣格所提出的第一个问题，是“一个欧洲人试图理解东方时的困难”。荣格指出，尽管西方有科学和逻辑，但是东方却教给了我们另一种更为广泛，更为深刻，以及更高层次的理解，那就是通过生命和生活，或者说是透过生命和生活的理解。因此，荣格提出了他所阐述的第二个问题——“当代心理学为理解东方提供了可能”。以其分析心理学为基础，荣格着重分析与评价了“道”和“太极”的概念，以及“道”的现象和思想。在其评论的结语中，荣格说：“我的评论的目的，是要建立一种在东方和西方之间进行心理学理解的桥梁。”^⑥

在《金花的秘密》中，荣格和维尔海姆都是用一种心理学的眼光来看待中国文化的。这里给人的启示是，从心理学的角度，以心理学为背景，能够更好地理解中国文化。因为我们中国文化本身，蕴涵着丰富而深刻的心理学的意义和价值。

三、《易经》的启迪

荣格在接触维尔海姆之前，便已经接触了《易经》。但是，当他得到维尔海姆的译本时，他认为自己才算是真正地开始理解《易经》。荣格认为，在《易经》中，包含着中国文化的精神和心灵。尽管《易经》经历了几千年的历史，但是它从未变得陈旧，而是历久弥新。

荣格是重体验和重实践的，他认为自己对中国文化的理解，对于《易经》的理解，也是通过其切身的体验。从 1920 年开始，

荣格便自己动手，对《易经》做心理学的实验观察和分析。1923年，当荣格邀请维尔海姆在其主持的苏黎士心理俱乐部讲演的时候，荣格曾请求维尔海姆当场演示《易经》中的预测方法，以及《易经》中对人格的分析与描述。实际上，从荣格以“内倾”和“外倾”，分别配合以“思维、情感、感觉和直觉”四种心理要素，组建与完善其八种性格类型中，我们也不难看出其与《易经》中太极阴阳和四象八卦的内在联系。

荣格曾经这样来评价《易经》，他说：“《易经》中包含着中国文化的精神和心灵；几千年中国伟大智者的共同倾注，历久而弥新，仍然对理解它的人，展现着无穷的意义和无限的启迪。”^⑦这是荣格对于《易经》的理解，以及其对于《易经》之情感的表达。通过《易经》的帮助和启发，荣格提出了他的“共时性原则”（synchronicity），并将这种“共时性原则”，作为其分析心理学发展的一种内在基石。荣格说，我自己在对无意识心理学的研究中，发现因果原则在解释一些无意识心理活动和过程时是不充分的，这就促使我寻求另外一种解释的原则。在英国学者保罗·戴维斯的名作《上帝与新物理学》一书的第六章“精神与灵魂”中，作者将荣格的一段话作为该章的“导引”：“我就是相信，人类自我或曰人类灵魂的某一部分，不受制于时间和空间的法则。”^⑧荣格深信，心理现象，必将遵循着一种有别于物理法则的法则。“共时性原则”是荣格对中国“天人合一”以及“天人感应”观念的理解，是荣格分析心理学的重要组成部分。

四、“道”的体验

荣格在其自传《回忆·梦·思考》结束时，写了这么一段话：“当老子说‘众人皆明，唯吾独懵’的时候，他所表达的就是我此时所感觉到的。老子是有着与众不同的洞察力的一个代表性人物，他看到了并体验到了价值与无价值的本质，而且在其生命行

将结束之际，希望复归其本来的存在，复归到永恒的意义中去”。^⑩荣格读《老子》，是在体验老子；荣格之与“道”，也是其切身的体验和感受。而“道”，这个中国文化中最为神奇的概念，也是荣格分析心理学的一种内在的基础。

荣格曾一度隐居于苏黎士波林根他自己设计与建筑的塔楼，身着“道袍”，身体力行于中国道家的“生活”。他认为维尔海姆被中国文化所同化了，而他自己实际上也有了这种认同和实践。事实上，惟有这种认同，惟有这种同化，也才能够获得一种真正的理解。荣格说，“道”的状态就是世界之初，事物还无所谓始。这种状态正是大智大慧者所努力取得的状态。阴和阳两极对立统一的原则，正是一种原型意象。这样，中国的“道”，与荣格无意识心理学的研究，就有了内在的联系，就有了自然的切合。荣格的《心理类型》（1921）是其最主要的代表作之一，他自己曾这样来叙说他撰写此书的原因和动机：“这本书始自我需要界定我自己的观点不同于弗洛伊德和阿德勒的观点的各个方面……于是它便把我直接引导到中国的‘道’的观念上了……只是在我的思想和我的研究达到了关键之处时，就是说接触到了自性的时候，我才找到了重返这个世界的归路”。^⑪

荣格曾于 1935 年在伦敦做关于分析心理学的公开演讲，当时与听众们进行讨论的时候，荣格讲述了这样一番话：古代人是极富智慧的人民，心理学可以向古代文明，尤其是印度和中国学到很多东西。荣格认为，即使是在中国的古代，也有着一种“科学”，而这种科学的逻辑，与流行于西方的因果逻辑是不同的，而这也正是西方人不能够理解东方思想的一个关键。在荣格看来，能够表达中国这种独特原则的，就是“道”。

五、荣格之后的发展

中国文化对于荣格心理学的发展，具有重要的意义和价值，

起到了深远的影响和作用。荣格本人，从中国传统文化中吸取了丰富的营养，充实与完善了自己的心理学理论；同时，他也对中国文化在世界范围内的传播，尤其是在西方心理学界的传播，起到了积极而重要的作用。

在荣格之后，分析心理学仍然在发展，而且仍然表现着对于中国文化的热爱。1995 年 8 月，我们曾受邀前往瑞士苏黎士，参加在那里举行的第 13 届国际分析心理学会议。与会者超过 500 人，来自世界各地，表现了目前国际间分析心理学或荣格学者的强大阵容。尽管这些分析心理学家遍布世界各地，其各自所使用的语言和研究兴趣都有着很大的差异，但是，他们却都有着一种共同的特点，那就是对中国文化的仰慕和追求。大部分荣格心理学家，都是把对中国文化的学习和理解，作为自己心理学发展的一个基础。

在托马斯·科茨博士领导下的国际分析心理学会，曾把与中国的交流作为分析心理学发展的一项重要举措。1994 年他与名誉秘书长斯坦（Murray Stein）博士等访问中国，1995 年斯坦博士在《国际分析心理学会会刊》的第 15 期上，发表了“分析心理学与中国”一文，高度评价了国际分析心理学会对中国的访问和进行的交流，称其为“荣格心理学与中国之间的一次历史性事件”。^①

在正统的分析心理学之外，荣格心理学的发展还有一个重要的分支，那就是“原型心理学”：以对历史、文化和艺术的心理学研究为主，旨在突出荣格的后期思想和其深层心理分析理论。黑尔曼（James Hillman）博士是“原型心理学”的创立者，也是目前“原型心理学”的主要发言人。他在写给我们的一封信中说：“原型属于所有的文化现象，而原型心理学也应该属于所有的文化。正如荣格所提出的，太极图就是一种重要的原型意象，它不但属于中国，而且具有普遍的世界意义。对于中国文化，原

型心理学家有着由衷的敬意。”

在瑞士，在荣格的故乡，有对荣格心理学发展做出了重要贡献的“爱诺斯基金会”，以及由该基金会主持的“爱诺斯圆桌研讨会”。我们曾经两次受邀前往介绍中国文化心理学，以及荣格与中国文化的关系。令人感动而不能忘怀的是，该基金会的主席利策玛（Rudolf Ritsema）博士，花了近 30 年的心血，完成了其对于《易经》的分析心理学研究。他与其合作者将《易经》翻译成英文、德文和意大利文，并且加上了他们的心理学分析和评注。这是我们中国文化之心理学意义的一个例证，也是我们中国文化影响世界心理学发展的一个例证。

诚然，荣格是从中国文化中受到了莫大的启发，这启发有助于他发展自己的分析心理学理论。但是，我们是否也应该从荣格这里获得启发呢？既然作为西方学者的荣格，能够从中国文化的文化中，从《易经》和“道家思想”中获得启发，发展出影响深远的心理学理论，那么我们是不是也应该认真从我们自己的文化中吸取心理学的营养呢？从另一种意义上说，荣格在接受和吸收中国文化的同时，对于中国文化在世界范围内，尤其是在西方心理学界的传播，做出了积极而重要的贡献。荣格与中国或荣格心理学与中国文化，有着双重的意义，有着潜在而深远的作用和影响。

参考文献

①②③④⑤⑥⑦Jung C G, Wilhelm R, The Secret of The Golden Flower. New York: Causeway Books; 1975; 151. 151. 142. 150 – 151. 1. 141.

⑤Jung C G, Alchemical Studies. New York: Princeton University Press; 1983; 3 – 5.

⑧保罗·戴维斯. 上帝与新物理学. 武汉: 湖南科学技术出版社, 1994.

⑨Jung C. G, Memories, Dreams, Reflections. New York: Vintage Books; 1965; 359.

⑩荣格. 回忆·梦·思考. 沈阳: 辽宁人民出版社, 1988: 352.

⑪斯坦. 国际分析心理学会访问中国. 华南师范大学学报, 1995; (4): 68-70.

Jung's Psychology And The Chinese Culture

Abstract:

C. G. Jung and his analytic psychology influenced the studies and theories of Chinese psychology, and even the humanities and social sciences in China. But, the Jung's psychology itself has an inside and deeply relationship with Chinese culture. Jung himself absorbed the sources of Chinese cultural thought, that became the cornerstone of his analytic psychological systems. At the same time, Jung contributed to spread Chinese culture in the Western world. In this paper, through Sino-logist Richard Wilhelm, the book of The Secret of Golden Flower, and through The Book of Change and The Dao, the authors discussed the relationship between Jung's analytic psychology and Chinese culture, elucidated the significance of the psychological thought in the Chinese cultural tradition.

Key Words: C. G. Jung Analytic Psychology Chinese Cultural Psychology

The I Ching, Confucius' Individuation and Jung's Psychology

《易经》、儒学传统与心理分析

May Lee^{*}

I. I Ching, Jung and Confucius

With all said and done, especially in scholarship, the bottom line for any of us still is to make sense of life, to make meaning of life, to make life graspable and, preferably, wonderful. The I Ching, Confucius and Jung all do this. How to live and how to live meaningfully are their focus.

Now the I Ching has been much associated with Jung. How the I Ching connects with Confucius and, therefore, how Jung connects with Confucius via the I Ching hasn't received nearly as much attention. The connection is surprisingly real, as Jung and Confucius say, in different languages, the same thing about life and life energy, which Jung calls psychic energy or libido. Both of them feel that life is about wielding this psychic energy optimally. Confucius calls this cheng sincerity. I'd like to call it psychic plumbing, that is, plumbing to the depths of psyche in oneself and in the collective as so many selves. Doing this is the Tao of personality or rendao.

^{*} May Lee : 博士, 美国华裔心理学家

II. Dao: Tao explored in the I Ching, Confucius' Tao, Jung's archetype of Self in the unconscious

Perhaps I should clarify the use of the word Dao. There is no need to exhaust the meaning of the word Tao for very simple reasons. One is that the reality is far greater than what a word can capture. The other is that delimiting such a thing as Tao creates distracting arguments on what it is or is not, when the point is to find our way in it to maximize our being and effort at existence. Suffice it, then, to use the word Tao to indicate the way of the universe, and, in particular, the way we humans find ourselves in it.

This means, of course, that there would be hundreds of articulations of Tao. And there are – any attempt to figure out the universe and human participation in it. In China alone, even though the I Ching functions as an early definitive effort that articulated it once and for all, many ramifications followed. Each philosophical or religious school has its own articulation, whether based on the I Ching or not. In the West, the scientific paradigm proposes to uncover the mysteries that underlie the laws of the material universe, and, in the past century, the laws of the psyche. These laws of the psyche, particularly in the psychology of Jung, are probably the same as the laws of human manifestation the I Ching is concerned with.

The I Ching has the distinction of placing the human being in the cosmos. This placement is not just material, as the material is only the visible pinnacle of an underlying order. The I Ching attempts to intimate this larger order, which we call the Tao of the universe. This Tao is, at the same time, the tao of the larger psyche from which we, as individual psyches, are offshoots. How all this works is still mysterious to us. Nonetheless, like love, which we also know without knowing what they are, we can monitor the effects, rather than analyzing the cause. The study of the I Ching, then, provides a key to the workings of the human psyche. This possibility did not escape Confucius, who apparently devoted quite some time to studying it.

III. The hexagram, junzidao of Confucius: Jung's individuation

In the West, the I Ching has won a place of its own as an oracle and teacher and is more popularly associated with the articulation through Taoism than with Confucius. What has been overlooked is the amount of time and energy Confucius apparently has invested in it to find in it a guide to life, via the larger psyche, not only in the commentaries he wrote for it, but in the implicit worldview in which all his words are imbedded. (To be sure, these commentaries are only attributed to Confucius, and scholarship aims to disprove Confucian authorship. But the Confucian connection is clearly there, if not via textual analysis, then via the substance.) His own comment, as quoted in Analects 7:16, expresses his knowledge of the profundity of the I Ching when he says that if he had 50 more years to live, he'd devote them to this book.

From the substance of Confucius' teaching, we can derive the Tao of the human being and set it in the largest cosmic context, as intimated by the I Ching. The Tao of the I Ching for the human being, (as we have seen), is indicated in the hexagram. The 64 hexagrams offer a comprehensive description of change and variation in manifesting Tao. The six lines of the hexagram each indicate our involvement in Tao at a given moment. This means that, at any given moment, our total self is imbedded in all the structures that concern us, psychic, social and cosmic. The hexagram even suggests these structures. The lower trigram usually represents the self, while the upper trigram represents that which is outside the self. Counting from the bottom, line 1 indicates the innermost psychic stratum, line 2 the stratum that can receive from a teacher, line 3 the boundary between the self and the outer world. Crossing from line 3 to 4, we move from self to others. Line 4 is the minor official, representing all social structures. Line 5 is the prince, representing the ruler or governing principle. Line 6 is the edge of our universe.

What should be immediately evident is that the hexagram asks us to see our personal part as our imbeddedness in the world. Translated into practical language, this means that our personal psyche is only our window and avenue to the larger, common psyche. What we normally call advancement in the world, such as the advancement into positions of power, really reflects the ability to move the personal psyche to a place where a common center can be intimated. The ruler, thus, sits on the throne of the common Self center.

The same is true for the individual. Our growth means the growth of the psychic perspective, from the small self to Self of the universe.

Confucius' junzidao, the way of the junzi or the way of individuation, is about inviting this Self center forth to become the hub of the individual.

Junzi is a deliberate word choice. In the old days, a junzi is a ruler or nobility. Confucius' choice of the word suggests for the common person the ability to reach for character nobility and requires a prince or ruler to be a junzi. For Confucius, then, personal development means to move the ego center to the larger self center of the collective, if not of the universe.

The little book called The Great Learning, which is placed at the beginning of the Confucian canon, outlines this development of the personality. Some of you may be familiar with the Eight Items of Passages D&E, which I call the Eight Concentric Circles of Self, and will recognize the last four steps itemized to achieve the stature of a “prince.”

Xiousheng (Self – cultivation)

Qijia (regulation of family)

Zhiguo (governance of country)

Ping tianxia (pacification of world = mingde for all)

Three of these appear to be activities directed outwardly to managing the collective. But to get to that point, one would have to do considerable work on one’s psyche. The fifth step, xiousheng (Self – cultivation) pre-supposes the first four:

1 – gewu (study of things)

2 – zhizhi (taking knowledge/consciousness to ultimate extent)

3 – chengyi (make intentions sincere) – straighten path of consciousness and unconscious

4 – zhengxin (rectify heart/mind) – align all heart/mind in a single core

Only after these steps can we do Self – cultivation.

5 – xiousheng (Self – cultivation) bringing the inner psyche to meet the outside world

The injunctions here are comprehensive in scope. The Self – cultivation mandated is the cultivation of the larger Self as it means to act through our little personalities. The previous step is to align our core to this larger core. These can be done only as we become conscious.

Tao of Jung – individuation or development of personality

The Tao of personality discovered by Jung shows the same general movement. Jung did not create any maps or outlines to us to follow. He did, however, discover the presence of an archetype of Self that moves through the individual psyche. This over – arching and most basic archetype actually is what we are here to manifest, but, until we are cognizant of it and become its partner, we really have not found our destiny. Nor have we found our path of development. That is, we have not begun to individuate into the fullest beings we can be. In other words, becoming full beings or developing our personality means reclaiming this Self center. In more tangible terms, this means that we align our ego center, which is the center of consciousness and manager of our personality, with this larger Self center. The ego becomes an instrument or channel of the Self.

As the Self center is shared by all, Confucius' junzi is doing exactly the same thing when moving to the common self center of the collective. Based on these parallel ideas, we can conclude that Confucius junzidao is the same path as Jung's individuation.

IV. Hexagram, Jung's regression and Confucius' Passage

I would like to use a hexagram to demonstrate the idea of individuation according to Jung and Confucius. Rather than casting with coins or yarrow stalks extemporaneously, I'd like to use the hexagram that my mentor, Dr. Yi Wu of the California Institute of Integral Studies, happened to have been analyzing the day I went to San Francisco to seek advice for this speech. In following his explanation to his advanced I Ching class, I recognized that this hexagram provided precisely the information I needed to demonstrate the optimal path of the psyche in individuation.

First I would like to give a brief explanation of the hexagram itself.

Then I will compare it with Jung's individuation and Confucius' jünzidao.

H24 [return, repeat] is composed of a yang line at the bottom as line 1, with five yin lines stacked on top. The major characteristic of this hexagram is heng, translated by my mentor as "perfect communication." By perfect communication, he means that all channels are clear, intrapsychically and externally. The lower trigram is thunder or action, the upper trigram earth or yielding. The image shows the solitary yang line stirring in the depths, with the option to push upwards, unobstructed, all through the ranks of the other lines. Once beyond the sixth line, it returns to the bottom for the next cycle. This hexagram indicates the winter solstice, when the sun is farthest away from the equator and returns to begin its cycle for another year.

For Hexagram 24, the commentaries give the following as "good" or going with Tao:

1. reversing the flow
2. repeating the cycle
3. taking a rest from routine (all businesses close down, the emperor stays home and does not survey his subjects)
4. retreating to the ground to develop again
5. Continual reverse and repetition as the way of heaven

Applied to the psyche, this hexagram parallels exactly what Jung and Confucius recommend for individuation. First, Jung.

In tracing the path of the libido, or psychic energy, Jung finds that we expend a great deal of it in adaptation to the cultural context we find ourselves in. This is necessary for our survival and well-being. He calls this progression. Progression is inexpendible and, in fact, helps to develop us in individuation by means of the complementary and compensatory function of the collective. The problem comes in emphasizing progression to the neglect of the inner psyche, like the achiever who wins everyone's admiration but can't control his temper or find meaning in his endeavors. Then comes the necessity for regression to the inner psyche and work from there to find balance. In the inner psyche are our raw substance and basic instincts and drives, derived from the archetype of Self. To attain humanness, that is, to manifest Self in the world we live in, we need to find it and work with it. This work Jung calls the transcendent function, which he activates in various ways, such as through dreams and active imagination.

The overall view of the psychic path is retrogression – the need to touch ground, again and again, before going forth. This path is precisely the one presented by Hexagram 24 [return, repeat].

Confucius, return and individuation

Confucius' description of the psychic path of individuation indicates even more obviously a return to the ground than Jung's. It is given in the second passage of the opening exposition of The Great Learning. This passage apparently has received very little attention in the past, but is easily explained in light of contemporary psychological knowledge, especially Jungian psychology. Any Confucian scholar, in fact, any ordinary person with a bit of formal knowledge of Confucius, would know the sangang and batiaomu listed in Passages A, D & E of this exposition. The sangang [ming mingde, xinmin, zhishan] are to manifest one's own numinous essence, to manifest through and with the collective and to rest in the ultimate. The batiaomu or eight items [gewu, zhizhi, chengyi, zengxin, xioushen, qijia, zhiguo, pingtianxia] are the investigation of phenomena, extension of knowledge/consciousness, making intentions sincere, rectification of heart/mind, Self – cultivation, regulation of family, governance of country and bringing numinosity for everyone in the world. These appear to describe mostly the outer reach of libidinal energy for progression. The second passage, however, describes the workings within the psyche. This is the passage:

In knowing to rest in the ultimate, we can have assurance,

In having assurance, we can have quietude.

In having quietude, we can find anchorage.

In finding anchorage, we can then deliberate.

With deliberation, we can attain.

These are certainly words that are subject to arbitrary translation. And therefore really invite analysis. By noting the order in which the key words are given, we find a curious description of the regression of the psychic energy to the ground. Only when this regression is done can we come back to the world and live meaningfully.

Confucius and psychic stations

Based on the noticeable movements or shifts in the psyche, I'm taking the liberty to call these psychic stations. These are identifiable differences from one to the other. Confucius names them in terms of the psychic state or work at each station.

Passage B gives six different psychic states, which we can all recognize as possibilities in our experience. The first, zhi knowledge, indicates the sum total of knowledge and consciousness, ultimately of what we are doing in the universe, in the broadest and most final view. Confucius specifies that knowledge means knowledge of the farthest extent. This item follows the three items given in Passage A, the third of which is to “to rest in the ultimate.”

Passage B, then, begins by asking us to know what this ultimate extent is. Only when we know this can this knowledge or consciousness change our orientation, align our ego and establish our will. This step, finding assuredness is the second psychic station. The third is the effect of finding assuredness on the state of the psyche. Confucius uses, quite appropriately, the word jing quietude, to indicate the psychic peace we find when we are on the appropriate path. After finding some peace for the psyche, at the fourth psychic station, we allow the psyche to work in its own way, which means to find its own ground. We touch here, by the way, the self – healing powers of the psyche. This stage isn’t anything we can consciously will, though we can consciously enable its happening. The use of the verb enable throughout Passage B points to the self – healing power of the psyche; that is, the psyche does its own work when we enable it.

At the fourth station, we touch upon deep psychic sources, and a feeling of “fitting” enables us to come out into the world again to live and manifest ourselves. The difference is that we know on a very deep level, as we have touched the larger Self or psyche that is common to all of us. At this station, we touch the basis of junzidao and can bring it out consciously at the next station.

I have borrowed the Indian philosopher Aurobindo’s yantra, or the Star of David, to map the descent, regression or retrogression. The upward triangle represents the areas that are our playing fields. I’ve marked them with the playing fields from Passage A: ming mingde, xinmin and zhishan (to manifest our numinous Self, to manifest with and through the collective, to rest in the ultimate). The lower triangle describes the descent of the psyche to its ground. I’ve marked this one with the psychic stations from Passage B: zhizi, ding, jing, an, lu, de (knowledge/consciousness, assuredness, quietude, anchorage, deliberation and attainment).

The eight concentric circles of Self can be placed at the different stations.

Station Q – knowledge/consciousness: gewu, zhizhi

Station R – assuredness –) Station S – quietude—) chengyi Station T – anchorage—) zengxin

Station U – deliberation – xiousheng, qijia, zhiguo, ping tianxia

Station V – attainment – mingde yu tianxia

V. Junzidao : loop through psychic stations; the yantra, individuation

Junzidao , then, means full Self – cultivation for anyone, but particularly for those who intend to work with the collective from the Self center. This means that anyone of us can acquire this larger psyche and live and manifest in ordinary life, doing ordinary things. The difference is that greater consciousness that enables our connecting to our ground gives us a deeper perspective that is thoroughly true to our psyches.

To reiterate, the junzi is different from the non – junzi by virtue of consciousness and the work that higher consciousness demands of him in every minute of life. This higher consciousness enables him to sort and prioritize all life's activities. Because he is not lost or confused, he enjoys quietude within, even though he might be working out things that are difficult and troublesome. The quietude within allows the psyche to do its own work; that is, find its own anchorage. At this point, the psyche knows for itself that everything is in harmony; the feeling that we get, but on a very deep level that places us in the cosmos, that "This time it's right."

For Confucius, it is only at this point that we can act consciously in our daily activities. The difference between not returning to this ground and returning is that we now act consciously, with this ground in tow. This means that, in everything we do, we do with the greater Self at center.

This chart describes the same path as specified in Jungian individuation. Jung's individuation begins with making the unconscious conscious. After this, we get to know more and more what our choices are and what to choose. The psychic station of jing is one which all contemporary psychology and psychotherapy, as well as meditation techniques, attempt to achieve. In psychotherapy, jing may be the end goal, while meditation seems to have the same idea as in Passage B, that when the psyche is stilled, it will do its own work; that is, allow the larger Self to come through. The psychotherapy achievable through Jungian analysis definitely allows for a stage beyond quietude. In fact, dream analysis and analysis through sand play and active imagination graphically point out the workings of another consciousness within us.

Jungian individuation likewise enables us to act in a different (from previously unconscious) way in the world. It's popularly called conscious living. While Jung has not stretched individuation to include the behavior of nations and rulers, Jung has definitely shown that our collective unconscious contains the residue of our collective togetherness. In other words, if a whole collective stays together in manifesting mingde, with a ruler that sits on the throne of the Self center of the collective, then what gets collected in the collective unconscious is this collective striving for mingde. (This is not to say that this would be the only thing in the collective unconscious.)

Why Jung has been so interested in the larger collective is simply that the collective manifests the larger Self in so many separate little consciousnesses. That is, the individual cannot really be separated from the larger picture of the collective and the cosmos. Whereas other forms of psychology delineate very clear and small boundaries, Jung, like Confucius, attempts the cosmos.

VI. Returning through the psychic stations

In summary, the choice, as indicated by Jung and Confucius, is ours: to ignore or to pass through the psychic stations to our psychic ground. We can look at this choice through a very simple diagram. Let's use a single straight line to indicate our time from birth to death. If we do not individuate, this line of our psyche remains at the same thinness, as we have not taken advantage of this opportunity to work on ourselves. If we are well – meaning and follow the urge for natural individuation, we grow at random and may thicken this line at different points. But if we do the loop with consciousness and cooperate with the basic promptings within the psyche, the growth and expansion are immeasurable. On the surface, we are still ourselves in our everyday activities, but our perspective, our orientation, our psychic state, our groundedness in the cosmos are different. They give us psychic spaciousness and thickness of personality. They give what Confucius calls the power of the person. This return to the ground to reclaim our psychic wholeness is no different from what Jung calls the Tao of personality.

So, as individuals, how to make life graspable and wonderful involves this continuous loop or return to our psychic ground, as suggested by Hexagram 24 as the way of heaven and by Passage B of The Great Learning. Why would our life be more graspable? Because we have a good sense of ourselves, on all levels, and because we are acting in accordance with our place in the cosmos. This is the meaning of Tao for the human being; the way of the universe as we humans participate in it.

分析心理学与中国文化的意义

John Beebe*

It seems to be the tradition that pilgrims from the West who think that they have something to impart land in Guangzhou. I need only to mention the very first, Bodhidharma, who came in 527 A.D. But then there's also the legend, in this city, of the five gods, really the five Celestial Beings, that rode to the city on five goats each with an ear of grain in its mouth. Once the Celestial Beings had assured that the city of Guangzhou would have no more famine by presenting the grain to the Cantonese, then they flew away and the goats turned to stone. Now, when I fly away, the words that I have spoken to you today can be turned to stone, and we can have a written paper, and then we shall have something that people can read and perhaps will go on tablets some day. But today we go live, and I want to tell you something about the goats that brought me here.

Those of you who know the Book of Changes may know Hexagram 34. In the 6th line, it talks about a goat that butts its head up against a hedge, a bush, and he gets his horns entangled in the bush, and then the book tells us, "The goat cannot go forward, and it cannot go backwards." And then the Book of Changes says, "But if one notes the difficulty, this brings good fortune." So I will note the difficulty of trying to engage with the problem of how to explain to you how Jung and Chinese culture really come together.

* John Beebe : 博士, 美国荣格心理分析家, 美国旧金山荣格研究院院长。

Now, Jung is the name now, of not just a man, but an historical figure. Others have recorded the history of Jung's engagement with Eastern thought. I would particularly mention the book Jung and Eastern Thought, by John J. Clarke, which I hope very soon can be translated and be made available to China, because it is the best, most accurate story of the ideas which Jung connected with not only Chinese culture, but also Indian culture and Japanese culture. Much of Jung's emphasis was on Chinese culture, with an interest in Buddha from the very beginning of his student days when he was reading Schopenhauer to the last year of his life, when he was reading Buddha's discourses again.

In the middle of this lifelong interest in Chinese thought, Jung talks about the Tao, in the book Psychological Types, and about wu wei in his Commentary to The Secret of the Golden Flower. Above all, he makes sure that the Richard Wilhelm translation of the I Ching also gets translated into English, and produced on the American book market where it becomes an international bestseller, assuring that the entire West will become aware of the I Ching, which is exactly what has happened. I would say personally that Jung's Foreword to the I Ching is my favorite of all of his writings.

David Rosen, who will speak to you later, has emphasized the importance of the concept of Tao in Jung's entire life and thought, and I myself, in the book Integrity in Depth, have talked about the importance of te in the understanding of his psychology; so that these two terms of the Tao Te Ching, are very much, to my mind, central in the understanding of Jungian psychology on an everyday basis.

But what I want to tell you today is not this intellectual history of which, I think, Jungian psychology can be very proud, but rather to say how we actually approach everyday problems of doing psychotherapy, how it actually lives in our work and life, and therefore how Jung lives in our work and life.

Just as it is very difficult to get a sense of what the great philosophical figures were like, what Lao Tzu was like, what Confucius was like, above all what Buddha was like, and we get a sense of what these people were like almost better by getting closer to some of the people who have followed them and have incarnated their spirits, so I would like to tell some stories that come from my experiences with my own teachers, since both of the teachers that I'm going to describe had personal contact with Jung and Jung's way of seeing things. I believe that particularly Jung's connection to Chinese thought very much influenced the way they approached the problem of being doctors, and healers, and psychotherapists.

Now, to become a Jungian analyst, one has to undergo the experience of being in psychotherapy with a Jungian analyst. One of my first Jungian analysts was a woman named Elizabeth Osterman. When I came to her, I was a young psychiatrist, just finishing my residency training at Stanford University. At that time, I was very impressed with medicine, being a doctor, and with what I had learned to be a psychiatrist, and I was very interested in the power of medicine and psychiatric medicine to change the human mind.

Therefore, I was very interested in knowing how my analyst, Dr. Osterman, had approached the problem of becoming a psychiatrist and a Jungian analyst. And she related an interesting story to me. She had originally trained to study viruses; she was a microbiologist. And so she had found herself already a professional woman when she first felt a need to go into Jungian psychotherapy for herself. In fact, she had had a dream where there was a woman lying on a bed who was very old and sick and tired, and when she had this dream she knew immediately that the woman was in herself and was in some degree of trouble and that she would need to go to a psychotherapist to figure out what the trouble was.

She had a very successful analysis, and as part of the analysis she completed studies to become a medical doctor, and went forward with the idea of becoming a psychiatrist. So in our city she went to a great psychiatric institute, which is very notable in its architecture because it's built a little bit like a tower; it has a rather tall structure. You could call this a pagoda of psychiatric learning. Remember this is already a formed adult woman who has had several years of Jungian analysis and she's just about to start to learn to be a psychiatrist. The night before she goes the first time she had the following dream:

She is looking at a building which has a tall tower, and at the top of the tower, right at the rooftop, a man and a woman are wrestling. And they wrestle, and they wrestle, and they wrestle, and they wrestle, all day and all night, and they just go on wrestling and wrestling.

Now it happened that when Elizabeth had this dream, she had the good fortune that that day passing through San Francisco was one of Jung's most famous colleagues, Dr. C. A. Meier, who wrote many books. And so she told Dr. Meier her dream, and she said, "I was looking up at the psychiatric institute building, and there was this man and woman wrestling on top of the roof all day and all night long." And Dr. Meier said, "Ja, and they never come down."

So Elizabeth had to come down on her own. In those days in California where, as in every other place in the world, sooner or later one has to have a license to practice any form of healing, one could get away with going to a psychiatric residency for as short as one year. On the strength of that dream she went for only one year and then got away, because she felt that it would threaten her as a woman and as a psychological person if in that place of great psychiatric learning this problem of the male and the female opposites was going to be wrestled with so much up in the head, so high up, and so intellectually, and never, never come down to the ground of being.

Elizabeth never tired of telling me and telling all of us in our Institute who knew her that what Jung was talking about was Nature. I believe there's a very wonderful term for this in Chinese culture. It is Earth. You know, you have the three terms Heaven, Earth, and Man. In thinking of this dream of the male and female wrestling with each other so high off the ground, we have to think of their distance from the Earth.

Now, we know Jung has talked a great deal about the Tao, and I think that one has to understand the Tao as the watercourse way that passes through the earth. In Hexagram 2 of the I Ching, which is the Earth hexagram, we have the wonderful line describing the nature of Tao itself: "Straight, square, great. Without purpose, yet nothing remains unfurthured." This seems very far away from the male and female opposites struggling on top of the tower. Jung did not like Western philosophy when it got too much into an endless argument. He felt it was better when it was Nature, or what he called natural philosophy. And this is what Elizabeth again and again had to teach me as a young psychiatrist, when I would struggle with my dreams and try to understand what they meant and try to bring all sorts of Western ideas to make sense of these images, and felt I had to tell my feelings what they were doing. She saw them as expressions of Nature struggling to get through to me.

I want to mention another revered teacher, Dr. Joseph Henderson. When I came to work with Dr. Henderson, who founded the Jung Institute of San Francisco, and was one of Jung's most long – standing and loyal followers, having known Jung as far back as 1929, I'm afraid that I projected onto him, as we say in Jungian psychology, the very figure that appeared to Richard Wilhelm in the dream that he had shortly before he undertook to translate the I Ching. At that time, Richard Wilhelm was in Tsingtao, and he dreamt that a beautiful old man appeared to him who said that his name was Mountain Lao, and that he would teach Reverend Wilhelm the secrets of the mountain. So when I first met Dr. Henderson I'm afraid I saw him too as Mountain Lao, and I said to him, "It seems to me as if you've always been here."

Dr. Henderson is not the usual American man — he has a very English, the word we use in Jungian psychology is persona; that is, he has a very formal way of presenting himself that almost seems like it belongs to a past time, maybe just a little bit like the persona of another Anglicized American, T. S. Eliot. Now, this is not a style that is popular in America today.

So when I first came to Dr. Henderson in that first hour with him, I looked at him and said, "What I like about you is that you have never cared about what other people thought." Dr. Henderson said, "Well, I have always had an independent mind." And then he cleared his throat and tried to say something else, but his tongue got somehow tied up in his mouth, and he could not say what he wanted to say. So he cleared his throat and tried to speak again. And his tongue got curled up in his mouth and he could not speak again. I went right on talking, as if nothing had happened. And when I had finished my next too many words, and there was just a breathing space, Dr. Henderson looked at me and said, "The reason I became tongue – tied just now is that it really isn't true. I actually cared very much what other people thought all my life, but I had to go away to school, to a boarding school far from my home when I was young, and to protect myself I had to develop a face that didn't show emotion, what we call in English a poker face. And I got rather too good at it."

Now imagine this as the beginning of a psychotherapy! Notice that Dr. Henderson did not hide behind the projection of Mountain Lao — eternal, the carrier of the wisdom of Heaven, beyond being touched — that I had placed upon him. Notice also that he tried to, at the beginning, when he said, "Well, I have always had an independent mind." But notice that his body would not let him get away with that. And notice that he noticed that himself.

The part of the mind, for a Jungian analyst, that will not allow us to proceed if we're living in a fiction is precisely what Jung referred to as the Tao. The choice we make to honor that, when it appears in us, is what I think we should call the te. And what was so impressive to me in that first hour with Dr. Henderson was that he lived that relationship for all that it was worth and did not care about the appearance of authority when he did so. This meant that if I was going to have what in analysis is called a transference, that is a projection of the possibility of development of the self (an archetypal transference is the Jungian technical term), if I was going to have this, I was going to have to have it on the basis of who Dr. Henderson really was, not on the basis of a fantasy of some unreal person that he could never be.

You see, I had come, as I think many people come, to psychotherapy, with the fantasy that my depression and my anxiety — what we call in the West my vulnerability — was going to go away as the result of analysis, the way that depression goes away if one takes an antidepressant, or the way a headache goes away if one takes an aspirin. When Dr. Henderson insisted that however he looked from the outside, he, too, was just as vulnerable as I was, I suddenly realized that my vulnerability was me, and it would never go away. I believe that Dr. Henderson learned this from Dr. Jung. And I believed that partly Dr. Jung learned this from Lao Tzu.

I think that I should now say something about the kind of therapy that takes place when one has teachers like these. While I was working with Dr. Osterman, there was some problem of the yin and the yang taking place at the top of my head, there must have been that problem because I had frequent headaches in that relatively early period of my analysis.

In those days, my mind was entirely identified with my strong intuition. I loved to read Jungian psychology. There's a wonderful literature in Jungian psychology that tells the story of the myths and the archetypes. And when one reads it from a certain point of view, one can imagine that one has a golden key to all the mythologies of the world, all of the religions of the world, in fact, all of the minds of the world. But all of this knowledge only made my head ache even more. So the answer was not to come from more study and learning. Somewhere else there would have to be a sign of the true place where the disturbance lay.

I found myself one night with a dream that seemed to help: I came into a room and there, sitting in a chair, was a Chinese woman. She was very plain and simple in her clothing, and the room itself was almost empty. She had an unhappy look on her face. Her husband was a gambler, and he would spend all the money that they earned together in the laundry that they ran so that there was nothing to buy anything for the home. That was the dream.

I've already told you something about Elizabeth Osterman, and I don't think that you would imagine, even from the little that I've told you, that she would let me get away very long without exploring very closely what that dream must be saying. I gave her associations to the dream. In San Francisco where I live, it's not uncommon to have laundries that are owned by Chinese people, and I had such a laundry right on my street corner. The woman in my dream seemed to me very much the woman who owned it. So the woman in my dream was a particular woman to whom I took my laundry, Peggy Woo.

Peggy Woo was different from me in many ways. She was more introverted than I am. She was also much more practical than I; she was not a person of thought or intuition, she was a person who had a great deal of what Jung called sensation. She worked very practically and effectively in her laundry. This consciousness that she gives person to in my dream was a part of myself that I had not developed very much. It is often the case that a part of oneself that a person has not developed will appear as a figure of the opposite sex. Such a figure can also appear as a person of another culture. So she represented something that at that time was other than who I was. And this other in myself didn't have anything, and she was unhappy because she didn't have anything.

Who, then was her husband, who was spending all his money on the gambling? I had to admit that this was an interesting way of describing my own ego.

Now, I did not gamble with money, but I gambled with energy. I was by now a psychiatrist myself, and when I was seeing patients in an office doing what we call psychotherapy, I would get so excited with each new possibility of each dream and each feeling my patients brought to me, that I would forget even to breathe. No wonder at the end of the day I would have quite a headache from all the carbon dioxide! Just as in life Peggy Woo would take care of my laundry, I was going to have to take better care, in my office, of my body and what it was doing as I was sitting there with such excitement listening to the archetypal images of my patients' dreams. I was going to have to breathe after someone told me a dream. I was going to have to sigh, and move my body, and find some place for me also, as a body, as a person, as a physical being, in the room.

And as I began to give energy to the body in myself, I began to discover that my body was feeling things that my patients could not say to me in words. So I learned more about the feelings of my patients listening with my body than I did running after all the meanings of the archetypal symbols in their dreams. Now, she — Peggy Woo, the woman in my dream — must have liked this, because she came up in another dream. Now she was happier, her husband was taking her out for ice cream!

When we read about the anima in Jungian psychology (this is another technical word, a Latin word, for soul) we learn that the anima draws us into a part of ourselves we might not want to even be seen with in public. She lives inside as an other. And we have a choice whether to take responsibility for that other or not. If we develop a relationship or a connection to that other inside of ourselves, then for the first time what I call the integrity of the personality appears. This is the practical basis for the virtue of the personality, or what Victor Mair translating the traditional word for virtue in Chinese, te, chose to translate as integrity. And you see the word he used in translation is the word I have chosen to use — here in China we can say it is the te of the personality.

So the dreams tell us whether or not we are in a state of Tao. But what we do about the dream once we've had it refers to our te. Now, this could not happen if there was no ground to our personalities. Jung called this ground "the reality of the psyche." Jung did not discover the power of the dream. Jung was one of four great depth psychologists who arose after Schopenhauer and Nietzsche had opened up for philosophy the feeling that there was something more than reason moving within us.

Of these four, whom you can read about in Henri Ellenberger's The Discovery of the Unconscious, Pierre Janet was the first to speak of sub-conscious ideas, and it was he that stressed that independence, the autonomy, of the psyche. This idea means that the unconscious has a will of its own. Elizabeth Osterman's dream, Dr. Henderson's becoming tongue-tied, and the strength of the symptom of my headache all are testament of the independent force of the unconscious.

Sigmund Freud was the first to emphasize how creative the unconscious is. He showed how the unconscious is like a great poet. "It's so interesting," said a woman friend of mine who had a Jungian analysis back in the 1940's and was still writing her dreams down after she brushed her teeth every morning in the 1970's, "that the unconscious would think of that way of putting it, would use those words for saying, that image for describing my situation." Freud's book The Interpretation of Dreams shows the poetics of the unconscious, all the different ways in which the unconscious fills the dream with the same skill of a Shakespeare or a Li Po.

Alfred Adler showed us that everything that we have in the psyche – every feeling that comes, every dream – has a purpose; is trying to accomplish something for us; is trying to create something – perhaps a fiction by which we can live, perhaps a truth that we need to see.

Jung knew these three other pioneers personally and learned a great deal from them. He taught us that the psyche is even more autonomous than Janet thought, that it's even more creative than Freud thought, and that it has much more purpose than Adler thought. For its purpose is actually to move us along the path of life and to develop us into fully developed, flowering selves. So Jung taught us much about what he called "the peculiar intelligence of the background." But he went further than Janet or Freud or Adler in saying that the psyche was also real. Janet would sometimes say in French that the psyche, the unconscious, was just a façon de parler – just a way of speaking. Freud and Adler believed that the psyche was largely trying to defend us from a reality we never see. But Jung felt the psyche was real.

So if the male and female opposites are having their wrestling match on top of the psychiatry building, that's really where they are, on top of that building. If the woman in my dream doesn't have anything, she really doesn't have anything. And therefore until we address that state of affairs, we can't understand the latest argument about whether the patient at the psychiatric institute should get psychotherapy or medication, and we can't solve the problem of my headache. I find it wonderful that it was a Chinese woman in my dream who connected me to what Jung meant by the reality of the psyche. I'm sure that it's in trying to get to know her better and to understand what she needs, that I have given so much time to the study of Chinese philosophy. Above all I have studied the book the I Ching. There, I think, we already have pictures of the archetypes that are right on the ground where we can all see them. What the 64 hexagrams in the I Ching show us are basic situations presented by the Tao to us in very personal ways. Every person who comes to a psychotherapist is in some such situation.

Jung understood that the reality presented by the I Ching and the reality presented by the Western person's dream is the same reality. I had a very vivid experience of this when I finished my work with Dr. Osterman and was going on to do further work with Dr. Henderson. I've told you what happened during the first hour with Dr. Henderson, but I didn't tell you what happened the day and the night before.

First there was a dream, which came very shortly after Dr. Osterman suggested that I had worked long enough with the mother and that I now needed to work with the father. In my dream I was already going to my first appointment with Dr. Henderson, and there, sitting in the waiting room, looking at me with a slightly annoyed look, was a woman that I used to take to dances at school when I was a boy of about fifteen. We had gone on to college, and our lives had drifted apart; so that you could say that she was a kind of rejected other. And now, there she was, looking back at me now as an adult woman, with a suspicious look on her face – who was I now? I will say her first name. Her first name – in English – is Grace. I also, as the day approached to see Dr. Henderson, decided to consult the I Ching to see what it would say about my analysis with him, what it thought I should be thinking about as I started analysis with him. Using the method of coin consultation, developed in the Han dynasty, I cast the I Ching, and I got the hexagram 22, which—again in English – is Grace. I was amazed by this coincidence.

Then, the night before this first session, going to see Dr. Henderson, who as you know I was regarding as Mountain Lao, I had a dream that I was going into a library that was just about to close. In that library I found a shelf on which was all the knowledge of Jungian psychology – all of it on that one shelf. But in my greed for even more psychological knowledge I looked around some other parts of the library, and then I couldn't find my way back to the shelf. At last, just as the library was about to close, I found the shelf again. There was no time to choose carefully, I had to just pull a book off the shelf as fast as possible because the bell was ringing. And it was a thin little book. At first I was disappointed when I saw its title. It said, English Manners.

I took this dream, of course, to Dr. Henderson, and he said, "It fits, it fits. Jung had in his practice one of the princesses of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, one of the Hohenzollern family. And Jung said she made an excellent analytic patient because she had such good manners, by which Jung meant, not that she treated him well – not that she behaved well toward Jung – but that she met the contents of the unconscious with just the right attitude and manners."

Now, it's very interesting how often in the history of all cultures very wise people sometimes have to be advised about their superficial manners. Jung notes in his Foreword to the I Ching that Confucius once consulted the I Ching and got the only answer that ever annoyed him when he worked with this book. It was hexagram 22, Grace, and the line he got was, "Lends grace to the beard on his chin." It is said that Confucius thought this was too trivial a matter for the I Ching to take up.

But I think my own unconscious was telling me something when I got the book on English manners rather than all of the knowledge of Jungian psychology. Because there is no use discovering these deeper layers of the unconscious such as the anima if they're only going to make us more ruthless, more critical, and more violent in our dealings with each other. If even your own wisest sage, Confucius, needed to be warned of the value of grace – and certainly, with his encouragement, grace and ritual have been very valuable to Chinese culture—the least I can do, out of my own experience and out of the experience of my analytic teachers . is to tell you that connecting to the unconscious has to be accompanied by a traditionally civilized attitude. Otherwise, you had better leave the unconscious with the West !

附译文摘要：

作为到中国广州朝圣的西方人，总应该有所奉献，这似乎已经是一种传统。首先我可以提到达摩，他在公元 527 年来到广州。我们这个城市也有一个关于 5 位仙人的传说，他们来自天上，骑着 5 只山羊，每只山羊口中都衔着谷穗……

了解《易经》的人或许都知道其中的第 34 卦。其上六爻是关于一只羊用角抵住树篱，并被藩篱缠在了那里。《易经》中说：“羝羊触藩，不能退，不能遂。”但是，《易经》同时还告诉我们：“无攸利，艰则吉。”于是，我也能意识到，在向你们解释与说明荣格与中国文化如何发生关联的时候，这将是一个颇具难度的报告。

今天，荣格已经不仅仅是一个人的名字，而是一位历史人物。一些学者记录过荣格与东方思想的有关历史。我特别推荐约翰·克拉克（John Clarke）所著的《荣格与东方思想》一书。我希望不久该书就能翻译成中文出版。因为该书是关于荣格与中国文化，以及荣格与印度文化和日本文化的最好、最准确的记载。荣格非常重视中国文化，非常关注佛教思想，这可追溯到他学生时代阅读叔本华的时候，一直到其生命即将结束，仍然在阅读有关佛教的著作。

在荣格关注中国文化的心路历程中，他在其《心理类型》一书中谈论中国的“道”，在《金花的秘密》一书中发挥道家的“无为”的思想。最为重要的是，荣格坚信维尔海姆翻译《易经》

对西方所产生的深远影响……就我个人来说，荣格为《易经》英译本所撰写的前言，是我最喜欢的荣格著述。

大卫·罗森（David Rosen），他随后将为大家讲演，强调了中国的“道”对于荣格整个生活与思想的深远的影响。而我自己在《深度整合》（Integrity in Depth）一书中，也突出了“德”对于理解荣格心理学的重要意义。于是，在我看来，老子《道德经》中“道”与“德”这两个概念，对于从根本上理解荣格心理学具有核心的意义与作用。

Use of the I Ching in the Analytic Setting

《易经》在心理分析过程中的应用

Dennis Merrit^{*}

Introduction to Chinese culture for many Westerners has come through the use of the I Ching. This profound book, a compendium of wisdom extending back to the very roots of one of the planet's most ancient cultures, has become an important companion for many in the West, including myself. Out of our need for wise counsel on life's most difficult situations, we, like untold generations of Chinese, have been moved by the subtle and profound advice we receive when consulting the I Ching. We are in awe of the minds that created this book and the culture from which it sprang. Use of the I Ching challenges the reigning scientific paradigms in Western culture and brings a dimension to the Jungian psychoanalytic process most sympathetic to the deepest and truest spirit of Jungian psychology.

I, like many people, was led to the use and study of the I Ching by reading Carl Jung's writings. Jung's admiration of the East and descriptions of Eastern thought includes many references to the I Ching. His Forward to the Wilhem/Baynes translation provides a good entr? for the

^{*} Dennis Merrit: 博士, 美国荣格心理分析家

Western mind to this basic book in Chinese culture. Jung began his study of the I Ching in 1919 and deeply admired this archetypal text, saying he was a jealous lover of the I Ching^①. He used it extensively in his personal life and with analysands. The wisdom embodied in the I Ching is inseparable from the wisdom in Jung's writings and his descriptions of the processes of the psyche. The Chinese ideogram for the sage, "the ear listening to the Inner King", best describes the process and goal of Jungian psychology. In Jungian terms, one could say that the I Ching is a book originating from the archetypal depths of the human psyche and the psychoid dimensions of the Self. The origins of our dreams and the genesis of the hexagrams in response to questions addressed to the I Ching are grounded in the same source.

The wisdom of Chinese culture as conveyed through using the I Ching is significant for Westerners in two profound ways. First, use of the book for guidance introduces the wisdom of the Chinese sages into our lives at a time when we are most in need of and thereby most willing to thoroughly study and absorb its knowledge. Most often, the advice is contrary to our "natural" Western and particularly American desire to attack a problem with a cowboy and football mentality. Secondly, using the I Ching is a direct challenge to Western paradigms based on science, rationalism and causality. To consistently get meaningful answers from a book through a completely random process is beyond the domain of Western science^②. It prompts one to consider a world view more akin to our indigenous brothers and sisters who have always recognized that "we are all related" – humans, trees, frogs, etc.^③.

Jungians work so intensively with symbolism and imagery that we notice undeniable correlations between dream imagery connected with a particular problem and images in the answers from the I Ching. Although the

I Ching strongly advises against doing this (Hexagram 4), a nuclear physicist I know asked the same question of the I Ching three times in a row at one sitting – and got the same answer! He was completely overwhelmed, for his mathematical mind immediately realized the probability of that happening was 4096 squared, or one chance in 16, 777, 216. Out of fearsome respect, he did not consult the I Ching for a considerable period of time after this introduction.

Jung was so experienced and adept at using the I Ching that he could usually predict what hexagrams he would get^④. He considered such experiences with the I Ching as possible proof for synchronicity, but in the end he decided “The result of this method is, incontestably, very interesting, but so far as I can see it does not provide any tool for an objective determination of the facts. That is to say a statistical evaluation, since the psychic state in question is much too indefinite and indefinable”^⑤.

This circumstantial evidence prompted me to develop an experiment to statistically test for synchronicity. This was part of my thesis at the Jung Institute in Zurich entitled “Synchronicity Experiments with the I Ching and Their Relevance to the Theory of Evolution”. I have since developed a simpler experiment which eliminates a complication in the original experiment^⑥. The experiment would require two therapists or I Ching experts to work with a client. It would be difficult, but not impossible to do the experiment and much would be learned from conducting such research.

Something unusual happened to me when I conceptually developed the experiment and realized it just might be possible to statistically prove synchronicity. I felt completely disoriented, as if I had suddenly lost a bulwark of faith in my life. It was then that I realized the powerful religious foundation of science – a belief in causality. It is a very seductive, reassuring belief, making the world seem logical and predictable and thereby manageable and subject to human control. I am convinced it is the basis of a deep unconscious fear of the prevalent world view of indigenous cultures, of divinatory devices, and of our own unconscious which has a life, movement and reality of its own as Jung so amply demonstrated.

Jung's description of archetypes is similar to the world view espoused by the Chinese philosopher Wang Fu Ch'i (1619 – 1692) who attempted to explain the I Ching. Ch'i hypothesized all existence as being grounded in an all embracing continuum which contains its own laws within itself – a sort of psychophysical background of the world not directly accessible to sense perception. Through its own inherent dynamic the continuum differentiates archetypal images which participate in the ordered lawfulness of the continuum, images whose order of structure and position therefore form part of the world of numbers. Numbers thus become the mediator between the inner and outer world, both inner and outer being participants in the same continuum^⑦. The I Ching, like geomancy in the West and humankind going back to remotest times have used numbers to apprehend the underlying psychophysical background of the world^⑧.

At its core, the I Ching may be based on the archetype of number, which Jung believed was the purest form of the archetypes. Casting a hexagram is based on generating numbers, and having numbers in relation to other numbers, ie. numerical position in the hexagram. Assigning a yin or yang, old or young, to each number becomes the first step to help imagine what are the meanings of these numerical connections, the archetypes expressed in numbers. The next step, the connection of lines to the 'real world' may be hinted at by a dream I had. As I looked at different elements in the environment I was in in my dream, particular combinations of lines would form and meld into that element, hinting that there are given, just so, or ‘obvious’ metaphoric and symbolic similarities between the totally abstract yin and yang combinations and objects in the ‘real’ world. The sages could have been guided by their dreams in the process of creating the I Ching.

The link of Jung’s concept of the archetype per se and the indigenous world view is one of the many ways that Jungian psychology can make an important contribution to the evolving field of ecopsychology. It also provides theoretical support for a basic premise of the deep ecologists that we are all capable of connecting far more deeply with the world around us than we Westerners believe^⑨.

One’s personal issue is presented in the I Ching in a more metaphoric, symbolic and archetypal framework – a very Jungian process. Realizing that the I Ching has been used by so many millions of people for millennia for such a multitude of situations, one begins to see how one’s personal issues are not really unique but a personal experience of cosmic themes. One of the most powerful ways of doing this is by linking dream images to hexagram images, metaphors and structural descriptions of the hexagrams. The combination of dream work and hexagrams gives one the sense of how the powerful, individual, personal dream images and associations are expressing archetypal themes. An archetype is like a crystal with each facet on the crystal illustrating how the archetype would look if it were presented here as a political situation, there as a piece of military strategy, elsewhere as a weather formation, etc. A translation like Wilhelm helps cultivate the archetypal sense. As mentioned before, the I Ching’s agricultural, weather and seasonal analogies can make a real contribution towards developing a symbolic way of relating to our environment, thereby developing an ecopsychological perspective and cultivating a sense of place.

One big advantage of using the I Ching in analysis and doing individual consultations is the I've been able to learn much about the book from real life situations. One can only learn so much by asking your own questions or by reading and reflecting on the book.

What are the reasons for not using the I Ching in the analytic setting? Naturally, if the analyst is not familiar with the book and does not have a personal connection with it, one would not use it. In that case, I would hope the analyst would find some other symbolic oracular system that works for them. For many analysands, it would seem strange to do, thereby undermining their trust in the analyst. To others it would seem un-Christian. The most common danger is that it would be used too soon and not intelligently. It is counterproductive if it short-circuits the process of self-exploration and developing personally meaningful ways of relating to the unconscious. Jung used the I Ching less in his later life, saying that he preferred to walk in the dark and see if the waters of the unconscious would support him. We must always keep in mind the advice given in hexagram 4: "If mistrustful or unintelligent questioning is kept up, it serves only to annoy the teacher. He does well to ignore it in silence, just as the oracle gives one answer only and refuses to be tempted by questions implying doubt".

The West has been given a precious gift by China in the form of the I Ching. It is my hope that the Jungian community never lose sight of the similarity of the world view and wisdom of the I Ching and the essential elements of Jungian theory and practice. A fruitful exchange between Jungians and Chinese scholars of the I Ching could serve as a synergistic cross-pollination between the two cultures, using the I Ching as the bridge for mutual consideration of some of the world, most profound questions.

Notes and References

① C. G. Jung Letters.. Vol. 1. 1906 – 1950. Gerhard A. Adler ed. Routledge and Kegan Paul. pp. 155 and 201.

② C. G. Jung. 1965. Memories, Dreams, Reflections.. Aniela Jaffe ed. Vintage Books: New York. pp. 373 – 377.

③ Dennis Merritt. 1988. “Jungian Psychology and Science: A Strained Relationship” in The Analytic Life. Sigo Press: Boston. pp. 11 – 31.

④⑤ Ralph Metzner. 1993. “The Split Between Spirit and Nature in 1. Richard Wilhelm. 1967. The I Ching or Book of Changes.. 3rd ed. Cary F. Baynes trans. Bollingen Series XIX. Princeton University Press: Princeton. p. 251.

⑥ Marie – Louise von Franz. 1975. C. G. Jung – His Myth in Our Time. William H. Kennedy trans. Hodder and Stoughton: London. p. 117.

⑦ CW 8, par. 986.

⑧ Dennis Merritt (in preparation). Synchronicity, the I Ching and the Evolution of Life.

⑨ Warwick Fox. 1991. “From Anthropocentrism to Deep Ecology” in Re – Vision. Vol. 13, no. 3. p. 107.

道的实践与分析心理学

Stan Marlan*

PREFACE

First, I would like to say how honored I am to have the opportunity to present my work before this distinguished group of scholars and to visit China. It has been a long – term dream to visit your great country. Over the centuries it is a place that has nourished the highest levels of intellectual and spiritual achievements. I am grateful to Murray Stein for calling my attention to this conference and to Heyong Shen for his participation in organizing this opportunity and for his many considerations as I have been preparing to come to China. The Metaphor of Light and Renewal in Taoist Alchemy and Jungian Analysis

Introduction

The metaphor of light is fundamentally intertwined with the history of Eastern and Western consciousness. It is nearly inconceivable to “envision” a way of thinking that doesn’t rely on this metaphor. As a result, from the most common jargon of communication to the most rarified intellectual pursuits, the metaphors of light and vision appear to be essential factors of consciousness. In many of the world's languages, myths, sciences, philosophies and religions, we find abundant confirmation of this view (Jay 1994: 11 – 12).

* Stan Marlan : 博士，美国荣格心理分析家。

In both Taoist alchemy and Jungian analysis the ideas of light and renewal are also important if not fundamental metaphors. This is particularly true in the classical alchemical work The Secret of the Golden Flower, the first text of its kind to have been translated into Western languages (Cleary, 1991: 3). Richard Wilhelm first published it in German in 1929, and it was quickly followed by an English translation. Both German and English versions include an extensive commentary by C. G. Jung, who was sent a copy of the text by Wilhelm in 1928 (Jung, 1961: 204). It was this text that Jung felt served to confirm and parallel his own work and which gave him access to his later alchemical studies.

For Jung, Taoist alchemy and his approach to depth psychology both sought a renewal of psychic life through a reconciliation of opposites, leading to a sense of Self as a harmonious whole in intimate relations with the Cosmos. In such a broad generalization one can easily see the parallels between these traditions, but many scholars have raised questions about an easy equation. James Hillman (1979), Joseph Needham (1983), Thomas Cleary (1981), Walter Odajnyk (1993) and others have all in their own way reopened the question with regard to the relationship between analysis and spiritual discipline.

It is the intent of the following to continue this dialogue by focusing on the metaphor of light and renewal in both traditions and to give some parallel examples for consideration. The Taoist images chosen for this purpose are drawn from The Secret of the Golden Flower. The first is the image of the circulation of light (Wilhelm, 1929) or the turning the light around as the process is translated by Cleary (1991). The second is the emergence of the spiritual embryo as an image of new birth and renewal. Both images are essential elements in the process of Taoist alchemy. In the above context, I will present analytic parallels to these images; that is, moments in analysis where what appear to be archetypally related concerns emerge in a patient's dream life. This then can serve to compare the work of Taoist alchemy as a spiritual discipline with the individuation process of Jungian analysis.

Taoist Alchemy

The movement from the light of ego consciousness to the light of the larger vision of the Self in psychological terms is the work of Taoist alchemy. In The Secret of the Golden Flower this transformation is achieved by the method of "turning the light around" in order to restore direct contact with the essence and source of awareness, that is, with the Original Mind. In Taoist alchemy there are two minds or two lights, called Original Spirit and personality. The Original Spirit is the formless essence of awareness distinct from what is called conscious spirit and sometimes simply personality. The essence of inner alchemy is the work of bringing these two lights together. It is important for our task of understanding the relationship of Taoist alchemy and depth psychology, to ask how we imagine this conjunction. For the way in which we imagine bringing these two lights together is one of the most interesting mysteries of psychological and alchemical work. In this conjunction have the two lights become one? Does the conscious spirit or personality integrate with or become subservient to the Original Spirit? In what ways do we want the two to inform or change each other? The Secret of the Golden Flower attempts to answer these questions.

Before going on to consider this issue I'd like to take a moment to notice that the two minds or lights of Taoist alchemy seem to be an archetypal theme. Roob has noted:

It is said of the philosopher... Empedocles that he claimed the existence of two suns. The hermetic doctrines also include a double sun, and distinguish between a bright spirit – sun, the philosophical gold, and the dark natural sun, corresponding to material gold. The former consists of the essential fire that is conjoined with the ether or the 'glowing air.' The idea of the vivifying fire – Heraclitus (6th century, BC) calls it the 'artistic' fire running through all things – is the legacy of Persian magic. Its invisible effect supposedly distinguishes the Work of the alchemists from that of the profane chemists. The natural sun, however, consists of the known, consuming fire, whose precisely dosed use also determines the success of the enterprise (Roob, 1997: 25).

Likewise for the Islamic scholar Henri Corbin (1978), light has a double nature – 'an innerness that is also an outerness.' This dual vision is characteristic of the Primordial Man whose light is ultimately the mundus imaginalis (Corbin, 1978: 6). Jung too mentions two images of light, the great light and the inner light of nature hidden and invisible, 'a little spark without which the darkness would not be darkness.' (Jung, 1967: 160).

The relationship between these two lights vary from tradition to tradition and it is not possible here to elaborate further these amplifications but in all of them I am familiar with, the conjunction of lights is a complex issue that is not adequately understood as a simple unity, and as such would lose the differentiations between the two modes of awareness. The Secret of the Golden Flower describes the relationship of conscious spirit and Original Mind as a relationship between host and guest in which there is a progressive movement from a focus on mental objects to the essence and source of the mind. The movement is seen as a developing one of going beyond fluctuating emotions and vacillation from state to state or subpersonality to subpersonality (Cleary, 1991: 145 – 146).

As the relationship with the Original Mind continues to mature one is said to arrive at a turning point where the process of return becomes spontaneous and stabilizes. This crystallization produces a subtle body sometimes called the spiritual embryo. This embryo might be said to parallel what Jung called the filius, for which Taoist alchemists have many names and images. In alchemy, light and dark, male and female, are joined together in the idea of the chemical marriage, and from this marriage, the filius philosophorum emerges and a new light is born (Jung, 1967: 126). In Taoist alchemy, this is considered the real light, not simply the perceptual light of the eyes but is also the fire of spirit. This fire is both the result of and that which emerges from the refining of the opposites and unfolds beyond them as the “Golden Flower.” Just how this flower is experienced and understood is of the utmost importance. Is it singular or dual, one or many? Can our rational categories capture its significance, or is it that, the flower that can be named is not the eternal flower. Is this the flowering of the Tao so well described by Lao Tsu?

Whatever our conclusion, the movement in the metaphor of light as pictured in The Secret of the Golden Flower might be said to be a movement from a one – sided privileging of light over darkness and consciousness over the unconscious to a new vision of light mysteriously described as inner, invisible, and as vivifying fire, mundus imaginalis, filius, Primordial Man or Golden Flower. While all of these images are different and should be differentiated, they can all be seen as referring to the ineffable result of the work of alchemy. It is a process that produces a sense of “inner light” that is neither simply subjective or objective, neither one nor dual, but a light that results in a new sense of being and of Cosmos. Robert Romanyshyn put it this way

Alchemy is a style of consciousness, a way of knowing and being, which in holding together the tension of spirit and matter, releases the imaginal domain of experience and reality. The imaginal is an autonomous landscape which is neither a material fact nor a mental idea. As such it requires a way of thinking which is neither empirical nor rational. As Jung put it – the alchemists did not think in either/or categories (Romanyshyn, 1998).

One might then say that this light is an archetypal expression of awakening, an awakening to a new vision perhaps best described symbolically and imagistically. The Secret of the Golden Flower differentiates this vision in images such as the yellow bird, the mysterious pearl, the diamond body, the sun wheel, the Golden Pill, the great emptiness, the inner copulation and the holy embryo. It is not adequate to translate these alchemical mysteries into rational idioms. Too much is lost in literal expression, and yet on the other hand it is a danger to see them as mere idealizations.

In a letter to Chang Chung – Yuan in July 1950, Jung communicated his appreciation for Taoist thought. He considered it to be one of the most perfect formulations of a universal truth he had ever encountered, yet, because of its universal character he feared that for westerners Taoism would remain only an ideology that carried with it the possibility of being practiced in only the most superficial and imitative fashion, further splitting practitioners off from their own depths. For this reason he emphasized the importance of re – translation; that is of approaching the truths of Taoism from within the context of one’s own culture. Jung felt he was already inadvertently doing just this in his analytic explorations. He emphasized that the images of the alchemical process could become only words and ideals masking a hidden mystery that remained out of reach. For this reason, he felt it essential that the individual discover a way to those “indispensable psychological experiences that open the eyes to the underlying truth.” (Jung, 1950: 559 – 560)

Jung was aware that his sentiment was shared by the Eastern disciplines, and one might even say that these traditions have made direct experience a central concern, since many of them emphasize the techniques and skillful means by which one can go beyond nominalism and abstraction. Still Jung feared that Westerners would fall into the trap of strengthening the conscious ego and intensifying the split with the unconscious, and that this would aggravate the already chronic Western ailment of the over determination of the will.

Jungian analyst Walter Odajnyk has stated this to be the case even for such sophisticated scholars as Thomas Cleary who retranslated and offered a new commentary on The Secret of the Golden Flower. Cleary has made valuable contributions to our continuing understanding of the text and to Taoist alchemy. Yet for most Jungians his commentary remains a little thin in that it is based on an understanding of “consciousness” and “spirit” that appear to be split off from contact with the unconscious as Jungians have come to understand it. This leads Cleary to a number of naïve assumptions about the analytic process and its similarities and differences from Taoist alchemy. Odajnyk feels a major problem in Cleary’s commentary is with his identification with a transcendental perspective “which throws the lower person and the evocative cultural and indigenous symbolism of the earth soul into the shadow.” (Odajnyk, 1993: 201)

This split between Spirit and Soul has been richly elaborated by Archetypal psychologist James Hillman in an essay entitled "Peaks and Vales." In this paper he draws apart spirit and soul in order to point to the differences between spiritual disciplines and analysis, suggesting that the former – particularity in the West – relies on the metaphor of the Spirit while the latter emphasizes Soul. If we are going to find parallels and differences between analysis and Taoist alchemy and attempt to bridge the understanding between East and West (a goal of Jung's), it may first be necessary to differentiate these two practices (Hillman, 1979: 57).

For Hillman the spiritual perspective always posits itself as superior and operates well in a fantasy of transcendence among ultimates and absolutes. The world of Spirit and its images blaze with "light, fire, wind and sperm" (Hillman, 1975: 68 – 69). "Its direction is vertical and ascending", it is masculine active and carried by the Apollonic archetype with its high level sublimations, abstractions, refinements and purifications. Spirit separates high and low and chooses the high within which to make all One within it. Spirit is up at the peaks which wipes out history. Time is seen as an illusion as well as our particular ethnic roots. For Hillman history has become the great repressed. Soul on the other hand sticks to the realm of experience. It moves indirectly in circular movements where retreats are as important as advances, preferring labyrinths and corners. giving a metaphorical sense to life through words like "close, near, slow, deep (ibid: 69). It is the patient part of us, vulnerable suffering, passive and remembering. The soul says Hillman is like " a mermaid who beckons the heroic spirit into the depths of passion to extinguish its certainty " (ibid).

Now when we look at Taoist alchemy and particularly The Secret of the Golden Flower we find elements of both Spirit and Soul and their subtle intermingling. Hillman draws these " opposites " apart in order to make us feel the difference and this attunes us to what happens when a complex text is seen from the narrowed perspective of one who can only find the spiritual element in the text. It is this spiritualized perspective that Odajnyk sees as Cleary's bias.

For Cleary the practice of Taoist alchemy seems to lead to the peaks, to a going beyond images, thoughts and feelings to a clarity of mind beyond the "quirks of personality" (Cleary, 1991: 141). He emphasizes the capacity for deliberated thought, and the ability to think and observe with detached clarity. This clear thinking allows us to put down useless thoughts and take up useful ones by means of independent discernment of the will. To accomplish this level of spiritual awareness says Cleary, we must remove the psychological seed from the temporal husk (ibid: 150 – 153). It is this view of the psychological that leads Cleary to a western spiritualized psychological perception so different from the depth psychological perspective of Jung and Hillman which is deeply involved in the earth soul, history, the depths of Psyche, its images and symbols.

While the above is only a small sampling of Cleary's comments, I believe they are representative of a perspective which permeates his interpretations. It is not even that such a perspective is entirely wrong or that it does not reflect some aspects of Taoist alchemy, but the spirit of these interpretations leaves too much behind. It loses the metaphoric and difficult alchemical dimension of the text or translates these into a more rationalized psychology. It leaves out the unconscious and in its clear light, it purges the text of its mystery and soul, leaving us with a Secret of the Golden Flower without a secret. In its place we find emphasis on detached spirit, transcendence conscious clarity and will, all of which fall prey to the dangers Jung and Hillman have noted – the splitting off the historical person and strengthening the conscious ego, imagining itself as a transpersonal center yet devoid of earth and shadow.

Through meditation practices it is possible to experience the transpersonal core of the psyche but this experience alone is not necessarily an indication of a fully developed and mature personality (Jung, 1967: 8) A "danger with spiritually inclined people is that they can pursue Self – realization at the expense of personal development, producing people with a highly evolved spiritual perspective who are essentially infantile, socially unadapted, full of instinctual impulses and egoistic concerns. This observation is not meant to cast any personal aspersions on Cleary but only to point to a phenomena in order to reveal a spiritual shadow often overlooked. Odajnyk points to uncritical devotees who feed the pathology and hubris of immature masters and gurus with disastrous consequences for all concerned (Odajnyk, 1998: 129).

If we are to have a better understanding of Taoist alchemy and analysis, of East and West, it is important to see that both traditions share the importance of going beyond this spirit/soul split and recognizing that their interrelationship is fundamental in a fuller development of the person.

Without this development our spiritual sight may be blind. The Greek philosopher Heraclitus made a similar point when he said, "the eyes and ears are bad witness for me if they have barbarian souls" (Freeman, 1962: 32 fragment 107). It is an important insight of Jung's that he recognized a person may hold the highest spiritual ideals and remain a barbarian if his or her shadow is split off or unintegrated. That is why Jung and many Jungians remain cautious about notions of transcendence that don't begin in a fuller development of personality, starting with the ordinary concerns of daily life, with our neuroses and pathologies and our social, political, philosophical and religious delusions, which Western alchemists call the prima materia.

For Jung the process of turning the light around must be more than a technical procedure of the will and requires a profound movement of the soul. The process of inward turning is truly possible in its deepest sense only when the instinctual and personal life have been adequately developed, “our eyes are open to the spirit only where the laws of earth are obeyed” (Jung, 1967: 8). Jung also noted that the striving for spiritual heights can obscure the dark earth whose emotionality and instinctuality reach back into the depths of time and history; and more, that this turning must constitute an initiatory death and transformation if it is to be a genuine movement of soul.

Jungian – Analytic Parallels

In the following clinical examples, the process of inward turning, instinctual response and personal development are seen in the analytic work with dreams.

A short time after the beginning of an analysis, a woman asked a not atypical question about how long her treatment would take. One might attempt to answer this question externally on the basis of a fixed idea, diagnosis, or clinical experience. But it is my conviction that such answers are neither precise nor truly analytical or phenomenological. It is the work of the analyst to refer the subject more deeply to their own resources out of which an answer may be forged, or more typically to the unconscious concern which when seen may allow the question to deepen or change form. Such revisioning sometimes occurs as a patient engages his or her dream life. In the above case, the following dream was reported directly after my patient asked me about the length of treatment and I deferred the question.

First Dream

I have been looking for my car for sometime and then I realized I am in it. I want to get back on the highway. I discover that I have turned off on a detour. I have to go down and around, since the road back to the highway is blocked. I am now walking and there are some old men and women in the clearing. An old woman comes toward me. She looks like a bag lady. She is picking up bits of paper and other scraps and putting them into her bag. I am helping her. The old woman looks me in the eye and says, "It's going to be a long winter".

In the above dream, we find the dreamer seeking for her vehicle, for a way to continue on her path. She is no longer on the "highway" she has been traveling on. She wants to get back on her way but she has turned off into a detour and the path she has been on is blocked and she has to descend and go another way.

Before paying attention to the new scene that occurs in the clearing I'd like to stop for a moment with the dreamer in her situation of impasse, detour and descent.

This situation is a characteristic one reflecting the frustration of not being able to simply go on as before. One might imagine this as the kind of situation that could lead into analysis: the old direction is not working, and a symptom of illness blocks our typical paths which no longer bring the same gratifications, or we are simply not able to go on. Yet we often persist in trying to go about things in the same way, passing over the fact that we are moved into a different position in different circumstances. Sometimes we discover that we are off the road and we find ourselves turning around, descending and going in a different direction. Fairy tales sometimes reflect such situations and require their characters to change direction, which shift the center of gravity and opens a new scene. In this way the logos oriented ego is decentered which is a condition for the possibility of any transformation or continued journey.

The French philosopher, Paul Ricoeur, sees such a decentering as paradigmatic for psychoanalysis. Psychoanalysis displaces the center in order to gain a different perspective. The ego is decentered and humiliated, but this humiliation is precisely what is needed to correct or supplement its logocentric position. For Ricoeur it is impossible that man may know himself directly. It is only by a series of detours that he learns about the fullness and complexity of his own being and relationship to being (Ricoeur, 1970: 422 – 427).

In Ricoeur's case, the emphasis on indirectness becomes a philosophical methodology, while for the analyst, clinical symptomatology and expressions of the "instinctual unconscious" serve to decenter our egos and alter its narrative force which could carry us along. In her article, "Stopping: As Mode of Animation" Pat Berry shows how impasses and even imprisonment can be crucial to a new kind of movement that opens up imaginal space (Berry, 1982: 147). This notion has been popularized by Campbell as a "call to adventure" which he describes by way of some typifying images such as the dark forest, and the loathly, under estimated appearance of the carrier of the power of destiny " (Campbell, 1949: 52 – 53). For Campbell as for Berry, this happening signifies a mythical event, that destiny has summoned the individual and transferred the center of gravity from within the pole of his society to a zone unknown. Campbell, sees this as an Archetypal and universal situation, and for the analyst, each patient's entrance into such a space is a unique variation on this theme.

For the above patient the clearing expressed an opening in which she encounters a lowly and in some ways, loathsome figure who also seems to speak with the voice of destiny. It is here in the " clearing " that a new scene opens itself, in which she is encountered by some old woman whom she describes as resourceful, making use of every little bit to survive. She was collecting little bits of paper and placing them in her bag along with the help of my patient, who it should be noted, had been writing her dreams down on similar scraps of paper. It was literally fall and the dreamer has the feeling that this old woman is preparing to endure the " coming winter and cold weather. " If one chose to take this dream scene in part as a beginning response to the patient's ego concern about the length of treatment, one might suggest that from the perspective of an old, weathered and resourceful part of the soul, there is already a sense of the preparation for enduring a " long cold period of time. " One might imagine that " she " already knows that the analysis will last longer than the dreamer's ego might want it to and that some part of her Psyche was already turning and preparing for it. One might say that the old woman prepared for such a " time " is aware of the via longissima and in her look conveys the sentiments Jung discovered in the Alchemist text The Rosarium Philosophorum which states, that it is a very long road and therefore patience and deliberation are needed. From this perspective one might view the above image as responding to the ego's questioning as giving information to and for the ego, a map for its journey along the highway of life. It is in this sense that Jung states the dream compensates for the limited view of the ego, filling it out and correcting its hurried, impatient vision. Yet from a more Archetypal perspective, one might also suggest that what the old woman is preparing for is not necessarily the literal time of analysis, which is the ego's concern but more a readying for the coming coldness of being that must be endured.

The " winter " did in fact come to express the misery, barrenness and inner frigidity of cold rages that burned in her since childhood. As the analysis continued, the history of her bare survival and the tortures she endured were imaged in a series of dreams where armies had ravaged and brutally beaten women leaving them bloody and broken on the ground, helplessly dying and massacred.

My patient did remain in analysis as if compelled by the knowledge of the old woman, and seemed to know as Hillman has stated, "That analysis remains incomplete if it has not ventured into the frozen depthsthat in depth psychology are areas of archetypal crytallizations, the immovable depressions and mutisms."

Often my patient could not express feelings that were obviously very powerful and she remained frozen and unable to speak or express herself for long periods of time. Below the surface there seemed to be a place that remained utterly inaccessible except for a distant stare and death like pallor on her face.

Dream Four Years Later

I see a Chinese family sitting around in a circle cooking a frog in an odd shaped primitive double boiler. When the whole thing is done it would weigh one pound. The idea was that the frog was being boiled down.

We do not have time to do justice to the dream but some relevant elaborations include that the frog is a cold blooded creature. She feels close to the frog and describes how it sits removed, still and lifeless in a cold frozen position. In her identification with the image she described how growing up she felt ugly and toad-like and had memories of how her father ridiculed her and her mother's femininity, how she withdrew and watched in a schizoid-like manner. The "frog complex" was now in the vessel being heated up, activated and boiled down to a smaller size. She comments on how the small size reminds her of a child. It is interesting that Jung has noted that the frog more than any other cold blooded animal anticipates man. In this regard it is not without interest that in my patient's next dream she was pregnant. She is looking into her womb; she reaches in and takes out what looks like a pyramid in the center of which is a tiny child. She decides it is not ready and puts it back in for further incubation (Marlan, 1994: 39 – 48).

In the above example I want to point to the long and difficult process of reversal, from the path she was on and what was required before the birth of the embryo could even begin to be prepared and ready. It is an example that for the analyst must be held alongside descriptions of the emergence of the spiritual embryo or new life in Taoist alchemy for the sake of comparison.

In this next clinical example we return to the alchemical theme of two lights of turning the light around and the dreamers development. Again a deep instinctual reaction seems to be an essential turning point for this women who was struggling with her Christian God image. For some alchemists the light of the Christian Deity could stand in the way of the light of nature or lumen naturae, a kind of light that became obscured as the development of Christianity split off from the pagan power of nature. The split was a cultural and religious divide in Western Culture which is paralleled by the splits in individuals.

The dreamer was brought up in a strict Catholic tradition, and had been struggling with her desire for a warmer, more sensual life and desiring to be in better touch with her sexuality, eros and bodily sense of self. She experienced her needs as in conflict with her religious training and felt a strong tension with what seemed to be a patriarchal and removed sense of God. Her dreams opened up a heroic and unthinkable reaction to her god – image and drew her down into the flower of her femininity and toward a chthonic light at the core of her inner life. The dream came at a time when her analyst moved away and she felt abandoned and she had not yet found another analyst. The following is her dream.

Dream

I am simultaneously an observer and a small naked infant crawling on a white Easter lily. I am crawling around the flower; it is white, no color, and I am craving to feel its texture and to feel something more, more sensuality. The flower is floating in a dark sky with lots of little lights, like stars in the night. Then I feel a beam of sunlight; it warms my body and gives me a good feeling of being grounded and embodied and a feeling of sensuality. Just as this feeling begins, Jesus Christ on the cross emerges from below and is positioned between me and the sun and, in so doing, casts a shadow over me. I then feel cut off from the light and the warm feelings I was beginning to have. I feel panic that I will freeze to death and won't be able to get any nourishment. Then I feel myself growing very large and, in a burst of rage, I punch Christ in the face, knocking him off the cross, and he and the cross fall down below me. I feel some guilt but then also notice another kind of light coming from deep within the core of the flower; it has a silvery quality.

Again, it is not my purpose here to go into a full analysis of the dream but only to point out how the instinctual and spontaneous psychic reaction of the dream ego leads the way to an important inward turning from a patriarchal masculine god image that stands in the way of her connection to a warmer and embodied sensuality. Here the old conflict between spirit and instinct, religion and sensuality, male and female, places the dreamer in the cold shadow of the deity.

Jung has shown how in our complexes the ancient gods reside and how they return at the archetypal core of our symptoms. Greek myth placed Pan as a god of nature. The ancient mythological religion was essentially a nature religion, the transcendence of which by Christianity therefore meant the suppression of the kind of nature expressed in such figures as Pan. Hillman placed Pan in a cluster of meanings interestingly associated with the abandonment of the child (echoing the dreamer's abandonment) and that Pan appears in the symptom of panic as a protective instinctual/archetypal reaction in the time of crisis.

This dream supports what many commentators on Pan have stated – that Pan never really died, he was just repressed and still lives in our symptoms, and returns when our instincts assert themselves. In our dreamer, Pan does return in panic and rebellion, filled with fear and rage she strikes down her god image. This destructive/ creative act inflates the dreamer who breaks a taboo which seems to allow her then to turn toward a new light and flowering of her soul. This instinctual act of rebellion seems to be an essential component of both spiritual development and individuation (Marlan in Press, 1999). The Secret of the Golden Flower states “if people can kill the mind the original comes alive” (Cleary, 1991: , 25) an idea reminiscent of the Buddhist saying, “if you meet the Buddha on the road, kill him” and the alchemical idea that the old king must die for regeneration to take place.

If the above vignettes are at all suggestive they demonstrate Jung's statement that the process of inward turning is truly possible only to the extent that the instinctive and personal life has been adequately developed, and that the old dominant images that hold psyche in thrall whether an ugly old frog or a divine Christ, must undergo a mortification or death.

In our first vignette, we can see the deep inner movements necessary to overcome early images of ugliness or wounding to the feminine, and what is required to boil down the complex deeply frozen in cold repressed rage. It is in this kind of cooking that one then can see the potential for the emergence of the embryo – a sign of the potential for new life.

Likewise in our second dreamer without the instinctive movement of striking down the god image any attempt to free herself from the cold shadow of the divinity would seem impossible. It took the action of the dream ego of the expression of panic, rage and inflation to clear the way for a process of turning around, and of inward turning necessary for the psyche's unfolding.

In both cases the required “turning” presupposes encountering an impasse, an intervention from the autonomous psyche, that sets the stage for a deeper movement of the soul. It is a process imaged here by boiling or striking down old images but is more fully imagined in the complexity of our dreams. I would suggest that these experiences are not simply linked to the particular pathology of the dreamers, but that in both healthy and neurotic individuals the work of change is complex, arduous and requires not simply transcendence but transformation. What is archetypal is not the particulars of each individual's psyche but the alchemical processes itself, which seems to engender a movement toward renewal of psychic life through a nigredo experience and in reconciliation of opposites, a process that can be seen in both Taoist alchemy and Jungian analysis.

While one can trace this process in the above examples it is not the case that the transformations depicted above represent the subtlest stages of personal development. It is interesting however that the images used to designate high levels of development such as the turning around of the light and the birth of the embryo in Taoist alchemy appear in the above at moments of important change.

The images, while not the same, are parallel in suggesting the possibility that their presence in both meditative experience and in analysis could both be expressions of an archetypal process of transformation, manifested in different ways and at different levels of psychic development.

Jung's final statement of the higher levels of the coniunctio is described in his work, Mysterium Coniunctionis. In the last chapter of this text he describes what he calls the greater coniunctio, the union of opposites through which the philosopher's stone is produced. The coniunctio or alchemical marriage was the last procedure of the alchemists who hoped to unite previously purified substances that existed in complementary but opposed positions. In psychological terms the opposites that needed to be united are the conscious and unconscious aspects of the psyche. The final goal was the reconstitution of the Self. This alchemical conjunction was nothing less than a restoration of the Original state of the Cosmos and is the Western equivalent to the fundamental principle of classical Chinese philosophy, namely the union of yin and yang in the Tao.

The Unification of "Opposites" in Taoist Alchemy and Jungian Analysis

The tradition of inner alchemy also expresses this unification in phenomenological and poetic descriptions which move the heart and soul as well as the mind. For example the coniunctio is described as follows:

...once two things meet, they join inextricably the living movement of creative energy now coming, now going, now floating, now sinking. In the basic chamber in oneself there is an ungraspable sense of vast space, beyond measure; as the whole body feels wondrously light and buoyant.

This is what is called “clouds filling the thousand mountains. .” (ibid: 41) “... the coming and going is traceless, the floating and sinking are indiscernible. The channels are stilled, energy stops: this is the true intercourse. This is what is called ” the moon steeped in myriad waters. (ibid: 42)

Another example is given by Chang Po – Tuan in his Introduction to Alchemy:

The pores are like after a bath, the bones and circulatory system are like when fast asleep, the vitality and spirit are like husband and wife in blissful embrace, the earthly and heavenly souls are like child and mother remembering their love. (ibid: 101)

An even more enigmatic description is given by a female adept of the CRS complete reality school of Tao, Sun Bu – er in her poem.

At the right time, just out of the valley, you rise lightly into the spiritual firmament. The jade girl rides a blue phoenix, the gold boy offers a scarlet peach One strums a brocade lute amidst the flowers. One plays jewel pipes under the moon. One day immortal and mortal are separated and you coolly cross the ocean. (ibid: 103)

In a book entitled Chi Po & The Sorcerer, a Chinese Tale for Children and Philosophers, Mandel creates a scene where the young Chi Po approaches his teacher Bu Fu for his first lesson. The fictional character of Chi – Po was based one of China’s great painters Chi Po – Shih. The account goes as follows:

“Young man”, said Bu Fu at the beginning of the first lesson, “though I am a sorcerer, we must begin at the beginning.” “And what’s the beginning?” said Chi Po. “Tell me, my foolish piece of youth, if your mother and father could give you anything you desired, what things would you ask them for?" That was a question Chi Po had often dreamed of himself, and had answered, too, in his dreams. So he replied without hesitation: "A new hoop, a dog from Peking, strawberries and whipped cream every afternoon, and two rocking chairs, one for Father and one for Mother, because they have always wanted rocking chairs." "Now sit at the door of my cave," said Bu Fu, "and watch the sky and the trees, and watch above all the wind and the destruction of the clouds, and watch the squirrels and the conies, and dream of the brush and of your hand which will sweep over the silk of your next painting." With this Bu Fu pronounced several frightful incantations, and abandoning Chi Po at the mouth of the cave, he went gathering acorns. Only the bulbul remained with Chi. He sat on a branch where he could watch the newcomer, and you could see by the tilt of his head and the angle of his beak that he doubted whether Chi could do it. And it wasn't easy. Now that Bu Fu had reminded him of the new hoop and the strawberries, Chi Po found it hard to send his thoughts into the trees and to keep his eye on the destruction of the clouds. But the afternoon was warm, and Chi settled drowsily with his back to the cave, chewing on a pine needle as he sat. He watched a cloud leave the top of a cedar and edge cautiously over to the top of another cedar - "Like a tightrope walker," thought Chi. And then he heard the wind: well now, it oooooed against the rocks, and frushled among the leaves, and tickled in the pines, and it just went loose above the earth. And on top of the wind went the snitting of the sparrows, the wild geese, the magpies, and above all, the lilling of the scarlet - throated winch, and "Oh," thought Chi Po, "the treble of the birds and the bass of the wind - the high of the mountain and the low of the river - the king and the slave - father and boy - above and below - spring and winter," and on he went in this way, delighted with his discovery and getting drowsy indeed, while the bulbul watched him out of his single eye. "Young one," said Bu Fu, returning with the acorns, "what is on your mind?" "Oh," said Chi Po, a little ashamed, "nothing." "Excellent, supreme," cried Bu Fu, his beard quivering. "You have had your first lesson. Now go home, because I have work in hand. Come back tomorrow. If your mind is still free of that clutter of strawberries and rocking chairs, I will allow you to paint a single dragonfly on a single lotus flower. Off then!" "So," said Bu Fu the next day, when Chi Po came puffing up to the cave, "what of the clutter?" "I hope it is still gone, sir," answered Chi Po. "May I try the dragonfly, please?" "And the lotus blossom. Yes, you may." And Bu Fu told Chi Po why a dragonfly needs a flower, and why a flower needs a dragonfly, for the one stays in the ground and rises from the ground upward, while the other moves about and descends from the sky downward. "Therefore," said Chi Po, "I must paint them where they meet, where down flows into up and up flows into down." (Mandel, 1964: 25 – 26)

If the above images and descriptions describe the subtlest levels of the coniunctio as a traceless union referring to a seamless oneness, it is also vital that we not fall into the idealisms we've been discussing by interpreting this "union" as a simple oneness. According to Jung and Hillman this can lead to an error that results in what the alchemist called a monstrum or premature unity. That is any union which does not differentiate itself into distinct realities. This premature quality of vision can hold true even for those rarified spiritual states described in the "images" of "pure light", "the void", "merging bliss", etc (Hillman, 1979: 57).

In his paper the "Silver and White Earth", Hillman further elaborates his position:

. . . to go through the world seeing its one underlying truth in syn-

chronistic revelations, it's pre – established harmony, that God is man and man becoming God, inner and outer are one, puer is senex, senex puer. That nature and spirit, body and mind are two aspects of the same invisible energy or implicate order thereby neglects the acute distinctions joined by these conjunctions so that our consciousness no matter how wise and wondrous is therefore premature and monstrous. And by monstrous alchemy means fruitless, barren without issue (Hillman, 1981: 56 – 57).

To have a productive conjunction requires that each figure of the pairing remains stubbornly different. Hillman thus describes what a conjunction is not. It is not a balanced mixture, or a composite adding this to that. Nor is it a blending of substantial differences into an arrangement or a symbolic putting together of two halves or two things into a third (ibid: 57).

Seeing as fundamental the stubborn resistance of differences and incommensurabilities means that paradox, absurdity and overt enormity are more characteristic of a union than are androgynous wholeness or harmony of the Unus Mundus. The alchemical conjunction beyond simple monstrums is more like an absurd pun or the joy of a joke than the bliss of opposites transcended. As a psychological event it takes place in the soul as a recognition, an insight, an astonishment! It is not the reconciliation of two differences but the realization that differences are each images which do not deny each other, oppose each other or even require each other (ibid).

The quality of the conjunction that Hillman describes is captured in the following poems, the first of which is said to summarize the operations of inner alchemy:

Jadelike purity has left a secret of freedom
in the lower world.

Congel the Spirit in the lair of energy, and you'll suddenly see white snow flying in mid Summer.

The Sun blazing in the Water at Midnight.

Going along harmoniously you roam in the heavens
then return to absorb

the virtues of "the receptive." (Cleary, 1991: 39)

The second is an obscure Haiku, which humorously captures the subtlety of the conjunction:

On how to sing

the frog school and the skylark school are arguing. (Shiki; from Ross, 1960: 259.)

In the above the so – called problem of "opposites" dissolves into metaphor which is to say that the kind of consciousness that imagines "opposites" as contradiction or problematic has itself dissolved into a metaphoric mode of hearing (Hillman, 1981: 58).

It is this kind of metaphoric sensibility of hearing and receptivity that is important in both Taoist alchemy and Jungian analysis.

In the above we have raised the question of the relationship between spiritual discipline and Jungian analysis, and have seen that spiritual states and experience can be split off from the depths of the unconscious and personal life. Seen in this way there is significant differences of direction in the two approaches. However, it has also been the case that as Jung suggested there are important parallels between his approach and The Secret of the Golden Flower. Both traditions seek to reconcile “opposites” that lead to a larger sense of the unity of life in relation to the Cosmos. For both this unity not a simple Oneness described by a highly rationalized and ego oriented spiritualized psychology but rather a metaphoric complexity. It is this complexity which brings us as Westerners closer to understanding the goal of Taoist alchemy, the circulation of light and renewal in the birth of the spiritual embryo. BIBLIOGRAPHY

Berry, Pat. Echo's Subtle Body “Stopping as a Mode of Animation.” Dallas, Texas: Spring Publications, 1982.

Campbell, Joseph. The Hero with a Thousand Faces. Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press, 1949.

Cleary, Thomas. The Secret of the Golden Flower. San Francisco: Harper, 1991.

Corbin, Henri. The Man of Light in Iranian Sufism. Boulder, CO: Shambhala Press, 1978.

Freeman, Kathleen. Ancilla to the Pre – Socratic Philosophers. Oxford: Basil Blackwell Oxford, 1962.

Hillman, James. Revisioning Psychology. New York, Evanston, San Francisco, London: Harper & Row Publishers, 1975.

Hillman, James. Puer Papers “Peaks and Vales”. Spring Publications University of Dallas, 1979.

Hillman, James. Spring “Silver and the White Earth Part II”. Spring Publications, 1981.

Jay, Martin. Downcast Eyes. Berkley, CA: University of California Press, 1994.

Jung, C. G. . Alchemical Studies “Commentary on The Secret of Golden Flower". Princeton, NJ: Bollingen Foundation Princeton University Press, 1967.

Jung, C. G. . C. G. Jung Letters. Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press Bollingen Series XCV 1, 1973.

Jung, C. G. Memories, Dreams, Reflections. Amelia Jaffe, editor. New York: Pantheon Books, 1961.

Mandel, Oscar. Chi Po and the Sorcerer. Portland, VT & Tokyo, Japan: Charles E. Tuttle Co., 1964.

Marlan, Stanton. 'Methods' a Journal for Human Science. "Dream Maps as an Articulation of the Multiple Intentionalities of Psyche". Dallas, TX: Annual Edition University of Dallas, 1994.

Marlan, Stanton. Pathways into the Jungian World. "The Metaphor of Light and its Deconstruction in Jung's Alchemical Vision". Roger Brooke, editor. London: Routledge, in press.

McClean, Adam, editor The Rosary of the Philosophers. Magnum Opus Source Books, 1980.

Odajnyk, Walter V. The Gathering of Light: A Psychology of Meditation. Boston & London: Shambhala, 1993.

Ricoeur, Paul. Freud and Philosophy. New Haven, CT: Yale University Press, 1970.

Romanyshyn, Robert. Personal Communication, 1998.

Roob, Alexander. The Hermetic Museum, Alchemy & Mysticism. New York, Paris, Tokyo, Italy: Taschen: 1997.

Ross, Nancy Wilson. The World of Zen: An East - West Anthology.

NY: Random House, 1960.

The Prospects for a Jungian Psychology in China

分析心理学在中国的展望

Geoffrey Blowers*

Introduction

What would make a Jungian psychology possible in China? Assuming for the moment it is like any other western knowledge, initially 'foreign' to Chinese, then one could usefully begin by examining Chinese translations — the standard means by which knowledge is imported. For our purposes, these will be Chinese translations of psychoanalytically related works. The study of translations provides a key way of examining how cultures 'indigenize', i. e. make over, in their own language, ideas of the Other — all that might be deemed 'foreign' — for their own uses. The extent to which this involves distortion is an indication of their potentially troubling effects. Ideas can be misunderstood through ignorance of the foreign culture, or because they can be threatening to the social or moral order of the host culture. Freud's ideas have had a difficult passage in this region as judged by his translations. Of all Asia it is only in Japan that there are translations of all of his major ideas.

* Geoffrey Blowers, 香港大学心理学系。

I shall also examine briefly the clinical context in China and the current state and thinking of the universities with regard to the discipline of psychology as a whole. These lines have important historical antecedents.

The Translation Background

In Japan and Korea for example, psychoanalysis has been translated relatively successfully with the setting up of training institutes affiliated to the International Psychoanalytic Association, and the training of a small handful of practitioners (Blowers and Yang 1997). In Japan in the 1930s, three of these practitioners, Yabe Yaekicki, Kosawa Heisaku and Marui Kiyoyasu, traveled separately to Vienna and each obtained an audience with Freud. Yabe and Kosawa went on to secure a brief analysis from some of Freud's closest collaborators at the time. Later generations also received a training analysis overseas, the most notable practitioner being Doi Takeo, who trained at the Menninger clinic, Marui, Yabe and another early analyst, Ohtsuki Kenji, also set about translating Freud and by the mid 1930s two rival editions of his works appeared.

The situation in China has been different in that Freud's ideas achieved some visibility in the 1920s in a period of significant social and political reform but were otherwise not taken seriously until the 1930s when the first translations of his works appeared. The medical establishment was not developed enough to secure a training institute, and the shifting political climate in China in the latter half of this century made individual psychotherapy virtually impossible. There are no analysts per se, and only one Chinese intellectual is thought to have established contact with Freud directly, though he seems neither to have practiced nor taught psychoanalysis (Blowers 1993, 1997; Pearson 1995; Seurre 1997).

Nevertheless, in the three countries mentioned here, there have been a sizeable number of translations of Freud's works and many secondary literature sources. Some of these translations have inevitable resulted in distortions of Freud's original ideas, as happened when his German texts were translated into English. Here, the concern has led to a debate amongst translators between ensuring fidelity to language (e. g. Pontalis et al., cited in Ornston 1992), conceptual interchange (Mahoney, cited in Ornston 1992) and scientific authority (Junker, cited in Ornston 1992). In Asia, the problems are compounded because many translators worked with Freudian texts already translated into a second language. While many Japanese translators worked with English texts, in China there has been a tendency to use the Japanese terminology as they shared a common writing system in kanji (characters), even though the same characters may mean different things in the two languages. This has produced occasional errors, as seen, for example, with China's initial use of the Japanese term muisiki for "Unconscious", which literally means, in Chinese, 'without consciousness'.

More systematic distortions are also evident, as has been outlined by Zhang Jingyuan in her work on Freud and Chinese literature (Zhang 1989). Zhang Shizhao translated the term 'paranoia', in China in 1930, as huaxu kuang, which means an obsession with wealth and fame. This meaning arises from a context in which Zhang is trying to explain Freud's Selbstdarstellung in terms of a myth about a Chinese Emperor, Huang Di. There was concern in some quarters that Freud's theory, which appeared to grant primacy to a free reigning sexuality, could be construed as a threat to the stability of family relations. Some interpretations of the Oedipus complex were desexualized by making them social: for example, the female author, Yonqin, writing in 1930 about Freud's theory of hysteria (and omitting all references to infantile sexuality), states that the condition arises out of conflict between social pressure and the 'biological instinct for satisfaction and fulfilment' (Zhang 1989). A motive for translating Freud, in one translator's eyes, was to forewarn a general public of the dangers of taking Freud too seriously (Gao 1933/1984; Blowers 1995).

On the other hand, very serious attempts have been made in Asia to rethink the Oedipal myth in terms of culturally prevalent myths. In Japan, one such instance involved Kosawa Heisaku writing a Japanese version of Oedipus according to the Buddhist myth of Ajase in which the primary object of ambivalence is the mother (Kosawa 1935; Okonogi 1995; Blowers and Yang 1997). In China the myth of Xue Ren Gui, a soldier of the Tang dynasty who kills his own son in ignorance of the kinship tie, preserves the authority of the father. Some commentators have held that this becomes an exemplar of the Confucian ethic of filial piety (e. g. Solomon 1971; Zhang 1989).

The Absence of Jung

When we come to look for any difficulties translators in China faced with Jung's works we are confronted by a harsh fact: prior to the early 1980s, there would appear to have been no translations of Jung's works into Chinese. In Wolfgang Bauer's and Hwang Shen - chang's bibliography of Chinese translations of German texts for the period from the end of nineteenth century to 1966 (the beginning of the Cultural Revolution), none are listed (Wolfgang Bauer & Hwang 1982). Perhaps this is not so surprising given the state of the intellectual milieu from the 1920s onwards when more foreign texts began appearing. The choice of what to translate was often arbitrary. A student trained abroad would return with a copy of his favorite book under his arm. Sometimes (and this was relevant to psychoanalytic and much scientific literature) translations and articles based upon primary sources were written with a clear political purpose. The May Fourth movement of 1919 had heralded a brief renaissance in which there had been increasing call from Chinese intellectuals to modernize the country and shake off certain feudalistic practices and 'superstitions'. Freudian notions of sexual tensions in families proved attractive to those calling for social reform.

It was in this period that the language itself underwent significant changes with the introduction of many new words making it possible to describe newly - introduced foreign concepts, although this also presented problems. One could use characters that already conveyed a related meaning and combine them in new compounds to convey the essence of what was meant, e. g. a psychoanalytic term like 'id' because benwo (lit. 'original me'). But more often than not many translators used characters that sounded like the English words they were trying to convey, producing a phonetic equivalent. For example, "id" was sometimes translated as yide. Borrowing from Japanese presented further problems because the Chinese characters used in this language did not necessarily have the same meaning as the same characters in Chinese (see above). In any event there were no hard and fast rules governing such practices, despite the creation of a national office of translation.

In spite of these developments though, Jung's work appears to have been passed over in silence. Moreover the situation was not to improve during the 1930s and 40s when the country was caught up in conflict with the Japanese and subsequently in civil war between the Communists and the Kuo Ming Tang. We might speculate on the reasons for this. Chinese students of western thought have focused mainly on science and related subjects. The value of this 'outside knowledge' has been seen primarily in terms of its utility in the homeland. Freudian ideas could claim to have been useful because of their allegiance to biology, medicine and education. Jung's ideas in principle could claim a similar pedigree, even without their interim connection to Freud. Jung's word association studies, for example, could easily have been part of the general curriculum in the early 1920s when universities in Beijing and Shanghai began offering psychology courses. On the other hand, given that the possibilities for studying Jung abroad in universities were minimal as Jungian psychologists then, and also to some extent now, operate primarily outside university contexts, few students studying abroad might have come across his work.

After the founding of the People's Republic in 1949, by which time Jung's star had risen considerably in the west — even if at the expense of controversy — it was no longer possible for students in China to read him. The Communist government severed all ties with non – communist countries. Attention became focused on Russia. In the early part of its first decade, all psychological work in the People's republic was based upon Russian psychology and followed Pavlov' work very closely. When this model proved less than satisfactory for explaining all psychological phenomena, there then followed two very difficult periods in which the study of psychology, along with many other disciplines, was first criticized and eventually discontinued during the period that became known as the 'Proletariat or Cultural Revolution'. Only since 1978 has psychology emerged with a new agenda, largely free of previous political constraints.

Jung's Belated Appearance

In this new climate, where translations and secondary source writing have once again emerged, there has been some acknowledgement of Jungian concepts within the mainstream. In 1990, under the sponsorship of the International Union of Psychological Sciences, there appeared a Concise Encyclopaedia of Psychology [jianmin xinlixue baike quanshu] containing a large number of entries of psychological terms translated into Chinese together with their Japanese counterparts from which many had been derived. This comprehensive listing in Chinese set the standard to be adopted throughout the country. Included are several Jungian terms, 'archetype' [yuanshi yixinag], 'image' [biaoxiang], 'complex' [qingjie], 'shadow' [yingxiang], 'self' [ziwo], 'anima' [yinxing linghunxiang], and 'animus' [yangxing linghunxiang]. Jung's name [Rongge] as a phonetic transliteration is also included.

Also in this period three of Jung's works, Modern Man in Search of a Soul, Memories, Dreams, Reflections, and Man and his Symbols, have appeared in Chinese. And several other developments are underway. A series of translations of neo – Jungian texts began appearing in 1998 under the banner of the People's Publishing House. They include Erich Neumann's The Great Mother, and The Origins and History of Consciousness; Barbara Hannah's Jung: His Life and Work: A Biographical Memoir and The Cat, Dog and Horse Lectures, and the Beyond; Murray Stein's Solar Conscience/Lunar Conscience; Allen B. Chinen's In the Ever After; Fairy Tales for the Second Half of Life; Arthur and Libby Colman's The Father: Mythology and Changing Roles; and Harry A. Wilmer's Understandable Jung: The Personal Side of Jungian Psychology.

Alongside these was to have been published a project entitled the Rose Garden Series, a collection of original works undertaken by Chinese literary scholars interested in Jungian ideas, and The Jung Reader in which Jung's major ideas are introduced with comments on his contributions to the development of psychology, philosophy and mythology and of literature and the arts. The late Li Yihong, described by YeHua Zhu – levine, another Chinese Jung enthusiast now living in America, as a very passionate and dedicated scholar, initiated all these. With Li's death in December of 1997 the latter two projects are currently in a state of flux but there are indications that the work will continue under other Chinese scholars and with the support of the International Association of Analytical Psychology.

The Probable Reception of Jung's Works in China

Once works start appearing how is Jung likely to be received? This is more difficult to gauge. In the west, Jung's ideas, whether accepted or not, have ready outlets for dissemination through the clinic and the universities. The clinic in turn has given rise to the private psychotherapeutic practice, which has yet to emerge in China with any clear viability. As several commentators have amply documented, psychiatry, as a separate discipline, was in its infancy in China before 1949. There was a home for the mentally ill Canton run by an American missionary doctor, which opened in 1898. Before that there appears to have been little in the way of psychiatric services (Lin 1985; Pearson 1991, 1995). According to Lin Tsung Yi (cite in Pearson 1995), by the time the Communist party came to power, a small number of psychiatric hospitals appeared in the major cities where foreign influence was quite high (Guangzhou, Beijing, Shanghai, Nanjing, Chendu, Changsha, Harbin). The most significant was the Peking Union Medical College, which launched China's first full – scale academic programme in 1932. It developed new initiatives in teaching and practice involving the disciplines of sociology, social work, and, according to Dai, who was trained by Harry Stack Sullivan and was the only psychoanalytically trained psychiatrist working in the College, some psychotherapy as well (Dai 1987). This would have continued if it had not been for the invasion by the Japanese, which also prevented the formation of a Chinese psychoanalytic association.

The psychoanalyst, E. D. Joseph, who visited China in 1982, has suggested some probable reasons for the lack of psychotherapy. He claimed there was no tradition of expressiveness in the Chinese doctor – patient relationship. The doctor in a traditional Chinese setting typically adopts an authoritarian attitude towards patients. He also alluded to the breakdown of traditional hierarchies in the Chinese family, and how power relations of the commune leaders upon whom individuals must rely for mobility and advancement had replaced these; thus talking to strangers became risky.

Joseph was writing his impressions just five years after the end of the Cultural Revolution, but there are other factors that militate against a large – scale turn towards psychotherapy. Chinese people typically present psychological problems as somatic complaints (somatization) and have deeply ingrained philosophical systems of thought for which traditional practices such as worship – ping of ancestors and visits to the temple to seek one's fortune serve in times of distress.

These practices have been understood by Unschuld (1989, cited in Gerlach 1995) as embodying a 'medicine of parallels', evolving out of Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism, in which:

“Visible and invisible occurrences in the internal and external worlds of the human being (e. g. , emotions, internal organs, climatic conditions, elements) are allocated to particular series of parallels and are mutually dependent on each other. Thus the dividing lines between internal and external, mind and body, are removed and a change in one link in the series of parallels will directly affect the others.” (Gerlach 1995, p. 94)

These systems of thought begin to resonate with some of Jung’s ideas, particularly those concerned with the collective unconscious and the theory of archetypes. Hellmut Wilhelm’s own commentary on the I Ching, and the Introduction by the translator, Cary Baynes, to Richard Wilhelm’s (Hellmut’s father) earlier series of lectures, both show direct and implicit connections to Jung. Baynes mentions Jung’s theory of synchronicity as an explanation for the divinatory aspects of the Book of Changes by proposing it as:

“An acausal technique for grasping reality – all reality anywhere – it is another, more complete and all encompassing way of dealing with the world.” (Wilhelm & Wilhelm 1995, p. 153)

And Hellmut Wilhelm in his lecture, The Concept of Change, alludes to a notion of stability of change akin to Jung’s theory of archetypes,

“... the stability of change is the counterpart of the human virtue of reliability. One can grasp it, hold to it, and count on it. Change is not something that is carried out abruptly or irrationally. It has a fixed course in which the trends of events develop. Just as we confidently count on the sun rising tomorrow and on spring following winter, so we can be sure that the process of becoming is not chaotic but pursues fixed courses.” (Wilhelm & Wilhelm 1995, p. 30)

Jung himself is indebted to Asian thinking, as his well – known ‘Foreword and Commentary’ to Richard Wilhelm’s translations of the I Ching and The Secret of the Golden Flower and his ‘Commentary’ to Evans – Wentz’s The Tibetan Book of the Great Liberation make clear. According to one compiler of religious thinking, he has ‘done more to interpret Eastern religion to the West than any other man’ (Zaehner 1964, p.

403). But Jung's ideas, like those of any foreign theoretician, are likely to be relevant only to the extent that the interpretations can be offered in a language appropriate to the client population and can make sense. In the latter connection it is noteworthy that not all of Jung's concepts find a ready template in the stream of Chinese thought. 'Individuation', for example, a central feature of his theory, whereby an individual becomes distinct from other people or a collectivity, is wholly alien and, significantly, has not been translated.

Jung himself was sensitive to the difficulties of translating concepts from cultures very different from his own. The prospect of writing the introductions for the eastern texts filled him with a sense of unease (Clarke 1994). He was aware of the acute difficulty of 'hiding under the cloak of scientific understanding' when confronting 'feelings [that] might allow contact with the foreign spirit to become a serious experience' (Wilhelm & Jung 1932, p. 77). For him, a true understanding becomes possible only with the temporary abandonment of one's own cultural presumptions – in his case the presumptions of western science – without which translation is unlikely to yield a fidelity to the original text. Chinese scholars anxious to learn more about Jung's formulations might develop a similar sensitivity to what they see as foreign in his works.

Given the current disposition of university psychology departments in China to follow the intellectual mainstream of the West, with its emphasis on cognitive and behaviouristic models, it is unlikely that they will serve as an appropriate forum for Jung (see Blowers 1996). However, clinical psychology as a postgraduate training discipline is just round the corner. And in the arts and cultural sciences, and in the conferences bringing scholars from East and West together, the possibilities are legion for further discussion and sharing of the views of C. Jung and Chinese culture.

References

Blowers, G. H. (1993). 'Freud's China connection'. Journal of Multilingual and Multicultural Development, 14, 4, 263 – 73.

Blowers, G. H. (1995). 'Gao Juefu: China's interpreter of western psychology'. World Psychology, 1, 3, 107 – 21.

Blowers, G. H. (1996). 'The prospects for a Chinese psychology'. In The Handbook of Chinese Psychology, ed. M. Bond. Hong Kong: Oxford University Press 1 – 14.

Blowers, G. H. (1997). 'Freud in China: the variable reception of psychoanalysis'. China Perspectives, 10, March/April, 33 – 9.

Blowers, G. H. & Yang, S. H. C. (1997). 'Freud's Deshi: the coming of psychoanalysis to Japan'. Journal of the History of the Behavioural Sciences, 33, 2, 115 – 26.

Clarke, J. J. (1994). Jung and Eastern Thought: A Dialogue with the Orient. London: Routledge.

Dai, B. (1987). 'Psychoanalysis in China before the revolution'. In psychoanalysis around the world, ed. R. Fine. New York: Howarth Press.

Gao (1933/1984). Yi Jingshenfenxi Yinlun (Fuluoyide zhu). Transl. S. Freud's Introductory Lectures on Psychoanalysis. Shanghai: The Commercial Press.

Gerlach, A. (1995). 'China'. In Psychoanalysis International: A Guide to Psychoanalysis throughout the World, Vol. 2, ed. P. Kutter. Stuttgart – Bad Cannstatt: Fromman Holzboog, 94 – 102.

Joseph, E. D. (1987). 'Psychiatry and psychoanalysis in the People's Republic of China: a transcultural view'. In Psychoanalysis around the World, ed. R. Fine. New York: Howarth Press.

Ornston, D. G. (ed.) (1992). Translating Freud. New Haven and London: Yale University Press

Yang, S. H. and Blowers, G. H. (1977). 'The early Japanese translations of Sigmund Freud's works: an annotated list ". Occasional paper No. 20. University of Hong Kong: Social Sciences Research Center.

Zaehner, R. C. (1964). 'A new Buddha and a new Tao'. In The Concise Encyclopaedia of Living Faiths, ed. R. C. Zaehner. London: Hutchison, 402012.

梦的追寻

John Beebe

This has been an extraordinary conference, and it is almost impossible to imagine making one summary statement because each and every one of you has your own summary already happening in your heart. So I can only give you some reflections that I've had that may also touch your experiences.

We have been to a conference where we have been told that Jung was a Taoist and that Confucius was a Jungian. And we have learned that on his deathbed Jung was reading Ch'an Buddhism. Not on my deathbed, but on my bed in the hotel last night thinking about the fact that I would have to lecture to you today, I was looking at the Sutra of Huineng, and I noticed that in the English translation it said that the Sutra begins, "Learned audience, our essence of mind, (literally self-nature) which is the seed or kernel of enlightenment, bodhi, is pure by nature; and by making use of this mind alone we can reach Buddhahood directly." I realized that, studying the Buddhist teachings, many people in the West read about "the essence of mind" and get very badly lost. I think that we have to be grateful to C. G. Jung, because he makes the literal meaning, of self-nature the really right way to translate this into English also.

I was very moved when we went to visit the temple in Guangzhou and the abbot of the temple sat with us, and talked to us, explaining to us his belief that what people really need is to experience themselves, and they could get that from Buddhist meditation. It was obvious that he wondered, why do they also need psychotherapy? How could we tell him that for modern people psychotherapy creates a space where people can experience the self? People come to psychotherapy, they come to a psychotherapist's office, that quiet place just described in the very beautiful, complete presentation by Wei Wan, they come to the analyst's office, the private place created by the analyst, because they cannot live their psychological life anywhere else.

Now, I came to this country first as a very little boy, before the country that I am visiting this time – the present country, the present consciousness, the present nation – was born. I left in November of 1948 because so to speak a baby was being born, and it was not right for me to be in a maternity room. And I'm very aware, as I come back, that this is a different country, a new country. New things go through many stages. Today there was a strange event that moved us all as we were riding on our bus. People began to crowd up on the side of the bus, and we looked outside, those of us that hadn't seen, and we saw the body of what I thought was a little boy lying beside a bicycle. (Audience: it was a woman.) This small person had just died. And people were watching from across the street.

We went on with our journey, and we saw many things that people couldn't have seen just a few years ago. I don't know the meaning of the event, but I knew that it was important, that something as well as someone had passed away. I don't know what the cause of the accident was, and I don't know what the cause of the accident was, and I don't know the life of the person would have been like if it hadn't happened. The body seemed very small and frail to me, this is why I thought it was a child.

Later I cast the I Ching, not about that particular haunting event, but about this conference as a whole, just to see what the I Ching would make of this particular conference. It gave me a very interesting hexagram, a simple hexagram in that there were no moving lines. It was Hexagram 45, "Gathering Together." Sometimes that hexagram is called "Massing." I thought, "How appropriate, we have gathered together." Now, if you know the I Ching – I didn't bring my copy so I'll have to say it by heart – if you know the I Ching, it says that the superior person gathers his weapons together to meet the unforeseen. So we have to ask ourselves, what is the unforeseen?

Jung is very clear about this in his writhing. He says. "That which a person cannot make conscious happens to him as fate." I don't know the accident that could happen to China as a whole, or to an individual Chinese person if something that needs to be made conscious is not conscious, because the unconscious is truly unconscious. But I know from working with many, many individuals in analytic practice that it's very good for a culture to have a place where consciousness can be incubated – where it can take place, where it can grow.

We have in the hexagram of Gathering Together two trigrams. The lower trigram is the earth, or the ground one could say. And the upper, outer trigram is the lake. Now the lower, inner trigram is often symbolized as the mother in a family. It consists of three yin lines, so that it's totally receptive: the Tao can flow through it. The upper trigram is often symbolized as the youngest daughter. Because it's the upper trigram, there's not a lot of space for the daughter to grow. So we have the image of a young daughter in relation to a very old mother.

I think of the young daughter as psychology, and I think of the old mother as this extraordinary culture, where so many people have cultivated the Tao, and so many people have disputed the Tao.

There is an implied hexagram in every hexagram that is cast which we make up by looking at the nuclear trigrams that make up the overlapping interior structure of the hexagram. And if we look at those two we find that we have in the interior of the hexagram Wind over Mountain, or Sun over Kên. The Mountain is, again, that still, eternal place, where great wisdom of the elders resides, in touch with Heaven. The Wind is the spirit that blows across the mountain and penetrates into the meaning of things in a time – bound way. So these two nuclear trigrams create the implied hexagram of Development, or Gradual Progress.

This hexagram made me “see” that we who have gathered together here in this country have set in motion something that will gradually develop. It’s very interesting, if one takes Serge’s diagram to find, in fact, the psychological type that he assigns [note: this alas was a mistake on my part – if only he had made this assignment!] to the lower trigram of Gathering Together, of the earth, is associated in his model with introverted intuition. Introverted intuition is the consciousness that simply knows by direct apprehending knowing, without a subject – object split, in that extraordinary way that the Chinese mind has always had, of grasping the essential directly. That consciousness is innermost in this particular hexagram. And it’s very interesting that the outer trigram, the youngest daughter, or Tui, is one that Serge associates with extraverted feeling, which is often the way that the hexagram meets the world. Interestingly, I find that extraverted feeling extraordinarily well – developed in the Chinese culture that I’ve met. As someone who has studied psychological type for a long time, I believe that certain nations have their own individuation process. And I see the starting point for China as these two functions, introverted intuition and extraverted feeling.

We have met the various Chinese philosophies again and again in this conference. We have had our Taoist in Heyong Shen, who has practiced wu wei throughout and enabled us to get as far as we got; we have had our Confucian in Gao Lan, who has kept us in order and that we observe proper form, and made sure we arrived when we should, and in the way that we should; and certainly we have had our Buddhist in Kun Wang, who has opened me up to Buddhism in a way that I never felt could happen to me. Her mediation as she translated for other guides in the temples just seemed perfect to me, never more so than in that moment when she said something that I've known intellectually before but somehow this time I heard at the level of the heart, that the Buddhas one sees represented in these temples are in no sense "deities" outside us, but simply images of states we can all attain. I felt Kun Wang was a Sutra of them all.

So I think we can be very proud of this conference, and if something is at risk – and the grave omen of the accident gives us the sense of something in the Chinese soul that is at risk – also there are weapons, there are forces gathering to meet the unforeseen, whatever it can be next. Active forces have already been released in a very moving and positive way.

As we come to the end of the conference, I have no actual I Ching cast to share. I have had to simply use my own mind. I didn't consult the I Ching, but my own mind thought of something from the I Ching which I want to share with you as someone who has had to learn to make himself capable of practicing Jungian psychotherapy. I've been through a long, arduous process of learning how to do this work, and of having to get the kind of help and support from others that I've needed to have to do it, and I can assure you that learning to use Jung's psychology is a very long and difficult process.

The hexagram that crossed my mind, because it's the end of the conference, is the hexagram After Completion. That's a hexagram where all the lines are in their proper places. Yin is where yin should be, and yang is where yang should be, and everything is together. It's the hexagram of something that we're all thinking of as we get ready to go to dinner – it's the pot over the fire, Kan over Li. it's a time when everything seems to be together, dinner is about to be served, and everything is in order. The I Ching says this is the most dangerous time of all. It particularly interests me – one of the important lines is the second line of the hexagram. There it says, "The woman loses the curtain of her carriage. Do not run after it. In seven days you will get it back again."

In the olden times (Wilhelm explains) it was considered to a breach of propriety if a woman rode without the curtain being drawn when she rode in her carriage; it was not good for the woman to be exposed, like Lady Godiva, almost, to the eye of the beholder. In ancient China, a woman had to be behind the curtain.

This line comes from a hexagram that could be applied to the situation when someone is just starting out in any kind of profession. I in fact drew this line more than once when I was a young doctor trying to learn Jungian psychotherapy to be qualified as an analyst. It says that in times After Completion, a bad thing can happen. Those that already have the power neglect the duty to develop the talent of those who don't yet have the power, and so very often the young person, the new person, wants to call attention to him or herself to get protection, to give him status, to give her status, to get protection. This is like a woman in a carriage without a curtain.

You see, you here in China have all exposed something to us, who come from outside. With this conference, you have exposed your newness to Jungian psychology to us all; you've shown the whole world that you're new to it. You're a very old country with much to be proud of, with very wonderful, extraordinary people with natural gifts of intuition and feeling, but Jungian psychology is still new to you. So now that you've exposed yourself, what if nobody pays attention for a while, what if no one comes forward to help you right away, what if people pull back, and say, "Well, they don't know very much yet"? You may feel that we're not taking care of you. You may worry, "Where are we?" The line from the I Ching says, "Don't seek power and status too quickly." It says rather, "After seven days, you will get the curtain you need, you will get the persona you need – after seven days."

Now, seven is a number that Jungian psychology has taught us to understand. It's the number of initiation. This is that process of Gradual Development, where one slowly, by testing and learning, develops character and the skill one needs; this is the initiation process which is always characterized by an Ordeal. It will be an ordeal to develop an effective Jungian psychotherapy in China. There will be much study, much criticism, stumbling, disappointment, and many difficulties along the way. This is the archetype of initiation, which so often goes through seven stages, like the week: these are the seven days that the hexagram says must elapse the curtain of the persona is returned to the initiate.

But even if you do achieve the right attitude and undergo the natural initiatory development the line speaks of, with the aid of the characteristically Chinese humility and willingness to work, in that state of mind you will get a second hexagram. And the second hexagram which you will have gathered if you drew the line about the lost persona in the first hexagram will be the new hexagram or situation of Waiting. Even when you are ready to be qualified as knowing about Jungian psychology, you will still be waiting. If you look again at that second line of that second hexagram, it says, "Waiting on the sand. There is some gossip. In the end, good fortune comes."

So even if you succeed in bringing Jung to China, you will hear the gossip of people who say, "But they don't really know Jungian psychology, these Chinese people." But you must not mind. You are on the right path. This is the right thing for you to do. This is the right country for Jungian psychology. And you have been extraordinary to expose your need to us so that we can begin to help you. I hope that we will not abandon you, because I have learned that you have so much more that you could give back than we could ever bring to you.

And in the unconscious we are all together in this effort anyway.

Note

Quotations from the I Ching are taken from the Richard Wilhelm translation as rendered into English by Cary F. Baynes, third edition, Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1967

心神感应

申荷永

为期 5 天的“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”圆满结束，当帷幕徐徐落下的时候，积蕴的情感依然在酝酿，依然充满着这巨大的会场，承载着这特别的 5 天的相聚，凝结成一个完美的记忆。

在会议开幕时的“引言”中，我曾经解释了会标“思”的设计与内涵。实际上，在这构思与设计的过程中，还有一个故事，一个自发展现出来的故事，一个关于“心神感应”的故事。

我最初的思路，是想用《易经》之咸卦的卦象来设计会标，所表达的意思也与爱诺思基金会主席的贺词不谋而合：真正的会议应该能够开启具有无限意义的相互交流与理解的体验，真正的会议能够超越会议的表面形式，而在人们的交流与理解之中产生真正的意义。

于是，在会议之前，我曾邀请几位研究《易经》以及美术设计的朋友，在家里一起讨论这“咸卦”的设计。《易经·咸·彖》曰：“咸，感也。柔上而刚下，二气感应以相与。……天地感而万物化生，圣人感人心而天下和平，观其所感，则天地万物之情可见矣。”同时，我曾把这咸卦之“感应”翻译为“Touching by heart and response from heart”，因为汉字“感应（應）”之中皆有

“心”为主体，我并且认为这“感应”可作为中国文化心理学的第一原理。

但是，把“咸卦”的六爻化为一种会标的设计并非易事，我们后来采用了“思”的设计。不过，这“咸卦”之感应的意象已经出现，并且逐渐体现在了我们会议的过程中。

首先，是在会议之前，我与几位朋友共同讨论“咸卦”与“思”之会标设计那天，富有兴趣的讨论持续到了午夜时分，我左脚的拇指偶然间阵阵疼痛，使我联想到这“咸卦”之初爻初显——“咸其拇”，但当时纯属个人体验，也并未说出。

会议的第一天，约翰·毕比代表国际分析心理学会做主题发言，吸引了全体与会的学者；下午我们一起走进宾馆，他在上楼梯的时候，抬脚“不慎”，小腿磕碰受伤。我在搀扶他的时候，联想到了“咸卦”之六二爻——“咸其腓”，心中还念叨竟然如此之巧合，但仍然并未声张。随后，傅剑平教授做了关于《易经》的报告，同样吸引了众多的国内外学者。我们一起参观六祖慧能的“国恩寺”，与会的国内外学者同在那里的斋堂共进午餐。而就在午餐的时候，傅剑平从坐的椅子上反倒过去摔到了地上……此时，由于傅剑平也知道我们一起讨论“咸卦”之感应设计的背景，于是我也就脱口而出：“你看，这咸卦的第三爻”也出现了。咸卦之九三曰：“咸其股，执其随，往吉。”

因此，尽管我们使用的是“思”之整合的会标设计，但是这咸卦之感应，时刻伴随着我们。到了会议结束的时候，那是我们大家相处的第5天，在肇庆“七星岩”的松涛宾馆，下午3点左右，约翰·毕比在做大会的结束发言。当时我协助杨广学教授为约翰·毕比的发言做翻译，一起站在会场的前面。约翰·毕比充满感情地回顾了为期5天的会议，流露着对“分离”的依依不舍……他的情感也影响了整个会场，坐在前排的大卫·罗森和斯坦·马伦等人的眼中已经充满了泪水……而我自己，为了不至于被那

种充满了的情感影响到言语的表达，不得不转过身去以便能有所控制……于是，我对约翰·毕比，以及对着与会者们说，这就是《易经》咸卦之第四爻了——感于心！“贞吉悔亡，憧憧往来，朋从尔思”。程颐有言：“天地之常，以其心普万物而无心。圣人之常，以其情顺万物而无情。故君子之学，莫若廓然而大公，物来而顺应，故曰：‘贞吉悔亡，憧憧往来，朋从尔思。’”

咸卦之第四爻，正为感于心之象征。对此，《易经·系辞》中有深刻的论述，将咸卦第四爻之意义发挥得淋漓尽致，如将其形容为“同归殊涂”；“一致百虑”；“精义入神”；“穷神知化”……

成为感应，而观“應”（应）字的构成，其中有“雁”之形象；雁为合群之候鸟，有人性，飞行有序，常为“人”形。《说文解字》有云：“雁，鸟也。从隹，从人。”徐铉等注为：“雁，知时鸟，大夫以为挚，昏（婚）礼用之，故从人。”正如“鸣鹤在阴，其子和之”，虽则千里之外，亦相呼应。元好问曾有传世诗篇——“问世间，情是何物？直教生死相许。……欢乐趣，离别苦，是中更有痴儿女。君应有语，渺万里层云，千山暮雪，只影向谁去？”作者在此词前曾写有小序说，“太和五年乙丑岁，赴试并州，道逢捕雁者云：‘今旦获一雁，杀之矣。其脱网者悲鸣不能去，竟自投于地而死。’予因买得之，葬于汾水之上，累石为识，号曰雁丘。”雁也如此，但愿人也如此。于是，此中亦有感应心法之无限深意，亦有“心神感应”之无限真情。

国际分析心理学会访问中国^{*}

Murray Stein

1994 年 8 月 11 日，应中国华南师范大学校长颜泽贤教授，和华南师范大学心理系副主任申荷永博士的邀请，我与国际分析心理学会主席 Thomas Kirsch 博士和其夫人 Jen Kirsch 博士，以及我的夫人 Jean Stein 博士，和我的 11 岁的女儿 Sarah，乘火车从香港出发抵达广州，开始访问中国。

去年冬天，申荷永博士在美国学习的时候，曾与我有过联系和交流，并邀请我们到广州他所在的大学，访问他和他的同事。他说，他的同事们对荣格的思想和分析心理学的研究领域，均很感兴趣，并希望如有可能的话，将与国际分析心理学会建立学术上的交流关系。因此，我们得到国际分析心理学会执行委员会对我们中国之行的同意后，我们便以国际分析心理学会正式代表的身份，来到了中国。我们很想知道，在这个已经向世界开放的辽阔的文明古国，我们将会发现什么？我们意识到，如果这次我们与所要会见的中国学者之间的接触进展顺利的话，那么这将成为

^{*} 这篇关于国际分析心理学会访问中国的论文，由 Murray Stein 博士撰写，已经发表在《国际分析心理学会会刊》1995 年第 15 期上。根据 Murray Stein 博士本人的意见，他希望他的这篇论文能够发表在《华南师大学报》上，华南师大心理学研究生刘明琳对原文进行了翻译。

荣格心理学与中国学术界进行交往的一个历史事件。

我们曾经了解到，荣格的有些著作已被翻译成中文，并在大陆出版发行。人们能见到《追求灵魂的现代人》和荣格自传《回忆·梦·思考》的中译本。然而，大量的荣格著作至今尚未被译成中文。因此，我们很想了解在这个拥有 13 亿人口的国度中，人们究竟对荣格知道多少？以及他们对分析心理学的兴趣有多大？

使我们这次中国之行成为可能的另一位重要人物，是加州爱尔汉伯拉的刘耀中先生。刘耀中先生曾用中文写过一些关于荣格的论文和著作，已经在台湾和大陆出版。刘耀中先生向我们提到，中国的知识界和临床心理学界，对荣格有着浓厚的兴趣。我们的访问也证实了刘耀中先生的说法。

事实上，我们的主要联系人申荷永博士，曾经大量地阅读过有关荣格的英文书籍，并在其任教的大学课程中，早已开始广泛地介绍荣格的心理学理论。他在广州火车站迎接了我们，第二天便带领我们从白天鹅宾馆来到了华南师范大学。

颜泽贤校长代表华南师范大学，许尚侠教授代表广东心理学会，对我们进行了热烈的欢迎。他们告诉我们，华南师范大学拥有一个充满活力的心理学系，而这样专门的“心理系”，在中国大陆总共只有五个。他们还说，华南师范大学的学生，对现代心理学和精神分析心理学均感好奇，也很感兴趣。尽管职业性的个体心理治疗在中国尚未正式展开（或已经出现但尚不普遍），但它已经引起了年轻一代学生和青年教师的很大兴趣，他们也表现出想多了解荣格心理学的热情。听到这些，我们心里是极受鼓舞的。

除了颜泽贤校长、许尚侠教授、负责学校科研的王国健教授等，还有大约十几位申荷永博士的同事，一起参与了我们的发言和研讨。人们对现代分析心理学和中国目前关于心理治疗的思考之间的联系和作用，进行了广泛的讨论。

在这个研讨会上，Thomas Kirsch 博士宣读了他所撰写的《荣格和“道”》的论文。在这篇论文里，他追溯了中国道家思想对荣格的影响，并比较了分析心理学理论与中国道家哲学思想之间的相同之处。当他在演讲中提到，荣格曾声明 Richard Wilhelm，这个曾把他引入中国文化和中国思想的人，对他的影响远比弗洛伊德对他的影响更大时，参加座谈的人们（包括我自己），都感到十分惊奇。他还提到，正是由于 Richard Wilhelm，荣格才系统地了解到了中国的文化、中国的炼丹术以及中国的《易经》。所有这些，都在荣格自己关于心灵本质的思考中，有着极为重要的意义。

申荷永博士为 Thomas Kirsch 博士的发言进行了翻译。随后，我对荣格的工作与生活，以及其一生中所经历的重大事件，其思想发展的时间线索等等，作了简要的评述，申荷永博士继续为我进行了口译。在这样的研讨场合，我是想对与会者做一种较为综合性的介绍。随后的讨论是十分热烈和生动的，尽管有时我们不能明白所有讨论的内容，但讨论的气氛很能感染人。虽然申荷永博士非常出色地及时为我们翻译讨论的进展，但由于他同时还是整个讨论的组织者，所以当时与会者所讨论到的内容（其中有些讨论得相当热烈），要比翻译成英文的多的多。

我们和与会的学者们，围绕如何理解荣格心理学中的“self”，以及如何将其译成中文这一主题展开了大量的讨论。我们所想表明的是，荣格在使用“ego”和“self”这两个术语时，其内涵是有着明确不同的。申荷永博士和他的同事们，显然对这一点进行了争论。这时，我们本可用原型论的荣格思想、经典论的荣格思想和发展论的荣格思想等不同，来说明我们对这一概念的理解和解释。但当我们想到，这可能会使我们的新朋友感到更为复杂时，我们采取了较为简便的方式，尽管这将可能成为一个要下一代来弥补的过错。我们说荣格的“self”好比中国的

“道”，人们不能直接把握它。正所谓“道可道，非常道”；既存在于内部，也存在于外部；可以说是无处不在，又可以说无处可在等等。当时，这种将“self”与“道”的类比，比其他任何专业的心理学术语或概念，都更能有助于使荣格的本意越过这种文化的障碍。

返回美国之后，当我再回想起当时的讨论，不由联想到有关早期日本和中国的基督传教士们，是如何费尽心机来把“God”翻译成东方语言和东方的文化背景的报道。“God”，这一单词看起来是如此简单，可是当他们想把这个在西方宗教传统中，被一代代主教所反复定义了的概念，带到一种在神的观念上与其截然不同的文化中时，他们发现这是一项多么艰难的工作。类似于“上帝=道”的简便翻译是行不通的，因为这个术语会被东方观念中的传统理解所同化。而我们在解释荣格的“self”概念时，遇到了类似的困难；我们不得不把这个难题留给以后，再来对此做更有说服力的阐述。

几个星期以后，我写信给申荷永博士，请他重新整理一下他还能记得的一些讨论内容，他在给我的回信中写道：

“在汉语里，只有一个词‘我’来同时表示英语中的‘I’和‘me’……有三个词能用来表示英语的‘self’：1) ‘自我’，我自己，既是一个心理学术语，但同时也是日常用语；2) ‘自己’，表示‘我’，它仅仅是一个日常用语而非心理学术语；3) ‘自身’，表示‘我和我的身体’，它也不是一个心理学的术语。由此可见，相对而言第一个词语（自我）更接近‘self’，可以用它来翻译‘self’。而实际上，我们把西方心理学家理论中的‘self’和‘ego’，一般都译成‘自我’。然而，就我自己的体验而言，我更愿意用第四个词语——‘自性’，来翻译荣格的‘self’。‘自性’是源于佛教的特殊用语，其主要内涵包括：1) 佛法之心（如道之于道家）；2) 第一真理，也即一切事物的根源。而在我

自己有关中国汉字心理研究的理论中，我认为‘自性’比‘自我’、‘自己’或‘自身’，都更能表达荣格‘self’的本意。因为‘性’字是‘心’与‘生（命）’的结合，它意味着与生俱来的最原始的心理本质，和我们生命与生活中的心理意义。”（以上引自申荷永博士写给我的信）

和申荷永博士及其同事们进行了三个多小时的研讨之后，华南师大心理学系在他们学校的“学术交流中心”宴请了我们。这真是一次令人难忘的盛宴，所有的食物皆味道鲜美，我从未在任何其他大学吃过这么好的午餐。后来也表明，它确实是我们在中国所吃的最好的“中餐”之一。

当天下午，申荷永博士带我们参观了广州精神病医院。该医院是于 1898 年由一位名叫 John Kerr 的美国医学传教士建立的。据医院院长 Luh Young 先生说，它是中国最早的精神病治疗机构之一。医院里住有 2000 多名病人，其中 70% 是男性。医院目前的建筑和设备条件都很差，由于这里有监护的职责，所以一些病人的户外活动场地都用高高的栅栏围了起来，病房的门和窗也用木条或铁条加固了。我们与大约十多名精神病医生和心理学家进行了座谈——该医院有 6 名心理学家，他们的工作主要是对病人进行测量诊断（他们在其测量中也使用 MMPI）。我们还参观了一些病房和治疗场所。医院采用了一些较为现代化的治疗精神病的药物，采用 DSM-III-R 和 ECT 对病人进行诊断，此外，还对病人使用音乐疗法和团体治疗。全院约有 900 多名工作人员，其中包括 150 名医生和 350 名护士，其余均为辅助人员，他们绝大部分都居住在医院里。中国一般人的月收入，大概是 500 元人民币（大约是 75 美元）。

该院的年轻精神病医生，对心理治疗和心理分析表现出了强烈的兴趣。他们中间没有人有过心理分析的经历。对于治疗收费的问题是经常被问到的，人们很关心在美国进行一次心理治疗要

收多少钱。当我们告知他们一些收费数目时，他们的反应是十分惊奇的。尤其是当我们补充说，在美国的职业心理医生，一般都会有相应的高收入，以便保证来进行心理服务时，他们就表现得更为惊奇。对于他们来说，还没有西方意义上的医疗保险概念。

该院的医生和工作人员，似乎是在极其艰苦和困难的条件下从事工作的，我们对他们的总体印象是，他们具有很高的士气，没有那种疲惫和松懈的迹象；而在美国相同条件下的医疗机构中，疲惫和松懈则是常见的现象。他们也已经养成了一种耐心和亲切的精神。对于西方人来说，有许多事情是难以理解的，尤其是他们中间的大部分人，很少有机会，或根本就没有机会来选择他们的职业，选择他们的工作地点和居住环境。

我们从广州来到北京，在那里的医院和大学做演讲、研讨和参观，申荷永博士陪同我们并仍然为我们做翻译。总的来说，北京的大学和医院的条件看起来要比广州好一些，但是和西方比起来，就差了许多。

（刘明琳译）

国际分析心理学会与中国

Thomas Kirsch

在所有的亚洲国家中，荣格对中国的心理学、哲学和宗教最感兴趣。1920 年前后，在他的好友、著名汉学家维尔海姆的帮助下，荣格深深迷上了中国的炼金术与道家思想。1929 年，他出版了一本对中国古老的炼金术著述——《金花的秘密》的心理学述评，这是荣格对炼金术的入门之作。炼金术是荣格余生中最感兴趣的主题之一。

中国，就是在 1949 年之前，对深度心理学的接触也是十分有限的，对分析心理学则更是很少接触。直到 1990 年前后，中国才开始对国际信息交流开放。

偶然的一件事引起了当时的国际分析心理学名誉秘书长默瑞·斯丹（Murray Stein）先生对中国进行访问的意向。其时，广州华南师范大学心理学教授申荷永先生作为富布莱特学者正在美国访学，他对分析心理学十分感兴趣。在拜访默瑞·斯丹博士的时候，他建议国际分析心理学会的代表们去中国进行一次关于荣格心理学的学术交流。组织这样一场活动是有一定难度的，但是在一位居住在洛杉矶的名叫 Yehua Zhu - Levine 的中国女士的帮助

下，我们有幸参观了中国的几所主要的医院、广州华南师范大学和北京大学。1994 年 4 月，当时的主席托马斯·科茨（Thomas Kirsch）和默瑞·斯丹（Murray Stein）参观访问了北京与广州，并且作了关于分析心理学的一些基本情况的报告，同时也讲述了分析心理学与道家思想的联系。这些报告受到了广泛好评。更为重要的是，那些医院的医务人员、心理学家和相关学者们明显地表现出了对荣格心理学的浓厚兴趣。

申荷永教授再次作为富布莱特学者回到了美国，这时他获得了在美国接受更系统的荣格心理分析训练的机会。旧金山荣格心理分析学院的“国际荣格学者计划”吸引着他，他们之间的协作仍在进行之中。

当申荷永教授完成他的富布莱特学者计划回到中国后，他开始着手组织一次国际分析心理学会的分析心理学联合会议。名为“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的会议于 1998 年 12 月在广州华南师范大学召开。代表国际分析心理学会出席这次会议的荣格心理分析学家有：John Beebe, David Rosen, Stan Marlan 和 Ruth Leadergerber 等。同时，20 位中国学者共同参加了这次为期 5 天的富有建树的分析心理学国际会议。在这次会议上，对道家思想与分析心理学之间的许多联系进行了深入的探索。我们希望这次会议仅是我们将要召开的众多同类会议中的良好的开端。

默瑞·斯丹和托马斯·科茨代表国际分析心理学会对中国首次访问的另一项成果，就是数本荣格著作的翻译出版。李以洪，一位中国学者，同时也是 Yehua Zhu - Levine 的朋友，对荣格与纽曼（E. Neumann）的作品有着深厚的兴趣。在国际分析心理学会和冯·沃夫伦（van Waveren）基金会的资助下，他们翻译了一套名为“曼荼罗系列”的丛书。因为取得荣格著作的翻译权需要支付高昂的费用，我们也选择了其他荣格学者的著作。当李以洪不幸于 1998 年死于癌症的时候，她仍有许多其他的荣格作品的翻

译计划。其他的出版计划正在酝酿之中，但尚未确定。

分析心理学与中国的联系是重要的，尽管目前国际分析心理学会中还没有来自中国的心理分析家。荣格深受古老中国智慧的启发，分析心理学与道家哲学之间存在着历久弥新的深切联系！

（范国 平译）

分析心理学与中国文化

——记第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会

高 岚 李 群

第一届“分析心理学与中国文化”国际研讨会，于 1998 年 12 月 16 日至 20 日，在华南师范大学召开，并且获得了圆满成功。此次会议由国际分析心理学会（IAAP）与华南师范大学联合主办，由国际分析心理学执行主席 Murray Stein 与华南师范大学心理系申荷永共同策划与组织。

国际分析心理学会的代表 John Beebe、David Rosen、Stan Marlan，以及加州东—西方整合学院院长 Leland van den Daele 等 20 几位国外及港台学者，张粹然、万玮、曹础基、刘伟林、傅剑平、龚隼、唐似葵、喻阳、刘鸣、申荷永等 30 余位国内学者，以及华南师范大学校长颜泽贤、副校长黄锦能、王国健，广东省心理学会名誉理事长许尚侠等，均参加了这次会议。大会主席由华南师范大学心理学系申荷永担任。

国际分析心理学会主席 Luigi Zoja，国际分析心理学的学术委员会主席 Murray Stein，国际分析心理学会前任主席 Thomas Kirsch，瑞士爱诺思基金会主席 Christa Robinson，美国超个人心理学研究院院长 Robert Schmitt，夏威夷东方智慧研究院院长 Gordon Becker 以及《周易研究》主编刘大钧，《学术研究》主编刘斯翰，《中国文化》与《世界汉学》副主编任大援等，海外学者吴

怡、刘耀中、James Hillman、Michel Bone、Bert Raven 等均向大会发来了贺词。

国际分析心理学会主席 Luigi Zoja 在其对大会的致辞中说，“荣格分析心理学，早已与中国和中国文化，结下了深厚的渊源。我相信，若是荣格教授本人得知你们正在举行的这样一次会议，也一定会感到由衷的欣慰。”即将作为国际分析心理学会下届主席的 Murray Stein，也在其致辞中说，“我希望，这只是一种卓有成效的系列性研讨会的开端。当然，西方心理学已经从中国文化思想中受益匪浅，但是我仍然希望，你们目前正在开幕的这次会议中所从事的对话性研讨，能够在将来达到东—西方之间更为深入的相互理解与相互影响。”

瑞士爱诺思基金会主席 Christa Robinson，在其对大会的致辞中说，“这次会议也是一种特殊的机遇，为我们开启一种具有无限意义的相互交流的体验。以此为基础，真正的会议将会超越可能分隔我们的种种障碍，而在人们的交流与理解之中产生。因而，我们相信，第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会，将能够为此目标做出重要的贡献。”美国加州东—西方整合学院院长 Leland van den Daele 说，“尽管荣格本人非常欣赏与推崇中国文化的心理学意义，但是这种丰富而深刻的意义还远远未被充分地吸收到分析心理学的体系中去。荣格的态度是对我们后代心理学家的一种启示，荣格的欣赏是鼓励我们进行更为深入的探索。第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会，必将成为东—西方心理学沟通与交流的一个里程碑。”

大会的会标以汉字“思”的象形为设计原型，所要表达的正是中国文化心理学的整合性意义，以及东—西方心理学沟通与交流的象征。同时，在“思”的象征中，既包含了头与心的沟通与整合，也包含了意识与潜意识的沟通与整合。这正如颜泽贤校长以及王国健副校长所阐述的，“东西方文化，包括东西方文化中

的心理学意义，既有明显的不同，又有潜在的一致性。作为其不同，可以成为我们相互学习的理由，我们可以通过学习与交流来相互补充；作为其潜在的一致性，可以作为我们共同努力与探索的目标。”实际上，这也正如分析心理学工作的目标与目的，追求一种对人类心理的整合性的理解，并且致力于促进这种整合性的发展。

国际分析心理学会与华南师范大学早已有着友好与成功的交流与学术关系。1994 年，通过心理系的申荷永教授，颜泽贤校长曾经邀请国际分析心理学会当时的主席 Thomas Kirsch 和名誉秘书长 Murray Stein，以及美国旧金山分析心理学研究院院长 Jean Kirsch 等访问中国，并且在华南师范大学举行了学术研讨会，Thomas Kirsch 当时的报告题目是“荣格与道”，Murray Stein 则系统地介绍了荣格心理学的思想与体系，颜泽贤校长、王国健副校长，以及当时的广东省心理学会理事长许尚侠教授等均参加了研讨。

实际上，召开“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的最初思路，便是由即将担任国际分析心理学会下任主席的 Murray Stein 提出的。他在 1997 年 4 月曾经邀请美国德州大学的 David Rosen 和申荷永到“芝加哥分析心理学研究院”共同主持关于“荣格与中国文化”的对话式研讨会。为期一周的“对话”式研讨引起了强烈的反响，分析心理学与中国文化，或者说东—西方心理学是国际学术界深受关注的领域。同年的 6 月，瑞士爱诺思基金会也专门邀请申荷永前往瑞士的艾斯考纳，为那里的“东—西方文化圆桌研讨会”主讲“中国文化心理学的传统”。与会者大都是分析心理学家，中国文化的心理学意义，以及分析心理学与中国文化也正是大家所共同关心与关注的问题。这也正如美国加州东—西方整合学院院长 Leland van den Daele 在其大会致辞中所提出的：“这样的会议不但能够启迪西方学者深入地学习东

方文化，而且也能够向中国学者传达一种声音，使其珍视对于中国文化中和谐与微妙的象征性与心理学的理解。”

这次国际研讨会以“分析心理学与中国文化”为主题，以促进东西方文化，以及东西方文化心理学的交流、理解与整合为目的。8位国外学者和6位国内学者分别进行了大会发言，并且和与会者一起进行了对话式的研讨。

安排在17日上午的大会发言，有IAAP的代表John Beebe，他的报告题目是“荣格与中国”(Jung and China)；华南师范大学心理系的申荷永，他的报告题目是“心理学与心理整合性”(Psychology of Heart & the Wholeness of Psyche)，以及香港大学心理系的Geoff Blowers，他的报告题目是“荣格心理学在中国的展望”(The Prospects for a Jungian Psychology in China)。

John Beebe本人在40年前在中国南京生活过几年，他在美国旧金山的分析心理学研究院讲授“中国哲学”，对于易经以及宋明理学有着深入的研究。他在报告中，不但追溯了荣格与中国的关系，荣格从中国文化中所受的影响，同时也揭示了中国文化对于分析心理学学者，以及对分析心理学未来发展的潜在意义。申荷永以“心理学”(“Psychology of Heart”)来表达中国文化心理学的思想与体系，并且揭示了中国文化心理学中所包含的心理整合性意义，以及这种心理整合性对于分析心理学的启迪。他本人曾经以富布莱特学者的身份在美国讲授“中国文化心理学”，并且在美国的旧金山荣格研究院进行分析心理学的学习与训练。Geoff Blowers总结了分析心理学在中国的传入及发展，有关的翻译与研究，比较了分析心理学与经典精神分析的发展，并且对分析心理学在中国的未来发展做出了展望。

17日下午的大会报告由华南师范大学的曹础基开始，他的报告题目是“中国文化中道的传统”。曹础基教授以朴素、生动而深刻的话语，表现了“道法自然”的真谛。接着是美国德州大

学的 David Rosen ,他的报告题目是‘荣格与道’。《荣格与道》也正是 David Rosen 的代表著作,他透过丰富而生动的图片资料,以“道”的思想为线索,展示了荣格一生寻道的心路历程,同时也表达他自己对于心理分析和道家思想的追求与理解。David Rosen 说“我长期以来深受道家思想的吸引,当我第一次读《老子》的时候,我觉得他是在对我说话。”而对第一次来中国访问与参加“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”,David Rosen 充满了激动与激情,认为是实现了他童年的梦想和由来已久的心愿。随后,华南师范大学的龚隼,为大会作了“中国禅宗的基本精神”的报告,IAAP 的代表 Stan Marlan 进行了“道的实践与荣格心理分析”的主题发言。

18 日上午,由华南师范大学的傅剑平,为大会做了“《易经》、儒、道与心理学”的报告,其中提出了许多与会者共同感兴趣的问题,引起了热烈的讨论。美国分析心理学家 Serge Polakoff 为大会做了关于“荣格心理类型与易经”的报告,美国华裔学者 May Lee 为大会做了“《易经》、儒学传统与心理分析”的报告,德国分析心理学家 S. Wiedeman 为大会做了“心理分析与道的启示”的报告。18 日的下午,与会学者参观访问了广州光孝寺,并且与广东省佛教协会秘书长明生法师,大佛寺主持耀智法师等进行了精彩的座谈与研讨。会议的后两天,在肇庆七星岩的松涛宾馆举行,期间赴新兴县参观了六祖惠能出生地及国恩寺,并且与国恩寺如禅法师等进行了关于禅宗方面的探讨与交流。禅师杨佛兴做了“禅的精要与禅的修持”的报告;在瑞士荣格研究院学习的万玮,做了关于“当代分析心理学的国际发展”的报告。

大会的总结发言由 IAAP 的代表 John Beebe 组织,他高度评价了这次会议所取得的成功。正如爱诺思基金会主席 Christa Robinson 在其致辞中所表达的,真正的会议将超越会议的形式,

而成为一种永恒的象征性意义。“分析心理学与中国文化”，或者说“东西方心理学”的沟通与交流，必将为一种整合性的心理学做出积极的贡献。

1998 年 12 月

Jung in China

荣格在中国

Stan Marlan

When Drs. Murray Stein and Heyong Shen invited me to participate in this historic conference, I felt considerable excitement about traveling to China and presenting my work on Taoist alchemy. It had been a long-time dream of mine to visit China and the many places there that have become important to my inner life. In spite of its recent materialist history, China had been a place that over the centuries had produced and fostered some of world's great spiritual traditions.

In my early training in Oriental philosophy and religion, Taoism and Ch'an Buddhism played an important role in my self-understanding and in my development as a Jungian analyst. The confluence of Jungian psychology and Chinese culture began for me in the sixties in experimenting with what then felt like radical ideas – ideas supported by reading Jung and his commentaries on Oriental sacred texts, particularly The Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese alchemical work that he felt confirmed and paralleled his own studies in depth psychology. As a young student I also had the pleasure of studying with Chang Chung-Yuan, a Chinese scholar who translated the Tao Te Ching and authored a book entitled Creativity and Taoism. Dr. Chang's passion for Taoism was complemented by an interest and respect for C. G. Jung. Dr. Chang would often invite students to his home where he would share his love of Chinese art and poetry and his knowledge of esoteric practices of Chinese yoga and alchemy. When I had finished my studies with him, he gave me a copy of a letter Jung had sent him in 1950. This letter, now published in Jung's letters, was a response to Dr. Chang, who had sent Jung an early draft of his book on Taoism. In it Jung communicated his great appreciation for Taoist thought, considering it to be "one of the most perfect formulations of a universal truth he had ever encountered." On the other hand, he was concerned that it also posed a danger for westerners, who he felt were likely to become mere imitators who would further split themselves off from their depths. For this reason he emphasized approaching universal truths in the context of one's own culture. This was a task Jung felt he was already doing in his own work. .

While it has been my experience that Jung's warnings should not be taken lightly, I don't believe his position should be held dogmatically. In the best sense of his critique, Jung exposes the shadow side of immature spiritual practice and, as Hillman has elaborated, the dangers of splitting spirit from soul. However, as with all psychic engagements, the matter is a highly contextual one that needs to be evaluated on an individual basis. In general, the relationship between analysis and spiritual disciplines remains an open question, one that requires further exploration and dialogue. My paper for the conference, "The Metaphor of Light and Renewal in Taoist Alchemy and Jungian Analysis," was an attempt to explore this question and, further, to compare images from a Taoist text with parallel images from dream work in an analytical context. The images of the circulation of light and the emergence of the spiritual embryo served to compare the work of analysis with that of a spiritual discipline.

The conference provided a wonderful opportunity to engage such questions, and many others, by bringing together Jungian analysts and Chinese scholars and practitioners for an intimate interchange of ideas and viewpoints. It was held at South China Normal University in Guangzhou, China and was hosted by Dr. Heyong Shen, a professor of psychology at the university.

The idea for the conference began a few years ago when Dr. Stein received a letter from Dr. Shen, who had read his book, Jung's Treatment of Christianity. This led to an invitation to come to China. He and Dr. Thomas Kirsch, then president of the IAAP, traveled to China to spend a week lecturing and introducing Jung's ideas. In return, Dr. Shen was invited to attend an IAAP congress in Zurich, and he spent some time at Eranos. In 1997 Dr. Shen and Dr. Rosen joined others for a small symposium on Jungian thought and Chinese philosophy at the C. G. Jung Institute of Chicago. Dr. Shen subsequently began training in San Francisco but had to return to China prematurely. At this point Dr. Stein suggested that Dr. Shen put together a conference at his university in Guangzhou. Jungian analysts and other specialists from around the world would be invited along with local and regional scholars in China to make up the program.

I planned my trip as kind of pilgrimage. It was a chance to meet with colleagues and an opportunity to step into a world of mythos that had long been an important fantasy and inspiration to me. Many years ago I read an impressive paper given by Erwin Rousselle at Eranos on Spiritual Guidance in Contemporary Taoism, and I remembered particularly a section dealing with internal alchemy and Chinese medicine, in which he wrote: "In the dark firmament of our inner world the constellations of the microcosm and the genii or gods of our organs appear...." He was describing a system of inner, non-literal physiology, part of the magico – animistic system of old Chinese cosmology, in which man is seen as a little cosmos. Here the process of transformation, circulation and renewal are symbolically described in great detail as a guide to the initiate's search for eternal rejuvenation and the creation of the immortal Self. In this "inner world" one comes across the cave of the spirit field, the ploughing of the earth and a place where "the spring takes its ambrosian liquid from the moon. . . . In the kidney region we find the weaving maiden who sets in motion a pulse in the form of a thread that can be seen running upward from the spinning wheel to the spinal cord." The text is filled with provocative images of transformational archetypes which have remained with me over the years. Rousselle discovered these images on a rubbing from a stone tablet found in the Monastery of the White Clouds near Beijing (Peking). With these images in mind and my current work on Taoist alchemy in hand, I set out to find this monastery, the Taoist monks, and the Chinese doctors who might help to further elaborate this process.

In Beijing I had a fruitful exchange with Dr. Li Chun-Yin, professor and doctor in charge of the Institute of Traditional Chinese Medicine. Dr. Li elaborated on the complex inter-relationships between emotions and "organs" which are reported to have physical, mental and spiritual functions. She spoke about the process of healing and the use of dreams in her practice and offered examples.

Later I went to the Temple of the White Clouds where I found a copy of the stone rubbing Rousselle had earlier described. It was a moving experience to arrive here where the work of internal alchemy had been practiced over the centuries. The famous poet Cha Shan Xing described the temple in the following poem:

The Winter gravel path looks warm,

At dusk the old temple is shady and cool.
Falling leaves are crushed under my feet,
The last sun rays linger in half the court.
Grave the closed alchemical stove stands.
Serene the stone ordination alter remains.
So familiar seem the meritorious pillars.
A fairy land indeed this is.

These images capture well the mysterious and legendary temple of the White Clouds. There, I also acquired a copy of a book on internal alchemy, which to my knowledge has not yet been translated. In it are some of the images that appear in the Jung/Wilhelm version of The Secret of the Golden Flower along with many other illustrations.

The discovery of this book and the scroll with the rubbings led me to seek out a number of meetings with Taoist monks. The most important of these was with Huang Zhijie, a Taoist Master of the Zhongyee Temple and Ren Farong Miaochoiuzi, the Director of Taoism in China and of the Chinese College of Taoism. Ren Farong, from Louguam Temple in Shaanxi China, has written a book on the I Ching and internal alchemy in which he summarized a lifetime of practice. According to legend, Yin Xin, magistrate of Hangu Pass, one day observed a violent current of air drifting westward and accordingly predicted that an immortal Taoist would pass by. Quite to his expectations, Lao-Tsu arrived on his journey going west. He welcomed him onto the tower and requested he write a book of Taoist doctrine. Lao-Tsu then completed the 5,000 character Tao Te Ching and a platform was built for teaching this classic, known today as the preaching platform. The temple is in ill repair but many artifacts still exist, including an alchemical oven and the stone on which Lao - Tsu supposedly ground his medicines.

Another highlight of my trip was to the Yue Fei Temple, reportedly the birth place of the I Ching. At the front of the temple is a platform with a statue commemorating Xi Bochang, who worked to develop the 384 combinations of the eight trigrams. Oracle lines surround him in a circle, as if he were standing in the center of the full range of human possibilities.

A figure that has strangely held me in its grip comes from TV show, Kung Fu, in which David Carradine plays the Shaolin priest, Kwai Chang Caine. I have found myself religiously watching this show and identifying with Caine, who was trained as a monk in the Shaolin Temple, known for its excellence in martial arts. While the show always features the heroics of the art of Kung Fu, it also expresses the wisdom teachings of the Buddhist tradition in contrast to our everyday American secular values. In difficult and stressful situations, Caine often flashes back to the early days in the temple where important and fortifying lessons were learned. Actual Kung Fu came into being in the 6th century AD when Bodhidharma, a wandering Indian monk, traveled through North China and came to visit a Taoist temple in the Shang Shon Mountains. Bodhidharma taught the monks a discipline of active meditation and holy dance, a discipline that eventually evolved into Kung Fu, which literally means "to know what to do."

Identifying with Caine, I found my way to both the Shaolin Temple and Bodhidharma's cave. The climb to the top was exhausting and felt treacherous, but I was determined to be in this spot. The mountain view was beautiful and along the path were people walking their pigs and little huts where mountain dwellers watch so that no fires break out in the dry season. The cave is looked after by Buddhist nuns whose monastery is further down the mountain. There is a carved stone at the top, and we asked the nun to translate it for us, but she replied: "This is a holy place and you must do that by yourself." On the way down the mountain, several old Chinese men and women bowed to me. My guide told me they were paying respect to me as a foreigner who was willing to make the climb and as an honor to Bodhidharma.

An interesting event took place at a demonstration of the Shaolin priests in which guests were asked to try to pull a metal bowl from the highly – developed abdomen of a monk. Several people had tried unsuccessfully. Then I decided to engage the challenge. Identifying with Caine again, I was not going to use simple physical strength but began by meditating on my ch'i (inner life force) and concentrating it in my hands. At just the right moment, my hands moved quickly and the metal rim of the bowl broke away, leaving part of it still fastened to the monk's belly; the other part came off. The monk seemed amused, as was I, but my thumb – and my inflation – had been punctured by the broken metal.

Later that week I traveled along the great southward bend of the Yellow River that cradled China's first stirrings of civilization. I arrived at Xi'an – with finger still bandaged – where I visited the Famen Temple, also called Dharmagate. This temple was the center of great excitement in the Buddhist world when a finger bone of Buddha was discovered beneath a fallen pagoda. It was found only in 1987 in a stone crypt. Four "finger bone" relics were unearthed. They had been underground for more than 1113 years, from when the crypt was closed in 874 AD. Finger bone relics refer to remaining bones of Sakyamuni which look like fingers. The bone is considered to be the only existing genuine bone relic of the Buddha and therefore the most highly worshipped sacred object for Buddhists. While the actual bone fragment was not available for viewing, replicas of it and photographs were in its place. I observed them with a mixture of doubt and awe; and with my pulsating finger, I felt a continuity even with such a mythic and exalted figure as the Buddha. We all share a basic humanness in pain, materiality and the transformation we call death. On this note my journey now led further south to the conference in Guangzhou.

Guangzhou was a return to the familiar, a modern Westernized city easier to travel in and to negotiate needs. Travel to the more remote places had been difficult and without the amenities I was used to. In some areas, when talking to a street vendor or fortune teller, I found people gathering around me and staring. I was told that they had seen few or no Americans or Europeans. Entering Guangzhou changed all that, and the University was a wonderful place, a self-contained community with friendly and accommodating colleagues who made me feel quite at home.

The conference opened with the remarks of Dr. Shen and Dr. Wang Guojian, the president of the University, who welcomed us with hope of improving relations between East and West and his wish that the work of the conference could mediate our differences and lead to a sense of wholeness. He spoke of the mutual importance of Jung's work for understanding Chinese culture and that of Chinese philosophy as a source of enrichment for Jungian thinking. He voiced the desire that this conference could be followed by another and that eventually a center for East/West exchange could be established. Dr. Shen, echoing these remarks, had chosen the image of a hat as a symbol for the conference. His idea was that we begin with the mind but that our work is to bring together head and heart. He playfully imagined that by the next conference the hat would begin to tip open and that a channel would have been created between these two centers. Dr. Shen's warm and outgoing personality already seemed to open such a possibility.

As the official representative of the IAAP, Dr. John Beebe read warm greetings from president Luigi Zoja, President-elect Murray Stein and the President of Eranos, Christa Robinson. Greetings were also extended by Dr. Leland Van den Daele, Dean of the School of Professional Psychology of the California Institute of Integral studies whose mission is also one of bridging Eastern and Western philosophies and psychologies. He noted that Dr. Jung's work on the East was a promissory note for future scholars and that the conference was a milestone in this exploration, a forum where our limited theories could be challenged and engaged and a dialogue could ensue, leading to a well-nuanced development of thought.

Formal presentations began with Dr. John Beebe's thoughtful reflection on the founding myths of Guangzhou, the "goat city," and on our current task of mutual understanding. Echoing Jung's ideas and Dr. Shen's sentiments, he noted that our task was not simply an intellectual one but rather one in which ideas penetrate into the depths of our lives and work. He referred to his own teachers and analysts and the manner in which they exemplified this ideal. The humble and human qualities of Drs. Elizabeth Osterman and Joseph Henderson, in their willingness to be vulnerable, exemplified the quality that the Chinese call Te, perhaps best translated as "integrity." A person of integrity is able to value truth over appearance and authority. He felt his teachers learned this partly from Jung and Jung partly from Lao-Tsu. He asked, then, what kind of therapy takes place when one has teachers like this; and through story and example Dr. Beebe exemplified how this attitude opens the soul to aspects of the Self beyond the ego. He noted that if we develop a relationship with this Other, we then can develop integrity of the personality. This requires not only contact with the unconscious but greeting it with the unconscious but greeting it with a civilized attitude.

The task of Jung's work taking root in China was discussed by Dr. Joseph Blowers, Professor of the history of psychology at Hong Kong University. He delineated the many difficulties in translating Jung's ideas into Chinese, pointing to the problems of rendering such concepts as the unconscious in an adequate way. He noted that there were no translations of Jung's work before 1980 and, with the proletariat revolution, there was a complete shutdown of intellectual activity. It has only been since 1978 that psychology emerged from political constraints. In 1990 in The Chinese Encyclopedia of Psychology there is recognition of Jung and an attempt to translate his basic concepts. In addition, the problem of translation is difficult because of the cultural context in which the ideas are understood. In China, he noted, there is not a tradition of expressiveness, and the doctor is usually seen and acts in an authoritarian way. There are also some attempts being made to rethink important Western myths in contexts relevant to the Chinese culture. Other problems include the fact that Chinese universities for the most part tend to follow the West's technological, scientific and medical ideals, but at the same time there are few appropriate clinical settings. Dr. Blowers' concerns were balanced by a cautious optimism, given the current work going on at South China Normal University and the support being given there by the IAAP.

Elaborating on his work The Tao of Jung, Dr. David Rosen recounted his initial sense of the relation between Jung and Taoism and his early discussions with Drs. Meier and von Franz, who both agreed that Jung was Taoist in the way he lived and in his psychology. This parallel was richly elaborated by juxtaposing moments of Jung's life with similarities in Taoist thought. He noted Jung's idea that the sole purpose of human existence was "to kindle a light in the darkness of non-being," and in this light we can no longer keep East and West apart.

The tradition of the Tao was further elaborated by Professor Cuji Cao from South China Normal University who stated that the Tao is not an easy notion to define (like the unconscious), and is perhaps the most abstruse notion in Chinese culture as well as the most sacred. He recalled the saying that “if a man in the morning heard Tao, he may die in the evening without regret.”

The notion of Tao was amplified in Professor Juan Gong’s talk on the Spirit of Chinese Ch’an. He spoke of the differences between the northern and southern schools and on the traditions of gradual vs. sudden enlightenment. He noted that Hui Neng, the 6th patriarch, held that the practice of cultivation is only preparation, but enlightenment comes suddenly, like leaping over a precipice. If this leap is not made, one can always remain preparing for enlightenment. The attempt to understand this sudden moment leads to some of Ch’an’s most enigmatic teachings. For instance, when it is asked how to cultivate enlightenment, we are told not to cultivate it. Cultivation can lead to good effect, but it won’t lead to the goal. Direct seeing is not cultivation. Professor Gong suggested that one of the problems in the dialogue between East and West is the problem for all great religions, that is, the different perceptions of the same Reality. He noted that, since the work of D.T. Suzuki, Western scholars have tried to do a comparison between East and West, but more dialogue is needed.

Dr. Fu Jian Ping – a respected specialist in classical Chinese culture, the I Ching, and Confucian and Taoist psychology – felt that any deep understanding of East and West would require a paradigm shift. Western thought has been in the process of making some important changes, but as a whole remains dualistic, and this presents a problem for mutual understanding. For the ancient Chinese, world and man, nature and man, other and self, were not divided; the Tao of nature was used to talk about the Tao of living and vice versa. Nature, heaven and earth share a common life, and the ultimate union of nature and man are basic to the Chinese tradition. w The Chinese don't say: "I perceive a thing," but rather: "I contribute to a thing by living together with it in the common world." Chinese tradition is centered on these inner relations. The way these relations show themselves can often be quite astonishing. Dr. Fu quoted these poetic words: "a warring peace, a sweet evil," to demonstrate a complexity that both connects and separates. Such odd connections are plentiful in the I Ching, which Dr. Fu suggests can help us gain new insights into Jungian psychology, since it uses metaphor, correlational thinking, and intuition, so different from conceptual logic. The I Ching advises us to open the mind, to explore the deep and dark as manifestations of the collective unconscious. In the I Ching one image opens another and suggests many levels of meaning. Through such contemplation we can renew our lives. The process is mysterious and not straightforward. Dr. Fu compared this to Jung's use of fairy tales. He also noted that – while the basic images of the I Ching have remained the same for over 2000 years – interpretations vary, and there are Confucian and Taoist versions. While the Confucians focus on ethics, the Taoists emphasize ontology.

The intimate connection of the I Ching with the particularities of everyday life was also amplified by Serge Polakoff's talk on the I Ching and its connection with both the Singer-Loomis type test, and Feng Shui. Polakoff has worked out elaborate parallels in these areas and a way of utilizing these materials to advise individuals, the goal of which is to live in harmony with one's environment. Feng Shui acts like therapy, in which we change the outside to change the inside. By integrating Western psychology with traditional Feng Shui, mutual contributions are made to East and West.

Dr. May Lee's reflections added further weight to the interconnection between the I Ching and Jung's psychology. In addition she suggested that Jung's idea of individuation is paralleled by the Confucian emphasis on getting people to be more of what they are. Dr. Lee framed this in terms of helping the ego to work in accord with the archetype of the Self. The idea she states is rooted in the I Ching and in the hexagram on which the Confucian world is based. When the ego works in the employ of the Self, there is harmony in family and the larger world. These issues are also present in the Confucian book The Great Learning.

The final talks of the conference were by Dr. Wei Wan, who spoke about contemporary Jungian analysis in Zurich, and by the venerated teacher and Master Yang Fo Xing. Master Yang spoke of the essence of Ch'an practice and led our group with dignity and serenity in an instructional meditation.

With its host of interesting speakers, the conference was highly stimulating. However, I often felt there was some difficulty in translation, and this made subtle exchange difficult. Also there was not enough time for dialogue except in informal settings. Nevertheless, it was a success in forwarding exchange, planting further Jungian seeds and gathering ideas that could be generative.

In closing, Dr. Beebe humorously reflected that we have been told that Jung was a Taoist – and Confucius, a Jungian. However, in spite of the easy connection, he warned that trying to establish a place for Jungian studies is a difficult task, and we must be prepared for hard work and setbacks. As if from the collective wisdom of our Jungian tradition, he also warned of the shadow danger of seeking for power and trying to push the process too quickly. He noted how open our Chinese colleagues had been in exposing both their newness to Jungian thought and their desire to know more.

It was not hard for many of us who have been around the Jungian world for a long time to see the potential shadow problems that could emerge. Yet, I think I speak for many of us at the conference in noting it was also apparent how easily Jungian ideas could be nourished and developed in the fertile soil we had all experienced.

特殊的感受——关于会议的书信

劳伦斯的来信（香港）

December 19, 1998

Dear Heyong,

Thank you so much for the hospitality. Please convey my heart felt gratitude to your wife and your student staff. They are so polite and helpful. I will miss them all. The conference was a great success. My heart is still pondering over the discussion and other friends in Hong Kong would love to come next time.

May I congratulate you and wish you all the best as you embark on your future training in San Francisco. You are a good man and very talented. It is great knowing you. Hope to keep in touch and do let me know if I can be of any help next time. May be you would like to come to Hong Kong and we can host your stay in giving us a lecture or two. Bring you family too. Let's talk and let me know of your schedule and your topic of interest.

your friend,

Lawrence Chen

译文：

荷永：

十分感谢你的盛情。请向你的太太和你的学生转达我由衷的谢忱。他们是如此的彬彬有礼和热情相助，我会想念他们的。这次会议非常成功，我的心依然为会议和会议的讨论而跳动，其他香港的朋友都非常愿意参加下次的会议。

祝贺并且祝福你即将在美国旧金山开始的心理分析训练。你是一个好人，有着天赋的能力。希望保持联系，若是我能够对于下次会议提供任何帮助，尽请告知。或许你愿意来访问香港，给我们做一次或两次报告，我可以好好地接待你。带着你太太与孩子一起来。对于你的日程安排与讲演题目，我们可以做进一步的商谈。

你的朋友

劳伦斯

1998 年 12 月 19 日

舍执的来信（美国迈阿密）

December 22, 1998

Dear Heyong,

I want to express my gratitude for your warm hospitality and efficient organization during my visit in Guangzhou. From the moment I arrived until my return to the airport everything has been a true delight.

You have been a remarkable host, always kind and available. The program you planned kept us busy all the time with quality presentations, tourist discoveries and entertaining moments. Nourishment was abundant both scholarly and on the table.

I realize the extraordinary amount of work, time and energy you invested in this Conference and want to commend you for its perfect outcome. I want to extend my thanks and commend to your wife Golan whose tireless presence made the logistic run so smoothly. Your entire team of assistants also deserve a special appreciation for their kind and efficient work.

Thanks to your entire team the Conference was a real success. A new bridge has been ritualized between our two cultures allowing more knowledge to flow between us. New friendships were built. So much happened in a short time. As the say goes: "Time is limited, but friendship is eternal."

As we approach the new millennium, I feel that the Conference was a seed in the direction of a greater unity of our planet. As I was leaving Guangzhou, I decided to be part of the integration movement with whatever action within my reach.

I wish to reciprocate your and Golan's warm hospitality and kindness in the United States or see you again at the 2nd conference.

Thank you again.

Very friendly,

Serge

译文：

荷永：

我想表达对你热情款待以及尽心组织会议的感激，那是我的广州之行所难忘的经历。从我到达机场开始，以及到我再返回机场，所有的一切都是如此使我心满意足。

你是一位非凡的主持人，总是如此的善解人意，随时提供方便。你的计划与安排，使得我们忙于高水平的报告与讨论，旅游

的发现以及热情的交谈。丰富的营养处处体现，既体现在餐桌上，也体现在学术交流中。

我知道你为此次国际会议所付出的特殊的工作、时间与精力，因此我也要让你知道，这是一次非常圆满的会议。我也想向你的太太高岚表示感谢，她不知疲倦的工作使得整个会务服务如此的顺利协调。你的所有的助手及整个会务组都在认真有效地工作，都值得特别的称赞。

由于你们的工作，这次会议获得了真正的成功。我们两种文化之间的一座新的桥梁已经建立，使得我们之间的更多的学术交流能够顺利畅通。新的友谊已经建立。如此短暂的时间竟然有如此丰富的收获。正如古语所说：“时光有限，友谊长存。”

当我们接近新的千禧之年的时候，我感到这次会议像是一颗种子，播在了我们世界伟大整合的土壤上。当我离开广州的时候，我决定，不管我到了哪里，我都要成为这种整合运动的一部分。

我希望我能够在美国对于你和高岚的盛情与友谊有所回报，或者是在第二届会议的时候再见！

再次感谢！

你们的朋友

舍执

1998 年 12 月 22 日

斯坦的来信（美国费城）

December 23, 1998

Dear Heyong,

Just to let you know that I have arrived home, and to tell you how much I appreciated your warm hospitality! I enjoyed the conference tremendously, and thought it was a great success. I am very impressed by you and your university, and look forward to a continuing collaboration. I have some good pictures that I will send to you. Please give everyone my best regards.

I was also able to get a copy of The Secret of the Golden Flower, and the Alchemical Encyclopedia in the bookstore on the way back. Your student was very helpful.

With thanks and fondest regard,

Stan

P.S. Hi Heyong: My favorite picture of all the one's Stan brought back was the wonderful one you took of him and your wife, at Seven Star Crags! It is absolutely beautiful! We will send you a copy, along with the others. Thanks for taking good care of Stan, and giving him this marvelous opportunity. I hope to meet you and your wife someday. Perhaps you both can come to the USA!

Warm wishes,

Jan

译文：

荷永：

只是让你知道我已经平安到家，也是告诉你我是何等感激你的热情款待。我非常喜欢这次会议，我认为我们取得了圆满成功。你以及你的大学都给我留下了深刻的印象，也期待着今后持续的合作。我这里有一些会议的照片，随后邮寄给你；请向大家转达我的问候。

在回来路过的书店，我买到了《金花的秘密》和一本《炼金术百科全书》，你的学生给了我很大的帮助。

谨此致谢，带去深情的祝福。

斯坦

喂，荷永：在斯坦带回来的照片中，我最喜欢的是你给斯坦与你太太在七星岩照的那一张。那是绝对的美丽。我们会给你邮寄这些照片过来。谢谢你们对斯坦的照顾，以及给予他如此美好的机会。我希望有一天能见到你与你太太。或许你们可以一起来美国。

深情的问候。

珍

1998 年 12 月 23 日

圣提那的来信（意大利）

December 31, 1998

Dear Heyong,

I was very happy to receive your message. I am only sorry I cannot get my answer back to you soon enough to reach you by New Years's eve, because in the country house where I am at the moment the telephone line is not good enough to support the connection to Internet. But even though it will get to you late, I'd like to wish you a VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR!

I am very happy that the First International Conference of Jungian Psychology and Chinese Culture was such a big success. I am not surprised, since the heart vision of psychology that you so beautifully shared with us at Erano is such a refreshing and enlightening approach. Thank you for the invitation to come to the Second Conference, if you will set it up. I would be very attracted to come, and I am sure that it would be a very rewarding experience. Please inform me about dates and conditions of participation whenever the time is ripe, and I will see if it is possible for me to come.

Do you feel that it might be interesting for the people there to hear about the work we do with the I Ching in Eranos? If so, I could bring a presentation about that.

Meanwhile very WARM GREETINGS to you from the heart, Shantena

译文：

荷永：

我非常高兴收到你的来信。很遗憾我不能在新年之夜传达我的问候，因为我在乡村的住处不容易用电话线来上网。不过尽管晚了一些，仍然是衷心祝愿你新年愉快！

“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”获得了如此的成功，使我由衷欣慰。对此我并不感到意外，因为你在爱诺思（Eranos）所做的关于中国文化心理学的美好演讲，已经是如此的富有魅力与启迪。感谢你邀请我参加第二届会议。它对我充满着诱惑与吸引，因为我知道那将是极为丰富的体验。当确定会议日程的时候请告知我，我会斟酌安排我的时间。

你觉得人们会对我们在爱诺思的《易经》研究感兴趣吗？如果是的话，我将准备有关的报告。

此时，由衷地致以发自内心的祝愿！

圣提那

1998 年 12 月 31 日

约翰·毕比的来信（美国旧金山）

January 4, 1999

Dear Heyong,

I have just returned home to receive your message. My heart is still glowing from the sense of connection we were all able to make. At the moment I have a slight touch of flu (picked up in Beijing) but I am more deeply and positively infected by my return to China after all these years. That I do not plan to "recover" from!

Thank you and Gao Lan again for everything you did to welcome Adam and me: I hope the New Year reflects the good karma you both surely have earned!

As ever,

John

译文：

荷永：

我刚回来便收到了你的来信。我的心中依然充满着会议的气氛，我们一起完成了一件激动人心的交流与合作。在中国的时候，我略微有些“感冒”，但是仍然深深地感触着许多年来重返这块土地的积极影响。我不想很快从这“感冒”中康复。

谢谢你与高岚为我和亚当所做的一切。寄去你们所应该获得的新年的祝福。

永远的朋友

约翰

1999 年 1 月 4 日

大卫·罗森的来信（美国德州）

January 6, 1999

Dear Heyong:

Happy New Year to you, Gao Lan, your son, and Andrew.

Yes, your (our) conference was a great success. Congratulations on a job well done!

I'm getting back to work and I'll send you my paper (a summary of what I presented) next week by Air Mail.

I had a wonderful meeting with Yu Yang and his colleague Sun Yingchun. I will talk with Murray and I agree with your plan to make it work: A Mandala II Series with The Tao of Jung plus The Fay Book Series. I will help you in whatever way I can.

I had an excellent time in Beijing and I enjoyed meeting your brother, aunt and uncle.

Visiting the Great Wall, Ming Tombs, Forbidden City, Imperial Palace, Temple of Heaven, Summer Palace, Temple of the White Clouds, and the Lama Temple represented a peak experience for me.

Best of all is my friendship with you: heart to heart, heart to head, and heart to soul. Take care and much joy and peace.

David

译文：

荷永：

向你，高岚，斯普与安杰祝新年愉快！

是的，这次会议获得了圆满的成功。谨对此完美的工作表示

祝贺！

我正准备开始工作。下周将用航空寄上我的论文（我大会报告的摘要）。

我与喻阳和他的同事有非常愉快的会面。我将与默瑞·斯丹联系，我同意你的计划：以 Fay 系列为主，加上《荣格与道》的中国荣格心理学丛书。我将为你提供所有需要的帮助。

我在北京度过了愉快的几天，很高兴见到你的哥哥和叔叔阿姨。游览长城、明陵、紫禁城、故宫、天坛、颐和园、白云观和喇嘛寺……带给了我一个个高峰体验。

最值得珍惜的，是我们之间的友情：心心相印、得心应手、心神感应。请多保重，愉快安宁。

大卫

1999 年 1 月 6 日

莱朗的来信（美国旧金山）

January 10, 1999

Dear Heyong,

I want to thank you for all your efforts to make the conference happen, your wonderful hospitality, your unbounded energy, your openness and spirit. The students and faculty at South China Normal University were attentive, generous, and made the weary travelers from across the ocean welcome and at home. As important as the content of the Conference, I believe I will remember more the genuineness and wonderful humanity of the Chinese participants and hosts. If I can do anything at all at my end of the world to foster our continued endeavors, I will gladly do so.

My best wishes,
Leland

译文：

荷永：

感谢你为这次会议所做的所有的努力。感谢你美好的款待，你的无穷的精力，以及你的开放与灵性。华南师范大学的学生与同事是如此的细心关照与慷慨相助，使得跨越大西洋的疲倦的旅程也充满了宾至如归的气氛。如同这次会议的内容一样重要的，是中国参与者与主持者所具有的真实与友谊，对此我将永远不会忘怀。在我的有生之年，若是我能够对于我们共同开创的事业发展提供任何帮助，都将会使我获得欣慰。

美好的祝愿！

莱朗

1999 年 1 月 10 日

李梅的来信（美国圣地亚哥）

February 1, 1999

Dear Dr. Shen,

Thank you for the photos and the Lunar New Year wish! How did you get to the post office in Hawaii to mail them?

Here we are at the last full moon of the year, but it's overcast, so I won't be able to enjoy the bright light of the night.

That was a wonderful conference. The more distant from it, the more I think of the significance of it. It is due to your vision and energy that it came about, and it is up to all of us who participated to take the work further. Really you deserve a lot of credit and thanks.

And thank you for coming that distance in the traffic to spend time with me on my last day in Guangzhou. I treasure all the moments, not only because of cross - cultural currents but mainly because of the warm sense of hospitality and human relationships unique to the Chinese.

As for me, I returned to the U. S. feeling quite inadequate as a Chinese. There is so much to learn and to know. Being immersed in China I saw how much I need to do to catch up. But here I can do only a little at a time, through books.

Do you have the address and e-mail address of Ms. Wang, the wonderful translator? I'd like to send her a message of appreciation.

Regards,

Meili

译文：

尊敬的申博士：

谢谢你邮寄来的照片以及春节的问候。你是如何通过夏威夷的邮局邮递的呢？

这里的今天晚上是今年最后的一个满月，但是有云雾遮挡，我不能去欣赏满月之夜所应有的明空。

这次会议是如此的圆满。越是远离于它，我越是能感到其深远的意义。你的远见和所付出的精力使其出现，而通过我们大家的参与使其成长与发展。真的，你是应该受到这众多的赞誉与感谢的。

同时，也感谢你在我离开的最后一天，尽管交通不便仍然专程过来看望我。我珍惜这会议期间的所有的经历，不仅仅是由于这跨文化的交流，而且更主要的是由于中国人所独特的热情与友谊。

对我来说，我回到美国之后，总是不能充分地感受自己中国人的身份。在中国有太多的事情要学习要了解，我也看到了自己的差距。但是在这里，我只能通过书本暂时学到那么一点点。

你有王坤，那位出色的翻译的邮址和 e-mail 地址吗？我想向她表示我的欣赏与感谢。

致意

李梅

1999 年 2 月 1 日

肯尼斯与乔丝的来信（美国旧金山）

February 16, 1999

Dear Heyong and Gao Lan,

It has now been several weeks since Joyce and I were in China. Our thoughts are very much still there. We have wanted to write to you regarding the experience so many times, and yet words cannot convey our most wonderful experience. Everything about the conference was such a success, it has been difficult to put into words our deepest appreciation.

You and Gao Lan were the most gracious of hosts. Your welcoming of us to the university, conference and China honored us deeply. You managed the conference like I have seen no other managed. Your attention to detail was superb. The people we met and the ideas that we exchanged were truly a moving experience. Our eyes were opened to Chinese culture.

Your conference brought about many interesting thoughts and ideas. At some point, when the ideas have been digested I will write to you regarding them. Joyce and I left the conference with a very different perspective of China, Chinese culture and Chinese people. Our lives were significantly changed. We owe this to having the opportunity to attend your conference.

After we left the conference, we traveled north to Xi'an. Here, the experience had changed drastically. We no longer were a part of Chinese culture, rather we were tourists visiting a great land. This is NOT to say that we did not enjoy all of what we did and saw. Rather our experience was now more external rather than internal. After Xi'an we moved yet further north to Beijing. We spent Christmas on the Great Wall. We chose the most remote section of the Great Wall to visit (Si Ma Tai). Remarkable!

All in all, your conference gave to us our most memorable experiences. We were privileged to grasp a part of Chinese culture that few others are offered. Your students and colleagues welcomed us much more than we deserved. Many thank to them. Two people in particular extended there hands to us; Kun Wang and Wencheng Xu. These two people gave us a gift of friendship that cannot be expressed in words.

We are also interested in knowing whether or not you received the package that we left for you. The package was a couple of books, chocolates and a Journal of Sandplay Therapy (of which Joyce is the assistant editor). I had asked Cuiran Zhang to hand you the package (the day we left). I hope he was able to find you.

San Francisco has an official holiday tomorrow. The occasion is for the celebration of the Chinese New Year. Gung Hay Fat Choy to both you and your wife. I understand that the Year of the Rabbit is a particularly lucky one. Good fortune to all.

Soon, Joyce and I will write to you more extensively regarding the conference, when we are able to sort out our many details and thoughts.

Best wishes for the new year,
Kenneth and Joyce

译文：

荷永与高岚：

新年愉快！

这已经是乔丝和我在中国的几周之后了。我们的思绪几乎仍然是在那里的。我们几次想着写信给你们来表达我们的感受，但是语词似乎并不能传达我们的那最美妙的体验。整个会议是如此的成功，真的是很难用语言来表达我们深深的感激之情。

你和高岚是如此亲切的主人。你们邀请我们到你们的大学，参加这次会议，访问中国，使得我们无比荣幸。你们所组织的会议是我们参加过的组织最好的会议。你们对于一些细节的关注都是如此的完美。我们所遇到的与会者以及相互之间学术思想的交流，都是真正使人难忘的经历。中国文化打开了我们的眼界。

你们的会议激发出了许多富有意味的思想与观点。某个时候，当这些思想和观点得到消化的时候，我将给你写出我的感受。乔丝和我带着对于中国和中国文化，中国人民的一种非常不同的观点离开了这次会议。我们的生活产生了富有意义的转变。我们把这些都归之于有幸参加你们的会议。

.....

心之，你们的会议给予了我们终生难忘的感受。我们获得了十分难得的机会来接触中国文化的一部分。你们的学生和同事给予了我们盛情的款待。对此我们十分感激。有两位特别需要感谢的朋友：王坤与徐文成。他们给予了我们语言难以表达的友情。

.....

明天是旧金山的假日，是为了庆祝中国新年。向你和你的太太说“恭喜发财”，我知道兔年是非常吉祥的，愿幸运伴随你们。

很快，当我们梳理起整个的细节和思路的时候，乔丝和我将 写出我们的更多的感受。

新年祝福！

肯尼斯与乔丝

1999 年 2 月 16 日

申荷永作为大会主席致辞

国内外与会学者合影

后 记

完成这本《灵性：分析与体验》的时候，已经是 2001 年的春天，“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”召开的两年之后。之所以为本书取名为“灵性：分析与体验”，是受会议期间在广州光孝寺与明生法师、耀智法师等座谈的启发。

记得当时，以光孝寺当家明生法师为主，向参与会议的国内外专家与学者们介绍了中国佛教尤其是中国禅宗的基本思想，并且回答了大家所关注的问题。比如，美国旧金山荣格研究院院长约翰·毕比（John Beebe）曾提问：“为什么观音在印度主要是男性的形象，而在中国反而是女性的形象呢？”明生法师闻问哈哈大笑，无限欣慰地说“这就是观音的妙用”。他向大家解释了观世音菩萨为了济世救人，常有众多不同的化身……

在回答了大家所提出的问题之后，明生法师说：“我是不是也可以向这些外国的心理分析学家提一个问题？”大家听后也是一片由衷的笑声。明生法师的问题是这样的：“你们在座的有许多国际上著名的心理分析家，对于目前社会上走入了歧途，吸毒犯罪的青少年，你们将会如何对待呢？”

这是一个非常实在的问题，大家一时陷入了沉默，并没有人即刻有所回应。随后，美国费城荣格研究院的主任马勒恩（Stan Marlen）开了一个玩笑说：“那我们就把他们送到你们中国的寺庙里来。”美国德州大学首席荣格心理分析教授罗森（David

Rosen) 接着说：“那么你们和尚也就成了心理分析家了。”美国加州整合学院的东西方心理学研究主任莱朗 (Leland van den Daele) 补充说：“实际上你们禅师本来就是心理分析家。”听他们如此说来，明生法师又是一阵爽朗的笑声。

这时，约翰·毕比教授插话进来，认真全面地讲述了心理分析的意义所在，它能够当代心灵困惑的人，提供一个安宁静心、解除困惑的场所和机会。明生法师接着提问到：禅宗的自性，是一种整体的体验。这心灵又非物件，如何又能细细地分析呢？约翰·毕比耐心地解释说，心理分析也重视体验的，真正的心理学家都应该是能够理解禅宗之整体体验意义的，像卡尔·荣格那样。

于是，在这“分析”与“体验”之中，就包含了心理分析的西方交流的意义，以及东西方心理学整合的意义。而这种分析与体验，也包含着一种深层的心性层面的意义，而不仅仅是普通的心理与行为层面。就这样，“灵性：分析与体验”，或“Psyche: Analysis and Experience”的基本思路也就形成了。

去年 11 月下旬，我在美国旧金山参加“荣格心理学的历史与发展国际会议”的时候，与国际分析心理学的主席 Luigi Zoja 和 Murray Stein 在一起，专门讨论了“第二届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的准备与计划，最后确定了以“灵性：治疗与理论，东方与西方” (Psyche: Theory and Therapy, East and West) 作为“第二届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的主题。

分析心理学与中国文化，不管是作为一个研究课题还是国际会议的主题，都受到“国际分析心理学会” (IAAP) 的大力支持，尤其应该感谢 IAAP 的主席 Luigi Zoja 和 Murray Stein 博士。华南师范大学校长颜泽贤，副校长王国健、黄锦能、刘鸣，外事处处长仲铭锦，华南师大校办主任陈少华等，都曾给予了极为有力的支持，在此也表示由衷的感谢。大会的会务与组织工作是由

高岚博士负责的，我们的学生张琼、曾毅、李倩春、李江雪、庞茜、宋旻烨、黎艺舟、陈维芳、刘卉、李敏谊等都会为会议付出了辛勤的努力，陈侃、钟向阳、王轶楠、范国平、李资瑜、张莉和古丽丹等，也都为会议论文集的最后完稿付出了劳动。

最后，衷心感谢“第一届分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的所有参与者，大家的共同参与，使我们拥有了一个美丽的梦，获得了这来自心灵深处的礼物。这礼物属于我们大家，属于心理分析在中国的发展，属于中国文化在西方与国际的影响，也属于 2002 年“分析心理学与中国文化国际研讨会”的继续。

申荷永

2001 年 3 月

于美国旧金山荣格研究院

关于分析心理学和中国文化的部分文献

1. John Beebe. Integrity in Depth
Texas A&M University Press, College Station, 1992
2. David Rosen. The Dao of Jung
New York: 1997
3. Stanton Marlan. Fire in the Stone.
Chiron Publication. Wilmette, Illinois, 1997
4. Murray Stein. Jungian Analysis.
Chicago: Open Court. 1997.
5. Murray Stein. Practicing Wholeness.
New York: A Chiron Publication. 1996.
6. Thomas B. Kirsch. The Jungians.
Routledge, London, 2000.
7. Jung & Wilhelm R. The Secret of the Golden Flower.
New York: Causeway Books, 1975.
8. Jung C. G. Archetypes and the Collective Unconscious. Princeton Publication. 1977.
9. Jung C. G. Man and His Symbols. New York: Dell Publishing Co.,
Inc. 1964.
10. Jung C. G. Memories, Dreams, Reflections. New York: Vintage
Books. 1965.

11. J. J. Clarke, Jung and Eastern Thought
London and New York: Routledge. 1994
12. June Singer. Boundaries of the Soul.
New York: Anchor Books. 1994.
13. Wilhelm & Baynes. The I Ching.
New Jersey: Princeton University Press. 1967.
14. Ritsema R., I Ching The Classic Chinese Oracle of Change.
London: Element Books. 1994.
15. Shen Heyong. Psychology of Heart.
Erano 67. Spring Publication 1998.
16. 申荷永:《中国文化心理学心要》, 人民出版社 2001
17. 申荷永、高岚:《理解心理学》, 暨南大学出版社 1999
18. 申荷永、高岚:《心理教育》, 暨南大学出版社 2001 年第 2 版。
19. 曹础基:《庄子浅注》, 中华书局 1997 年版。
20. 王弼:《老子注》,《诸子集成》, 中华书局 1993 年版。
21. 李光地纂(刘大钧整理):《周易折中》, 巴蜀书社 1998 年版。
22. 诺伊曼:《大母神》, 李以洪译, 东方出版社 1998 年版。
23. 卫礼贤:《中国心灵》, 国际文化出版公司 1998 年版。
24. 荣格:《分析心理学的实践》, 成穷、王作虹译, 三联出版社 1991 年版。
25. 荣格:《梦·回忆·思考》, 刘国彬、杨德友译, 辽宁人民出版社 1988 年版。
26. 弗洛姆:《弗洛伊德思想的贡献与局限》, 申荷永译, 湖南人民出版社 1996 年版。
27. 罗素:《西方哲学史》, 何兆武、李约瑟译, 商务印书馆, 1976 年版。
28. 丹皮尔:《科学史:及其与哲学和宗教的关系》, 李衍译, 商

务印书馆 1979 年版。

29. 卡普拉：《物理学之道》，朱润生译，北京出版社 1999 年版。